Jury Clears McKeithen In Fatal Crash

Two Young Olla Sisters Victims Of Road Mishap

COLUMBIA (Special)— A coroner's jury late Saturday returned a verdict clearing Jesse J. McKeithen, 21-year-old son of Gov. John J. McKeithen, of any fault in a traffic crash which claimed lives of two teenage girls.

The inquest followed the death of Miss Peggy Ann Garner, 18, of Olla, at St. Francis Hospital in Monroe at 1:05 a.m. Saturday. Her 13-year-old sister, Charlene, was killed instantly in the wreck one mile north of Columbia on U. S. Hwy. 165 at 10:50 p.m. Friday.

TREATED, RELEASED

Young McKeithen, driving a pickup truck which was involved in the collision with a station wagon driven by Miss Peggy Ann Garner, was treated for minor cuts and bruises at Caldwell Hospital at Columbia and released.

The McKeithen vehicle was headed north, while the station wagon was going south, according to state police, when what they described as a "glancing headon collision" occurred.

The girls had attended a high school basketball game at Caldwell Parish High School and were on their way home after first taking a girl cousin home.

Coroner E. L. Carroll reported that the five - man coroner's jury, by a vote of 4 - 1, held that Peggy Ann Garner caused the crash with a driving error.

The 4 - 1 vote came when one member of the jury said he was unable to make up his mind as to any definite decision. He neither agreed nor disagreed with the findings of the majority.

The report was sent to the District Court for such action as may be warranted. The jury recommended that no criminal charges be filed against anyone in the case.

The coroner's jury returned the following verdict:

"The decedents, Peggy Ann Garner and Charlene Garner were riding in a station wagon, 1961 model, then being driven by Peggy Ann Garner, and were proceeding south upon U. S. Highway 165. As the point of the accident was reached the station wagon was driven on the left lane of the two-lane highway in a position to begin passing the car which was proceeding immediately ahead of the station wagon, at which point the 1965 pick - up truck was being driven northward on U. S. Highway 165 by Jesse J. McKeithen, 21, being driven entirely upon the east lane, the passing effort on the part of the station wagon being at a time and place when said passing lane was rightfully occupied by the above mentioned truck.

"The pickup truck was driven further to its right and the station wagon passed further to its left across the north bound lane, with the point of impact occuring at the extreme east edge of the paved highway, partially on the east boundary of the highway.

"The Coroner's Jury finds that the cause of the collision was an error in driving on the part of Peggy Ann Garner, driver of the station wagon and finds no fault on the part of Jesse J. McKeithen. The Jury does not recommend that any criminal charges be filed against any person in connection with the deaths forming the subject of this inquest."

The girls' father, Charley Garner, is a tool-pusher for an oil company in the Netherlands.

Funeral services for the Garner sisters will be at 3 p.m. today at Chickasaw Free Methodist Church near Olla, with the Rev. Crawford Greene officiating. Burial will be in Chickasaw Cemetery by Kinner and Stevens Funeral Home of Jena.

Besides the father, survivors are their mother, Mrs. J. A. Mayes of Olla; and a sister, Sherry Faye Garner of Olla.

DESPITE TAX LOSS

Secretary Urges Private Planning Toward Pensions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Private pension plans have become big business, a presidential committee said Saturday and they cost the federal government about a billion dollars a year in special tax concessions.

But the committee, headed by Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz, recommended continued government encouragement of private retirement plans because "They represent a major element in the economic security of millions of American workers and their families." Thus, they have an important role in public policy, the committee said.

EXPECTED TO SOAR

The report said total investments in private retirement funds increased from $12 billion in 1950 to more than $75 billion now and are expected to soar to $225 billion by 1980.

The report, the first of its kind on pension plans and their relation to public policy, said private retirement plans now cover about 25 million workers and pay out about $2.75 billion a year to nearly 2.5 million beneficiaries.

"Their status as a major financial institution is reflected in their accumulated reserves of over $75 billion, in their annual accumulations of $6.5 billion and in their annual benefits payments," the report said.

While recommending continued tax concessions that give a special break to private pension plans, the committee recommended a tightening of the law to prevent abuses and assure financial responsibility.

It also said favored tax treatment should be restricted to private pension plans "Which furnish benefits consistent with the public interest."

SNOW PILES UP

Dixie Feels Nips Of Arctic Winds

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Snow piled up on icy roads in a broad, frigid area of the South on Saturday.

The fall ranged up to nine inches at Soco Gap and six inches at Balsam Gap in the Blue Ridge Mountains and seven inches in Newfound Gap in the Great Smokies.

In Winston-Salem, N.C., where four inches of snow accumulated rapidly, police helped transport nurses to hospitals because of bus delays and the heavy going generally.

ROADS SLICK

Snow fell in many sections of Dixie where roads already were slick with ice, and freezing cold held it firmly in place.

Warnings of heavy snow and hazardous driving conditions went out to the central district of Virginia. The state's snow cover varied from less than an inch in Winchester at the northern tip to five inches in Danville near the North Carolina boundary. Highway department crews worked to keep roads clear.

An emergency plan, requiring cars to be equipped with snow tires or chains, went into effect in six Maryland counties and in Baltimore City.

By noon, southern Maryland measured up to four inches of snow. In westernmost Garrett County a three-inch topping thickened the 10-inch blanket that formed Friday.

State police reported traffic had been reduced to a crawl in Kentucky. The snowfall ranged up to four inches in Louisville and Owensboro. Drifts built up on rural roads.

West Virginia had two to 18 inches of snow on the ground when the skies cleared.

Another rainy day dogged the Pacific Northwest. Rivers went out of their banks again, washing out roads, bridges and dams and stranding hundreds.

The mercury shriveled down below the zero notch early Saturday from Maine westward to the northern Great Plains, and millions of Northerners endured another day of piercing cold.

ONE WEEK REST

New Year Festivity Halts Viet Nam War

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Wartorn South Viet Nam appeared headed into a week of peace Saturday as the Viet Cong announced a seven day cease-fire to celebrate the lunar new year.

The Buddhists also observe the holiday but there were indications they plan to resume antigovernment activity as soon as the celebration ends.

Extremist youth groups in central Viet Nam have said they are not satisfied with Wednesday's coup in which Premier Tran Van Huong was overthrown. They want Brig. Gen. Nguyen Chanh Thi, the military governor of central Viet Nam, to become premier.

The youths have also said they want U.S. Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor thrown out of the country.

The Viet Cong cease-fire has become an annual affair and is usually respected. Government forces remain on combat alert but in past years no important military activity took place.

As usual, the Viet Cong has invited government troops to join them for festive dinners in Viet Cong hamlets.

A Viet Cong broadcast said the guerrillas "will not attack positions and units of the Saigon puppet troops to allow them to return to their families and native villages to enjoy the festival with the condition that they will not carry any arms whatever."

Lt. Gen. Nguyen Khanh, who took over from Huong in Wednesday's coup, issued an order of the day:

"Our country is stepping into a new destiny. All difficulties and differences of last year have been settled, so every one of us can aim our activities toward the urgent and common goal — crushing the Communists and saving our homeland."

Friday night Khanh went browsing through Saigon's flower market wearing civilian clothes and without bodyguards. He was accompanied by an aide. Police started to clear a path for him but he told them to stop.

Port Accord In Baltimore Offers Hope

Shippers, Union Reach Tentative Pact In Session

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — Agreement between union officials and shipping interests gave hope Saturday that Baltimore had ceased to be a stumbling block in attempts to settle the Maine to Texas waterfront shutdown.

Officials of the striking AFL-CIO International Longshoremen's Association and the Baltimore Steamship Trade Association announced the tentative agreement after a private bargaining session Saturday.

PLEDGE SUPPORT

Thomas W. Gleason, ILA president who arrived here Friday night to take part in the negotiations, said leaders of the six locals here had pledged to urge union members to ratify the settlement when its terms are explained at general meetings today.

Gleason said the 3,500 striking Baltimore dockworkers — who voted down a settlement last Wednesday — would vote again Monday on the revised contract.

He said the principal change in the local contract was elimination of a jurisdictional clause which was blamed in part for Wednesday's negative vote. The vote was 1,371-1,016.

Gleason seemed confident that resolution of the Baltimore dispute would open the doors for the 60,000 striking dockworkers to return to their jobs.

The Baltimore sessions were held on the heels of contract settlements approved by dockworkers Friday in New Orleans and Mobile, Ala. New York ILA members approved a new pact last week, and separate negotiating sessions were under way this weekend in Hampton Roads, Va., Galveston, Tex., and Philadelphia.

Under the union's policy of one-port-out-all-out, the strike which began 21 days ago would continue until dockers in all ports accept new contracts.

The walkout, says the New York Shipping Association, has already cost the nation's economy about $500 million. The Federal Maritime Association, which considers all unshipped cargo as lost, places the figure at $1 billion.

Patterned after the New York agreement, the New Orleans settlement involves an 80-cents an hour wage increase and fringe benefits spread over a four-year period.

Negotiators for Norfolk, Va., and Boston ILA locals were reported to have approved the master contract terms, with only local issues still to be ironed out.

Wife Charged With Murder At Winnsboro

WINNSBORO (Special) — Mrs. Annie Bell Scriber, 24, is in the Franklin Parish jail after being charged with murder of her husband, Clifford E. Scriber, who died of a gunshot wound Friday.

The warrant was sworn out by Archie Scriber, father of the victim.

Mrs. Scriber was placed in the sheriff's custody Saturday afternoon.

Sheriff A. J. Stephens said Mrs. Scriber would be allowed to attend her husband's funeral if she desired.

Funeral for Mr. Scriber will be at 3 p.m. today at Mulhearn Funeral Home in Winnsboro, with the Revs. J. H. Patterson and M. J. Martin officiating. Burial will be in Ogden Cemetery.

Late Saturday Sheriff Stephens said Mrs. Scriber had not admitted the shooting.

When asked about evidence, in the case, the sheriff said, "I don't want to make any statements about anything until I talk to the district attorney."

Franklin Parish Coroner Dr. A. J. Reynolds ruled death was caused by the gunshot wound.

Mrs. Scriber told officers Friday that after hearing the shot, she ran to a neighbor's house. The neighbor called the sheriff's department.

Mr. Scriber was shot above and to the right of the right ear. He was found lying on his left side.

Wave Claims Life Of Man At Portland

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — A rain - weakened cliff crashed into the Columbia River Saturday. The wave it set up rolled 1,000 feet across the river where it washed over the southwest end of Pudget Island and killed a man.

The Weather Bureau said rain and unseasonably warm temperatures which melt mountain snowpacks will continue through today. There will be some nighttime cooling.

HUNDREDS EVACUATE

Hundreds of families were evacuated Saturday from their homes in Oregon, Washington and Idaho as rivers rushed out of their banks.

In the eastern Oregon town of La Grande some 200 homes were evacuated as the Grande Ronde River spilled into the northwest section of the city. Civil Defense officials said an additional 1,000 homes must be evacuated if the flood worsens. However, Civil Defense officials said the river appeared to be dropping.

Oregon Gov. Mark O. Hatfield said that National Guard units had been called out for flood duty at La Grande and at two other eastern Oregon towns — Pendleton and Milton-Freewater.

The National Guard also is on duty in western Oregon's Clackamas County which also has suffered extensive flood damage.

The Willamette River was rising in Portland. The River Forecast Center said the Willamette will crest at 23 feet today. That is five feet above flood stage but well below the 30-foot level of the disastrous Christmas week floods.

Clatsop County Sheriff Carl Bondietti said that a huge section of a riverside cliff — 1,500 feet long and nearly 1,000 feet wide — dropped into the Columbia River at 1:53 a.m. on the Oregon side, 60 miles northwest of Portland.

The wave rolled across to the Washington side of the river where it washed over dikes and smashed two houses. The body of Gabrelson was found in one of them.

Bondietti said that the wave appeared to be 15 to 20 feet high.

The huge slide smashed Oregon riverside tracks of the Spokane, Portland and Seattle Railroad. U.S. Highway 30 is well back from the edge of the cliff at that point and was not damaged. The Columbia River channel remained open to ship traffic.

Slides and high water blocked a number of highways throughout Oregon, Washington and Idaho.

Union Pacific and Southern Pacific mainline tracks were blocked by slides and washouts. Passengers were being moved by buses around the blocks.

In Idaho, hundreds of families were isolated or homeless because of high water in the Lapwai Valley. Damage to roads and property was extensive.

Boards Wait For Opinion In Aid Case

BATON ROUGE (UPI) — Atty. Gen. Jack Gremillion is expected to tell local school boards this week if there are any state laws preventing them from signing anti-segregation agreements with the federal government.

The attorney general's office, in answer to a request from Gov. John J. McKeithen and the Louisiana School Boards Association (LSBA), is scheduled to issue a ruling on the touchy subject sometime this week.

VIOLATE LAW

Earlier, state and local school officials were told by Gremillion's office they could not sign the pledges without violating state law.

The U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare has set a March 3 deadline for state and local school officials to decide if they will bow to the edict.

Failure to sign the agreements could cost the state millions of dollars in federal school aid.

McKeithen has said consistently there are no segregation laws left on the books which would interfere with a board signing the agreement.

The LSBA and state school officials claim they do not know what they can do legally in light of Gremillion's earlier statement.

McKeithen agreed with school officials the matter was confused and an attorney general's ruling should be sought.

The State Board of Education is scheduled to hold a special meeting Wednesday to decide what to do about the compliance order.

SERVICE BRIEF

Churchill Buried Next To Parents

BLADON, England (AP) — Sir Winston Churchill was laid to rest Saturday beside the graves of his parents in Bladon churchyard, with only family mourners in attendance.

A black hearse brought the body of the 90 year old statesman from Long Hanborough station to centuries old St. Martin's church followed by 10 Rolls Royces carrying the family mourners.

The Rev. John James, rector of St. Martin's, conducted a brief service over the grave. The bearers, from the Queen's Own Hussars, Churchill's old regiment, removed the Union Jack from the casket as it was lowered into the grave.

SPECIAL TRAIN

Most of Bladon's 700 villagers were waiting along the route from the railway station or were clustered near the entrance to the churchyard.

It was a cold day and biting winds swept in across the hills.

The villagers were dry-eyed as were the family intimates who had attended the state funeral in London earlier.

Alongside Sir Winston's grave are those of his parents, Lord Randolph Churchill and his American wife, who was Jennie Jerome of New York.

Sir Winston chose the small graveyard in preference to Westminster Abbey or St. Paul's. He is reported to have said of the abbey: "There are too many people lying there already I don't like."

He had visited the graves of his father and mother every year. On a visit several years ago, he pointed at the spot beside them and said: "This is my place."

Four Persons Perish In Fire

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Four persons died Saturday in an early morning fire which rushed through a two-level luxury apartment building so fast and so thoroughly that firemen said its origin probably would never be determined.

The fire destroyed a 32-unit section of the London Square Apartments, driving about 100 families into windy, 20-degree weather shortly after midnight.

No serious injuries other than the four deaths were reported.

AFRICAN CENTER

Red China Ordered To Leave Burundi

TOKYO (AP) — Communist China announced Saturday its diplomats had been expelled from the African kingdom of Burundi.

Burundi, a tiny landlocked nation adjoining the Congo, has been generally regarded as one of the chief centers of Red Chinese intrigue in Africa.

The announcement by the New China News Agency over Peking radio gave no reason for the break. It said Burundi had "unilaterally" suspended diplomatic relations with Red China and that Peking's diplomats had been ordered to leave "within two days."

Chinese Ambassador Liu Yu-feng lodged "a strong protest" with Burundi's Premier Joseph Bamina, the broadcast said.

In what seemed to be a reference to a political tug-of-war in Burundi over the surge of Peking's influence there, the broadcast said the ambassador agreed to withdrawal after "taking into consideration the difficulties facing your — Bamina's — government."

The announcement hopefully called the suspension of relations "temporary." It said Peking would give "sympathetic consideration" to any request by the Burundi government to resume relations.

Burundi's decision seems to deal an embarrassing blow to the Red Chinese in the race with the West and their estranged Communist partner, the Soviet Union, for a major role in Africa.

Boy Tells Police About Shooting Parents, Sister

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — A high school freshman, the shy but brilliant adopted son of a machinist, walked into nearby Parkville police station carrying a mail-order pistol in a shoulder holster.

"I have something personal to tell you," he said to an officer.

"I've just shot my mother and father."

Later he mentioned, too, the shooting of his sister, also an adopted child.

This, police said Saturday, is how they learned that Melvin W. Knautz, 44, his wife, 45, and their daughter Carol, 11, had been slain Friday night in their home on Baltimore's northeast outskirts.

The son, Wayne Knautz, 15, was charged with murder.

As he stood tall and slender, his head bowed as untrimmed blond hair spilled over his ears and forehead, Juvenile Court authorities waived jurisdiction Saturday morning. He will be tried as an adult.

Inspector E. F. Adams, chief of Baltimore County detectives, said Wayne arrived at the police station shortly before midnight and told his story to Lt. Charles Krach.

The inspector said Krach asked about a weapon midway through the boy's account and the youngster reached under his coat, handed over a holster-encased .38-caliber foreign revolver, and surrendered a pocketful of bullets. The weapon arrived last week from a California mail-order house.

The youngster told them he had taken a taxi from his 1½-story home in a neat, modest neighborhood to the police station.

In the home, police found all lights out and a radio going full blast. Mrs. Knautz lay dead in a doorway between the living room and dining room. She had been shot several times, at least once in the head, and a broken chair obscured the upper part of her body.

Malaysian Fearing Large Scale Attack

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Malaysia has told the U.N. Security Council that Indonesia seems to be planning "a large scale operation" against Malaysia as soon as the monsoon season ends. The rains are expected to taper off in about a week.

Malaysia said the Indonesians have massed between 15,000 and 20,000 troops in Indonesian Borneo for the attack.

The charge was made in a letter handed Friday to the council president, Liu Chieh of Nationalist China, by Malaysia's representative, Radhakrishna Ramani. It was made public Saturday.

"My government regards this current buildup as a radical change in the pattern of 'military confrontation" that Indonesia has until now been following and which for the most part involves small numbers of troops," the letter said.

Ramani asked that the letter be circulated among the council's 11 members but did not ask for a Security Council meeting.

It was reported in Kuala Lumpur during the day that Malaysian troops rushed to Batu Pahat, 120 miles south of the capital, after a woman reported seeing a group of Indonesians land near the town. A police spokesman said later four unidentified men were seen in the area.

Earlier, Prime Minister Tunku Abdul Rahman said a "strong fifth column" is at work seeking to overthrow the Malaysian government. He was speaking to newsmen about the arrest of three leading opposition members on charges of plotting to set up a rebel government in exile and promote armed revolution with Indonesian help.

In Bangkok, Thailand, a spokesman for the Indonesian foreign office said his country's confrontation campaign against Malaysia might end if British forces were pulled out of Malaysia.

Building Burns On Highway 80

West Monroe firemen answered two calls outside the city limits Saturday.

A four-room frame building on Highway 80 West burned to the ground about 1:35 a.m. The building formerly housed a store but was recently vacated. It was owned by Orlin S. Rhodes of West Monroe. His son Danny estimated the value of the building at about $1000.

About 2:45 p.m. firemen were called to a fire at 114 Westwood Dr. No damage was reported. A fire department spokesman said that a heating unit had started throwing out sparks.

Sidelights To Funeral

LONDON (AP) — Descendants of England's Cavaliers — who fought Oliver Cromwell's Roundheads in Britain's civil war — protested Saturday that Sir Winston Churchill's funeral prevented them from honoring their hero, Charles I, who was beheaded on Jan. 30, 1649.

An equestrian statue of him, cast in bronze, stands at the southern corner of Trafalgar Square, facing Whitehall. Each year on this day a group of Anglican High Church clergy, backed by Stuart sympathizers, march in procession to the statue and hold a short service for "the martyr king."

This year there could be no ceremony. The statue, like many others on the funeral route, had been boarded up to protect it from damage from the crowds. Wrote one indignant reader to the Daily Telegraph:

• • •

LONDON (AP) — Israeli leaders joined other world statesmen at the funeral of Sir Winston Churchill on Saturday but found themselves faced with a special problem of their own. It was the Jewish Sabbath and religious law forbids all methods of travel on the Sabbath except walking.

Representing Israel were President Shazar, 76; former President David Ben-Gurion, 78; and Israeli Ambassador to London Arthur Lourie.

Because of the religious rule, they could not join the car procession of other statesmen that went with Queen Elizabeth II to St. Paul's Cathedral. They walked the mile and a half to the cathedral from the Savoy Hotel.

LONDON (AP) — Thieves stole jewelry worth about $2,240 from the London home of Sir Winston Churchill's private secretary, Anthony Montague Browne, while he attended Sir Winston's state funeral Saturday.

• • •

LONDON (AP) — Britain's Royal Navy exercised an old privilege Saturday in hauling Sir Winston Churchill's body through the streets of London.

When Queen Victoria's body was drawn on the same gun carriage at Windsor in 1901, the horses gave trouble so naval men ran forward and pulled it up the hill to the castle. In recognition, King Edward VII gave sailors the right to pull the gun carriage at all future state funerals in Britain.

'MARTIANS' THEY YELLED

VERONA, Italy (AP)—Three youths saw strange lights in the hills near here at night. They slipped up close and saw three men flashing a powerful light across a blank white screen.

The youths raced back to town crying the alarm: "Martians!"

Police who investigated said the "Martians" turned out to be three German scientists using the lights to attract rare night-flying butterflies for a collection for German museums.

Technicalities Slow Freedom Party Suit

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Legal technicalities stemming from the 1964 Civil Rights Act bogged proceedings here Saturday in the latest attempt at unseating Mississippi's five congressmen.

Attorneys for the so - called Mississippi Freedom Democratic Party (FDP) questioned Atty. Gen. Joe Patterson more than two hours trying to show that the congressmen were elected under laws that discriminated against Negroes.

The lack of a judge — not needed in taking depositions — apparently added to the confusion as opposing attorneys argued points of law while Patterson presented testimony.

The FDP has until Feb. 13 to present its information to the House Committee on Administration and the congressmen will have 40 days in which to file answers.

The FDP challenged the seating of the five when Congress convened this month and a House vote of 276-148 resulted in the lawmakers taking office pending a final determination.

A battery of attorneys moved into Mississippi this week to begin taking the sworn testimony from persons in an effort to prove Negroes do not have full voting rights.

FDP attorney Morton Stavis of Newark, N.J., and Patterson clashed briefly Saturday when Stavis charged state officials with using law enforcement offices to disenfranchise Negroes.

"The state of Mississippi has lent the law enforcement offices it has and its chief law officers to oppose" every act by the federal government to aid Negroes, Stavis said.

"You have impugned my integrity," Patterson shot back. "There is not a word of truth in that insinuation."

Secretary of State Hebert Ladner took the witness stand after Patterson to answer questions on election machinery operation in the state.

About 45 people were present in the hearing room, and most of the spectators were Negroes.

The FDP is scheduled to continue taking depositions at various places in Mississippi until the organization feels it has enough evidence to back up its charge of systematic exclusion of Negroes as voters and purely office candidates.

Places scheduled for deposition taking next week include Warren, Humphreys, Hinds, Cohoma, Lauderdale, LeFlore, DeSoto, Lafayette, Benton, Marshall, Tippah, and Harrison counties.

Johnson Budget Boosts Project For Red River

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Allen J. Ellender, D-La., pointed out Saturday that prospects for a navigation project on the Red River across Louisiana were given a boost in President Johnson's new budget recommendations.

Included in the budget requests, Ellender said, is $460,000 to further a comprehensive basin study, now in progress, for the Red River. Such a study encompasses all phases of a river development — navigation, flood control, storage, recreation and others.

"When this study is completed, it will be possible to move ahead with actual construction of projects which prove feasible," Ellender said in a talk for broadcast in Louisiana.

He recalled that Louisiana voters approved last fall a constitutional amendment making it possible for local interests to participate in federal government projects on a cost-sharing basis.

HUMORIST TO SPEAK

Annual Meeting Of UGF Slated

Sid Ory of Lafayette, widely known speaker and humorist, will be guest speaker at the ninth annual meeting of United Givers Fund, Tuesday, February 16. The meeting, a "dutch-treat" dinner, will be held at 7 p.m. at the Frances Hotel Roof.

Ory, area manager for a life insurance company, has been an active member of numerous business and civic organizations in Lafayette and throughout the state. He is past president of several clubs and organizations, including the Lafayette United Givers Fund, Chamber of Commerce, and Kiwanis Club.

"We are very fortunate to have Mr. Ory as our guest speaker," Petty said. "He is much in demand as a speaker for his Cajun stories and his business talks. He has been highly successful in his business and yet has devoted much time to civic betterment in his city and state."

Ory is recipient of the Lafayette "Civic Cup Award" for civic leadership, and the Silver Beaver Award for outstanding service to the Boy Scouts. He is a board member of several agencies, including the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and Southwest Louisiana Rehabilitation Center.

Petty pointed out that contributors attending the annual meeting will be allowed to vote in the election of new UGF board members. The meeting will also provide a public opportunity "to recognize the unselfish volunteers for their contributions of time, as well as money, to United Givers and the participating agencies," Petty stated.

"These campaign workers and board members have volunteered thousands of hours, without a cent of pay, for the betterment of our community," Petty said. "The only thing they receive for all their time and talents is the satisfaction of knowing that their efforts have helped others in need.

New officers will also be voted on by the UGF Board. Retiring President Jack S. Campbell and Campaign Chairman Ralph Caldwell will be given special recognition for their achievements in office.

Owners and employee representatives from some 52 Twin City firms will be recognized for their outstanding contributions as Fair Share contributors.

Petty emphasized that persons attending the banquet pay for their own meals and that no UGF money is used to defray the cost of the banquet.

Nation's Leaders Hit By Bad Cold

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The common cold hit an uncommon number of the nation's leaders during the week.

President Johnson was back in the White House after three days in the hospital, but was still coughing.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara went to Walter Reed Army Hospital on Friday and was expected to stay several days.

Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon was confined to his home.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk returned to Washington from London, and said he would try to recuperate at home from "a little cold and temperature" which prevented him from attending Sir Winston Churchill's funeral.

London Packed For Last Salute To Sir Winston

LONDON (AP) — The greatest crowd that ever gathered for Sir Winston Churchill — more than a million people — jammed into the hushed heart of London Saturday to mourn him.

Along the historic three miles of funeral route — from Westminster to St. Paul's Cathedral and on to the Tower of London — men, women and children crushed shoulder to shoulder, craning for a last glimpse of the coffin.

For many, the sight of the flag-draped coffin rolling by on its gun carriage was the reward of more than 12 hours waiting in freezing weather.

"It was worth a few chilblains," said a housepainter, Arnold Griggs, 51. "I baked in the desert for Winnie during the war. For his sake I can put up with a bit of cold on his last morning."

As a gray dawn slowly materialized behind the big dome of St. Paul's, families huddled in makeshift tents rigged up with sheets hitched to the barriers.

"I didn't come here to sleep," said schoolteacher Philippa Decker, 41, who took her position just outside the houses of Parliament before midnight. "I am here because I think he was the greatest man who ever lived."

Hours before the funeral started, trains and autos started pouring in fresh crowds, some from the other end of the country.

Truck drivers who managed to park in side streets leased out the tops of their vehicles as vantage points.

Heads craned over roofs and practically every window along the route was filled with people.

The cortege went by in eerie silence. Men removed their hats and women dabbed at their eyes.

In the hush it was possible to hear the rumblings of subway trains, the twittering of birds, the whinny of a policeman's horse. Even the distant whistling of ships in the port of London was audible.

As Randolph Churchill, Sir Winston's son, plodded by sad faced in his black top hat, a woman broke the silence to mutter: "He's just a carbon copy of the old man."

Outside St. Paul's, spectators switched on transistor radios to hear the hymns inside the cathedral. Then came the "Battle Hymn of the Republic," and the crowd joined in.

Tryouts Slated For Northeast Three-Act Play

Tryouts for the major spring production of the Northeast State Speech Department are 3 to 5 p.m. in Biedenharn Auditorium on campus.

Date of the March performance has not been set.

Script to be used is "The American Dame," a three - act play by Phillip Lewis. Dr. George C. Brian, director of the production, announced.

Each actor will perform in several roles to get the story told, he said.

"The American Dame" is a humorous play which has a number of serious scenes as it takes the history of the American woman from her origin in Eve to the present day.

Five performers are needed for this unusual production: two men and three women. All Northeast State students are invited to attend the tryouts, and those who wish to read will be given an opportunity to do so, Brian said.

Scandal Committee To Visit Academy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The special committee to investigate the cheating scandal at the Air Force Academy organized Saturday and announced it will visit the school within the next two weeks.

Gen. Thomas D. White, retired Air Force officer who was named committee chairman by secretary of the Air Force Eugene M. Zuckert, said of the committee's plans:

"In its deliberations the committee will interview individual cadets, including some of those who are involved, faculty, coaches, professors, civilian educators and others."

White said also any of the cadets involved may volunteer their views to the committee if they desired.

Zuckert announced appointment of the committee on Jan. 28. He said then "although the vast majority of the cadets were not involved, the fact that breaches did occur make it important for us to conduct a review of the problem."

Attending the meeting in the Pentagon Saturday, in addition to Zuckert and White, were Dean Hardy Dillard, professor of law at the University of Virginia; Dr. Robert L. Stearns, former president of the University of Colorado, and Lt. Gen. J.J. Nazzaro, vice commander of the Strategic Air Command.

Dr. Charles B. Thornton, president of Litton Industries at Beverly Hills, Calif., was unable to attend the organizing meeting but sent word he will be available for all future sessions.

The meeting, the Air Force said, was to organize the work of the committee, decide on the areas it would explore and develop procedures prior to visiting the academy at Colorado Springs, Colo.

White said the committee intends to look into the general structure and working of the academy. The object is to determine whether there are underlying problems in the over-all organization and functioning of the school that may have contributed to the incident.

Academy Junior Started Scandal That Blossomed

DENVER, Colo (AP) — A clever junior cadet — who classmates said didn't need the money—first stole final examination papers last May in a venture which has mushroomed into the cheating scandal resulting in the resignations of 93 Air Force cadets, a copyright story by the Denver Post said Saturday night.

The downfall of the scheme came only when the small group of five or six cadets in on the original theft decided to expand their system for financial reasons, the Post said:

The article said the cadet first obtained a key to storerooms in which examinations were kept.

Faced with the problem of gaining entrance to the building after midnight, he hit on an involved solution.

By pressing an emergency button at the right time, short-circuiting a built-in alarm system, and forcing open the elevator doors by hand, he was able to go undetected from the library to the second floor of the Academic Building — normally inaccessible at night.

With the stolen key, it was an easy matter to enter the storerooms under the cover of darkness and carefully select the tests needed for various classes and courses.

The group kept silent about their classroom successes until final examination time rolled around again last December.

A group of prospective buyers of examinations was carefully screened. Some customers who backed away after expressing interest said they were threatened with bodily harm if they revealed the operation.

Prices for the tests were in the $5-$10 range. Business was brisk.

Then two junior cadets not only refused to buy, but — as required in the cadet honor code — reported the operation to school officials.

Eight days later, two freshmen, or "doolies," made a similar report.

Working from this information, an officer board dug into the facts which so far have implicated at least 93 resigned cadets who were either directly involved in the operation or refused to take action about it.

The Post estimates that the investigation may show up to 125 cadets were directly involved in the theft, sale and use of the tests.

Secretary of the Air Force Eugene Zuckert has said those implicated include 30 members of the varsity football team. Three basketball players already have resigned.

ANNUAL FUND DRIVE

Northeast Alumni Chairmen Chosen

Archie D. Parker, Jr. of Monroe, a 1956 graduate of Northeast Louisiana State College, has been named general chairman of the NLSC Alumni Association's second annual fund drive.

Alumni President David L. Kahn announced Parker's appointment and noted, "Mr. Parker is well qualified for this important post, having served last year as chairman of the Ouachita Parish segment of the drive."

Parker has chosen John C. Ensminger and Harlan L. Prestridge, both of Monroe, as his overall co-chairmen for the drive.

The new chairman is chief probation officer for the Monroe area with the State Department of Welfare, and is a member of the Monroe Optimist Club.

He is a member of the executive committee of the Alumni Association, is a delegate to the Louisiana Alumni Council, and is coordinator of chapter activities for the NLSC Alumni Association.

Ensminger, also a 1956 graduate of Northeast State, is an insurance agent. He is a member of the Ouachita Parish Police Jury, and is currently serving his first term on the Alumni Association's board of directors.

Prestridge graduated from Northeast in 1955. He is district manager for an automotive corporation, and is a member of the Monroe Optimist Club.

Citizens Council Urges Governor To Refuse Help

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Directors of the Citizens Councils of Louisiana called on Gov. John McKeithen Saturday to reject federal aid to education rather than comply with the Civil Rights Act.

In a meeting here, the councils' board of directors launched what it called "operation understanding with the governor."

A resolution took issue with the governor's stand on the order by the federal government to desegregate schools or lose federal aid funds.

The resolution urged McKeithen to "represent the white people of the state and stand up and reject this money."

The councils' directors urged McKeithen to start immediately a statewide voluntary birth control program in all state health facilities as a way to get money needed to replace the federal funds.

The resolution said Louisiana spends $217 million a year in welfare funds. It said such spending should be curbed.

The councils will show, the resolution said, that such a program would save more money than the federal aid money McKeithen would reject.

Meanwhile, a Citizens Council spokesman said a demonstration is planned in front of the State Welfare Department and the Capitol to emphasize "the need for curbing this welfare spending that's being planned."

A meeting of Citizens Councils members will be held March 12-13 here, with Gov. George Wallace of Alabama as the main speaker. All members of the legislature and public officials will be invited to attend.

Speakers will also include Leander Perez Sr., Plaquemines Parish, and others identified with the Citizens Councils movement over the years.

In another resolution, the Citizens Councils directors called on McKeithen to take steps necessary to abolish permanent voter registration in all parishes of the state.

And the group urged Louisiana's congressional delegation to seek action "buy back the federal reserve bank."

A spokesman said the board will seek a meeting with McKeithen to discuss these points and to receive satisfaction or rejection.

WHERE THERE'S A WILL

LOUISVILLE (AP) — None of the neighbors tattled to police about the suburbanite whose broken leg failed to keep him from his favorite tavern.

The cast was so bulky the man couldn't get into an auto very easily. He solved that by straddling his power mower and driving it along the grass on Bardstown Road from his home to the inn.

Cranes On Dock Bow In Tribute

LONDON (AP)—As the launch bearing Sir Winston Churchill's body slid along the gray Thames River Saturday, a line of cranes on the riverside lowered their gaunt booms in salute.

It was the one gesture a day of minutely calculated pomp that was not on the schedule—and it caused another catch in the hearts of mourners watching the old hero's last journey upriver.

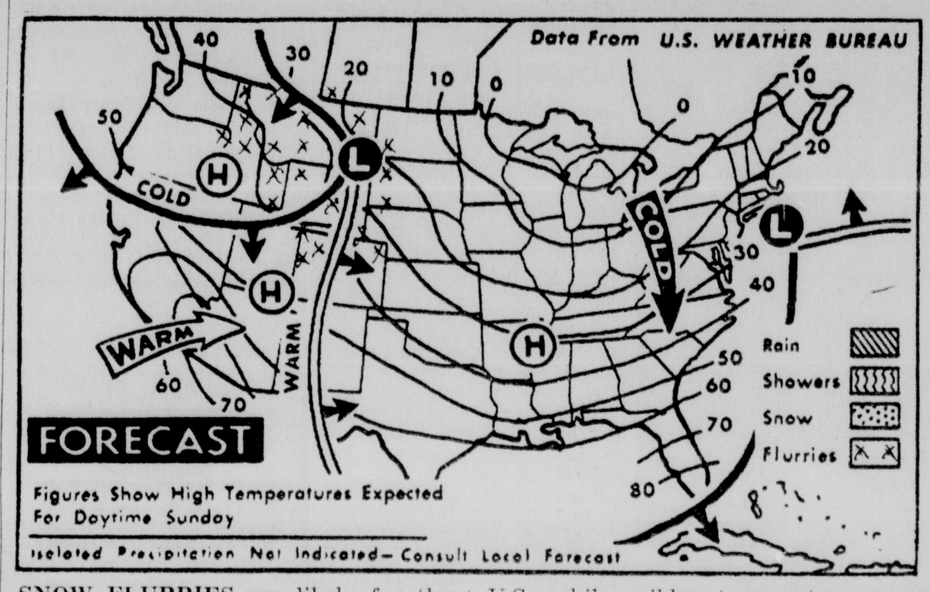
From the wharf fronts of the murky London dock area, blitzed by Nazi bombers in World War II, the bowing cranes were the dockers' own farewell to a man who often visited them after a bombing raid.

Sir Winston sailed off on his last voyage as the Royal Marine band played "Rule Britannia" and many eyes glistened with tears at these symbols of vanished British glory.

A pale wintry sun broke through the leaden sky for a moment as guardsmen carried the coffin aboard the launch to the shrilling of bosuns' pipes.

The Tower of London, Tower Bridge, London Bridge, fabled in nursery rhyme, framed the scene as the tiny flotilla moved off on the mile-and-a-half journey up to Festival Pier and the train for Bladon and burial.

Part of the 20th Century's richest find of sunken Spanish treasure forms the exhibit "Pieces of Eight!" which opened in Explorers Hall, Washington, on Dec. 16 and will continue through Feb. 28.



SNOW FLURRIES are likely for the northern Rockies eastward into portions of the northern plateau today. Generally colder temperatures will prevail over the eastern half of the U.S. while milder temperatures are in store for the plains and plateau regions. The rest of the nation will experience little change in temperature. (AP Wirephoto Map)

Moore Details Project Plans On 165 Bypass

The contract for construction of the U. S. 165 bypass is scheduled to be let Feb. 24, and James W. Moore, vice chairman of the highway board, outlined details of the work Saturday.

According to Moore, the project will consist of four lanes of U. S. 165 with service roads which will connect the Interstate 20 to U. S. Hwy. 80. The service roads will also connect La. Hwy. 15 and U. S. 165 south (the Columbia Highway), both going north all the way to U. S. 80. This system will provide a complete north - south bypass for traffic to avoid going through downtown Monroe.

Moore said that the State Highway Department has received many inquiries regarding plans for continuing U. S. 165 bypass north to the Sterlington Road. The vice chairman explained that some properties north of U. S. 80 had been purchased by the highway department and "appraisals are now being made on others."

An effort will be made, Moore affirmed, to complete acquisition of the remaining property "to provide necessary right-of-way for this construction job which will complete the north-south bypass."

The local highway board member explained that U. S. 165 bypass will connect Sterlington Road at Franklin Street from the south - bound lanes. The bypass will connect into Sterlington Road at Madison Street for the north - bound lanes, with the complete merger tapering into two lanes of traffic at Armand Street.

Moore stated that this last extension of U. S. 165 bypass will be let for construction in the last of this year or in early 1966.

All this construction is at ground level, he explained.

The National Geographic Society currently is engaged in some 40 projects that are helping to push back the frontiers of earth, sea and sky.

Soviet's Kozlov, Former Leader, Dies At Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) — Frol R. Kozlov, the No. 2 man in the Soviet Union during much of former Premier Khrushchev's rule until he was felled by illness, died Saturday.

Tass, the Soviet news agency, reported Kozlov died in Moscow at the age of 56, presumably from the effects of a stroke suffered two years ago. He had suffered a heart attack two years before that.

Kozlov had the role of Khrushchev's right-hand man, a post that was taken by Leonid I. Brezhnev after illness struck Kozlov. Last October Brezhnev succeeded Khrushchev as first secretary of the Soviet Communist party and in November Kozlov was dropped from the party's ruling Presidium.

He apparently had been out of action but remained until his death a member of the party Central Committee. He also was a member of the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet, the parliamentary body that turns party decisions into formal law.

From March 1958 until May 1960, when he became party secretary, he was a first deputy premier under Khrushchev.

A metallurgical engineer, as is Brezhnev, Kozlov was one of the generation of Communist leaders trained during the early years of Joseph Stalin's drive for industrialization.

He rose in the Leningrad branch of the Communist party. This branch and the Ukraine branch, from which Khrushchev and Brezhnev came, have been regarded by some observers as rivals for power in Moscow.

Kozlov reached membership in the Central Committee in 1952, the year before Stalin died. He supported Khrushchev in the 1957 struggle against former Premiers Georgi Malenkov and V.M. Molotov, members of what was dubbed the "antiparty group," and was rewarded with membership in the party Presidium.

In 1960 he also became a party secretary. Up to then, Alexei I. Kirichenko — a Presidium member and party secretary — had been considered the man closest to Khrushchev's power. But Kirichenko was banished to the provinces and Kozlov moved in, giving many the idea that he was to succeed Khrushchev.

A dapper, solidly impressive Communist, Kozlov had already made freign appearances as one of Khrushchev's key men. He toured the United States in 1959, where he impressed Americans who met him as a typical post-Revolutionary Communist.

London's bow bells were silent for nearly 20 years after a bombing in World War II. With the restoration of the bells followed by reconsecration of the Church of St. Mary-le-Bow in the business heart of London in June 1964, Cockneys feel the war is finally over.

NEW SAFETY CHECKS

Thresher Incident Slows Polaris Use

WASHINGTON (AP)—The recent rapid rate for putting new Polaris-missile submarines into the strategic fleet is in suspension for approximately an fleet submarine was commis-11-month interval.

The latest ballistic missile sioned Dec. 19 and the next commissioning is expected to be no earlier than October, the Navy said Saturday.

Generally, this is a delayed result of the loss of the nuclear attack submarine Thresher in April 1963.

Construction of both Polaris and attack-type atomic submarines was slowed or halted following the loss of the Thresher, while the Navy established a series of stringent new safety requirements. These included some extensive changes, among them an improved system for blowing ballast and surfacing in an emergency and new pipe installation methods.

This stretched out the building time and, eventually, slowed up in the commissioning the ships.

Restrictions were imposed on the depth to which the submarines could dive, to be removed only when the vessels meet the new safety requirements.

The Polaris program, starting with the commissioning of the George Washington in 1959, moved at a moderate pace of two or three commissionings a year until 1963. Then, under the drive to get the ships with their missiles on station within reach of potential targets, seven Polaris submarines were commissioned.

Construction had progressed so far in others that the momentum carried over into 1964 when 13 Polaris submarines joined the fleet.

A dozen of these were at a point in construction which enabled builders to incorporate, with minimum delay, the all-new safety requirements.

As older ships go into shipyards for overhaul they are being modified to meet the new safety requirements.

After the long interval now under way, commissioning will be resumed with a rush. Schedules indicate that five are due in 1965—all in the last two or three months of this year.

Of the 41 Polaris ships built, building or to be built, 29 are in commission. The keel for the last one will be laid next month.

Even though the Navy currently has 29 Polaris submarines in commission that does not mean that each one is standing on station, ready to fire its load of 16 rockets if war comes suddenly.

One or two are in yards for overhaul and refitting to launch improved models of the Polaris missile. Several others are still on shakedown cruise, to test equipment, train crews and to launch practive missiles.

As of today, about seven are deployed in the Atlantic; three in the Mediterranean and the first of a planned six or seven ships are on station off the coastline of Communist China.

Secretary of the Navy Paul H. Nitze has said that by mid-1965 four Polaris submarines will be deployed in Asian waters.

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

Many New Books Now In Library

By FRANCES FLANDERS,
Ouachita Parish Librarian

A large number of new books are waiting for the patrons of the Ouachita Parish Public Library this week and there is certain to be some special reader who wants each book mentioned in this column. Patrick Dennis is a satirist of our present day society and has a large following. Although he probably will never have such a success again, as he had with "Auntie Mame", still there are many people who will want his latest book, "The Joyous Season." Donald Barr Chidsey is the author of a historical novel about the War of the American Revolution, called "The Edge of Piracy." It is concerned with the adventures of a New England sea Captain engaged in the smuggling of gunpowder. "Nina Upstairs" by Beverly Gasner is the story of a young girl in New York. It paints a picture which will not soon be forgotten of a way of life in the big city. It will appeal particularly to women. "Mallabec" by David Walker has it's setting in the Canadian woods. It is a well-written story and should have a large audience. "Century In Scarlet" by Lajos Zilhay is a turbulent Hungarian family novel and is the third in the author's series about the Dukays. In this book he takes them from the Congress of Vienna in 1814 to the declaration of war against Russia in 1914. For those who want a long, readable novel, this one is the answer. Two new mystery stories are available this week; "The Fingerprint" by Anthony Gilbert and "Murder Can't Wait" by Richard Lockridge. Both of these books will have eager readers waiting for them.

There are two new books dealing with the experiences of foreign correspondents; "I Can Tell It Now" by David Brown and other members of the overseas Press Club and "Foreign Correspondence" by John Hohenberg. Those who are interested in occult phenomona will want to see "Can We Explain The Poltergeist" written by A. R. G. Owen. John Rowan Brown is the author of a new book in the field of psychology, "The Mind". Those who are interested in the Dead Sea Scrolls will want to read "The Shapira Affair" by John Marco Allegro, which gives some very interesting background about this find. A lovely book of sermons is "The Showing Forth Of Christ" a selection of the sermons of John Donne.

"Worth Fighting For" by Agnes McCarthy and Lawrence Reddick is an interesting account of the part played by the Negro troops during the Civil War. "The Fist In The Wilderness" by David S. Lavender is a very fine account of the fur trade in North America. "You're Stepping On My Cloak And Dagger" by Roger Hall is a very enthralling account of Secret Service Operations. "As I Remember" is a fascinating account of the history of education in Louisiana, written by Dean Clarence A. Ives, retired from the school of Education of L. S. U. Another interesting book in the field of education is "Secondary Schools At The Turn Of The Century" written by Theodore R. Sizer.

RAISING HER hand to indicate that she has heard the sound, little Victoria Moore is being examined on the audiometer by Miss Bennie Rayner, state audiologist. Victoria, one of a set of triplets, is the daughter of Mrs. Flora Moore and is in the first grade at Shady Grove School.

HAVING AN audiogram run at the hearing clinic at the Ouachita Parish Health Unit is Alan Tannehill who is a second grader at Clara Hall School. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Tannehill and is being tested by Miss Frances Barnes, speech therapist with the city school board. (Staff photos by John Fogleman)

Sounds that are clear for some children are muffled in the ears of others, and finding hearing defects often is a difficult matter. In Ouachita Parish many persons have joined in the effort to detect and solve the problems of hearing for many school-age children.

By CAROL BRAXTON
Staff Writer

Put your fingers in your ears, and then listen to the sounds around you.

It's annoying, isn't it, as ordinary sounds take on a different meaning while you strain to make out sounds distinctly. However, this inability to hear clearly is a real problem to many school-age children who can't hear simply by removing their fingers from their ears.

Maintaining normal hearing often is a problem for many children. Very often even the parents do not know that their child can't hear. However, these children with hearing problems are being screened through tests conducted by volunteers of such groups as the school P-TA in practically all city, parish and parochial schools in Ouachita Parish.

The corps of volunteers is primarily made up of nurses from the Ouachita Parish Health Unit in Monroe who examine the children carefully. Teachers, the city and parish speech therapists and other trained persons also lend a hand in testing the youngsters.

LIMITED FREQUENCY TEST

The examination entails the use of the limited frequency test. In this test ear phones, attached to a machine known as the audiometer, are placed on the child's head. The child is asked to listen for sounds produced by the machine and raise his hand as he hears them. The volunteer then records his reactions. The person operating the audiometer can determine the frequency and loudness of the sound produced.

On the frequency scale the normal is considered anything within a hearing range of 15 decibels or better.

If the pupil tested at school falls below the 15 decibel mark, he is referred to his family physician, a specialist or to the hearing clinic, and a note is sent to his parents explaining that after testing his hearing showed up below the average.

The clinics are held at the health unit and are set up as often as there are enough students to warrant having the doctor from town come to the clinic.

If the child fails the limited frequency test, then an audiogram is run on him in which his hearing responses are plotted on a graph. The nurses then take the audiograms to the unit and evaluate them. If it appears that the child suffers a hearing loss he is invited to the clinic to see the doctor.

The clinic is a diagnostic one rather than one set up for treatment of the cause of the hearing loss. The doctor decides on the findings of the tests from the examinations which he conducts on the child. He then makes his recommendation on whether the student will need surgery, treatment by a private physician or preferential seating.

The speech therapists, Louis George with the parish schools and Frances Barnes with the city schools, usually attend the clinics to see if the child needs speech training. If such a need exists they see that the child is enrolled in a class to help correct his speech impediment.

One of the doctor's tests of hearing on the youngster includes the Weber Rinne standard which is done with a tuning fork. This test will usually give him an idea as to whether the trouble lies in the middle ear or if there is a nerve loss in the inner ear.

Miss Bennie Rayner, state audiologist with the State Board of Health, attended the clinic the day this reporter was present. She said that some nerve losses are acoustic trauma nerve losses which occur in the inner ear. She explained that these are caused by such things as repetitious loud noises as the constant sound of a gun firing.

This type of nerve loss does not necessarily handicap the child, Miss Rayner said, unless the damage occurs in the speech range. However, a loss such as the acoustic trauma nerve damage cannot be detected except through tests like those done at the health unit, she stated.

DETECTION METHODS

If the acoustic trauma nerve loss prevents the child from being able to clearly understand normal speech, then he is recommended for a hearing aid, lip reading, auditory training or even special classes. Miss Rayner pointed out, however, she said that the majority of these losses are not in the speech range and thus do not hinder the child's ability to hear.

"The Hearing Conservation Program is a preventive one," the audiologist said, adding, "and we try to catch these hearing defects early in the child before it becomes a real problem."

Mrs. Sallie Snapp, nurse in charge of the clinic, said, "we are not equipped at the health unit to administer treatment of any kind for hearing. We only diagnose the trouble and then have the doctor examine the child and make a recommendation to see a private physician in town who can treat the child's problem."

PROBLEMS EXPLAINED

After the preliminary tests are run, the limited frequency and the audiogram, the doctor reexamines the patient and calls the parent or parents in for a conference. He painstakingly explains the child's problem to the mother or father and then suggests what should be done. He also writes a note for the parent to use when he takes the child to the doctor.

"Some children who have behavioral problems at school," one of the nurses assisting with the clinic said, "are not just spoiled children. They suffer from a hearing loss."

The nurse further explained by saying, "In many cases as soon as the hearing is cleared up or corrected, the problem is alleviated."

The nurse cited one example to illustrate her point. At one time such a child as this was found during a screening program. The nurse said that while she was trying to screen the students at school the teacher had to take the little girl out of the room because she was creating such a disturbance.

HEARING FAULTY

She was making so much noise she was interfering with the tests, the nurse explained. The teacher had mentioned to the nurse that the child had repeatedly been a discipline problem. After screening her at school, it was found that her hearing was very poor. She was well below the normal hearing range.

The nurse reported that the little girl's behavior has improved at school since the discovery that she could not hear. An operation has remedied her problem and her teacher and family find her easier to discipline now.

Mrs. Snapp mentioned the fact that frequently a child's entire problem with hearing and his trouble in speech is caused by infected adenoids and tonsils. This comes out in the doctor's examination, and he includes this information in his discussion with the child's parents. The cost of good hearing is nominal to the cost involved in the simple tonsilectomy and adenoidectomy, she said.

MANY DIFFERENCES

"It can make all the difference in the world to the patient's well - being and attitude," Mrs. Snapp remarked.

On the child's first visit to the clinic a history is recorded to give the nurses and the doctor some idea of the possible or probable cause of the child's defective hearing. Some of the data asked for is whether or not the parents are aware of the child's loss of hearing.

"Many parents do not know about their child's dilemma until after the tests run at school indicate this," Mrs. Snapp said.

The history also asks if deafness runs in the family, if the child is exposed to a great deal of noise, if he has allergies such as hay fever or asthma, whether he is prone to colds or sinus infections and if he has tonsil infections.

In his otological (treatment of the ear and its diseases) examination the doctor checks for inflammation and discharge in the nose and sinuses; whether the ear drum is retracted or scarred; secretory process and acute infection of the ears; and whether there is an excess of pus and wax in the ears.

Students At FBI National Academy Get Rigorous Workout

When the fledgling gets out of the FBI National Academy, he's a special man. The new agent has been turned out of a mold that has worked for 41 years.

By JOSEPH E. MOHBAT

QUANTICO, Va. (AP) — The student lockers at the FBI National Academy are different from most. They have no locks.

Nothing ever has been pilfered from these lockers — just as the FBI never has been tainted by scandal in its 41 years under J. Edgar Hoover.

The beds in the FBI trainees' dormitory are uniformly made and the austere rooms are fastidiously clean.

"A man who would shirk the unpleasant little chores here would shirk the unpleasant side of an investigation," said special agent Henry Hank Sloan, the deceptively sleepy eyed former Texas Ranger who runs the academy. "And believe me, there are plenty of unpleasant sides."

What breed of men are these 6,300 agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation? What does Director Hoover demand from the young men he chooses for the elite investigation agency?

TOP PHYSICAL SHAPE

Observe them in their fledgling months at Quantico and around the Department of Justice building in Washington.

Without exception, they appear to be in top physical shape. None is fat. They are clean shaven and never seem in need of a haircut.

They seem to the outsider to be in uniform—conservative dark suits, usually black shoes and dark socks, striped ties, handkerchiefs neatly tucked into breast pockets. No loud ties or sport jackets. Hats are optional, but young type gray snap brims are prominent.

"We want them to look live conservative young businessmen," a veteran agent explained. "They may be interviewing bank presidents as well as prostitutes and criminals - and we want them to dress for the bank presidents. But you should see the get ups some of them have to wear for under cover assignments."

They knew when they applied to be agents what would be required of them—dedication, loyalty, 24 hour alertness, hard work involving long hours of overtime, many without pay.

PAY SCALES

The normal government work day is from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. but last year the agents - each of whom carries an average of 23 cases at all times - averages 2½ hours of overtime a day. And they may receive no more than $1,081.60 a year in overtime. The beginning agent gets base pay of $7,900 a year. If he stays, he can earn up to $15,800 as an agent in the field. A very few get up to $24,500.

Prospective agents must be male U. S. citizens, willing to serve anywhere in the United States. They must be college graduates and hold degrees in law or accounting. All must be between 23 and 41 on applying, no shorter than 5 feet 7 and free of defects "which would interfere with their use of firearms or with their participation in raids, dangerous assignments or defensive tactics."

They must undergo a thorough interview, a battery of tests and a rigid physical examination. If they make it that far, they are subjected to the most intensive background investigation the FBI can make.

"We go right back to the day a man was born," an FBI spokesman explained. "We talk to his teachers, his neighbors, his friends, his employers and any other contacts we can find. We check police departments and go over his military records. We account for all of his time, with no gaps."

What the FBI is looking for as it tears the wrappings from a man's past is a possible criminal record, or an emotional or drinking problem, or a low boiling point in his temperament, or a situation that might threaten disloyalty — such as relatives who might be pressured in hostile countries.

ADVERSE ELEMENT

Even a report that a young man cheated on a school exam or was under suspicion for a minor crime can work against him when he tries to get into the FBI.

"These men will have to be on the witness stand time and again," a spokesman said. "The FBI has a reputation for the best and most valid courtroom testimony and evidence. And it wouldn't be good for a smart counselor to expose an FBI agent's shady past."

The right man for the FBI, he said, "is a man with above average stability, who can work well under great pressure. We're looking for a guy you'd want to have in the front seat with you on a dangerous raid."

Misuse of FBI equipment such as a car or gun, or using a bureau car for private purposes, are cardinal sins. "One of the worst things an agent can do is lose his gun or his credentials," Sloan tells his young agents.

END OF ROAD

Improper behavior in public, on or off duty, can mean the end of the road for an agent. So can even minor law violations.

"A guy who consistently gets speeding tickets would be in trouble," one FBI official said.

"For obvious reasons, agents must have scrupulous regard for all police jurisdictions."

The FBI does not provide statistics on its firings, but a spokesman said, "There are remarkably few. Not too many oddballs survive the screening."

Young agents are made vividly aware of the hard and fast FBI requirement for meticulous, detailed, accurate report writing.

"If they've goofed off and reported incomplete or inaccurate information, their evidence will be thrown out of court," the spokesman said.

In long, exhausting hours on the firing line at Quantico, a massively built special agent named George Zeiss burns himself into their memories.

"These guys must learn to shoot fast and accurately," Zeiss said. "That's important not only for the obvious reason but because the people we're up against know how an FBI man can use his gun and aren't often inclined to pull theirs.

WHEN TO USE

"But just as important—and even more so, in a way—is knowing when to use the gun."

Young agents find themselves on Quantico's surprise target course. From doors and windows on their left, as they walk along on the line, cardboard silhouettes suddenly appear. They've been taught to recognize the bad guys.

"You just killed a kid carrying a toy gun," Zeiss booms at a red faced agent from his perch behind the firing line. Or "that man was surrendering—you shot him." Zeiss's voice, amplified electronically, teaches its lesson well.

Finally, there is loyalty. From the beginning, they are imbued with a philosophy once voiced by Elbert Hubbard, author and editor. Framed copies are prominent in the offices of FBI executives and at the school at Quantico:

"If you work for a man, in heaven's name work for him; speak well of him and stand by the institution he represents. Remember: an ounce of loyalty is worth a pound of cleverness.

"If you must growl, condemn and eternally find fault, why, resign your position and when you are on the outside, d—— to your heart's content — but as long as you are a part of the institution, do not condemn it; if you do, the first high wind that comes along will blow you away, and probably you will never know why."

HIS GUN STEADY and ready, his nerves trained to meet any emergency, this man could be the very symbol of the FBI agent. His eye is on the target as he undergoes rigorous training at the FBI National Academy in Quantico, Va. His cap identifies him. When he becomes a working FBI agent he will look like a conservative young businessman, unless he's dressed for an underground assignment. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

Immigration And Morality

There are two sides to the so-called "moral issues" involved in discussions relating to our immigration laws.

For example, former Senator Kenneth Keating, who was defeated in November by Robert Kennedy, called last year for an immigration law "responsive to the moral and political desires of the American people."

But morality in this sense has another side that goes deeper into United States human relations than any superficial bias or prejudice. It has been on a moral basis that the administration has forwarded its war against poverty. Eradication of basic unemployment has been listed among the most pressing goals of the program.

Now proponents of sweeping changes in our immigration system point to scarcities of labor in skilled fields in this country. Why would it not be just as wise and moral to train jobless and low-income Americans for these jobs where workers are needed?

The President's proposal regarding immigration follows the same plan to abolish the "national origins" quota system that Congress bottled up in committees last year. As a result, arguments over this matter will follow the patterns of those heard in 1964 and farther back.

In its present form, the law follows the quota assignments of 1924 as modified by the McCarran-Walter Act of 1952. This law was passed by Congress over President Truman's veto.

Generally, this act set ceilings on the number of immigrants from each country and based quotas on the ethnic ratio of immigrants in America in 1920.

Some well - considered changes of immigration restrictions could be worked out at this time. But a wholesale rejection of the present system would not be beneficial to the United States nor to the nations of prospective immigrants' origin.

Certainly if we are to encourage immigration, we would want to attract the best and most capable persons possible. But what, then, does this leave behind? For some time, now, England has complained about the "brain drain" of top technologists who have come to the United States since World War II for positions in teaching and industry.

Former Secretary of State Dean Acheson, who probably favored President Truman's veto of the McCarran - Walter quota system in 1952, appears now to see the tie in with politics and foreign policy. It's difficult to overlook the fact that persons now in restricted quotas — from Africa, the Far East and Southeast Asia — tend to vote in blocs even after living for many years outside their country of origin.

Acheson said in a recent speech: "The criteria (in establishing foreign policy goals) should be hardheaded in the extreme. Decisions are not helped by considering them in terms of sharing, brotherly love, the Golden Rule, or inducting our citizens into the Kingdom of Heaven." What is true of foreign policy is also true of a nation's position on immigration.

Under the administration's proposals, origin quotas would be gradually eased out of the picture over a five-year period. Subsequently, an Immigration Advisory Council — another federal bureau — would decide the questions arising over who would enter the country with the intention of seeking citizenship.

The temptation to play practical politics both on the domestic and foreign fronts would cloud the entire immigration picture. With our present quota system functioning as well and as fairly as it does, we see no need for changes at this time.

Wayward Hitchhikers

Sometimes little things bother us more than big ones. It's that way with picking up hitchhikers. We've found a good many hitchhikers who wouldn't bash anyone's head in, but they will open your car windows when you want them shut and shut them when you want them open.

Over in Georgia not so long ago a motorist named Billy A. Copeland stopped to pick up a couple of young men thumbing a ride. This well-meant action was one of Copeland's last. As soon as the opportunity occurred, the hitchhikers beat him to death and then took his car and money. The fact that they now face charges of robbery and first-degree murder hasn't helped him.

A Georgia legislator from Chatham County, where the crime occurred, says he will introduce bills designed to curb hitchhiking. Many cities and states already have laws of one sort or another meant to discourage hitchhiking in any form. There are some who believe such laws are proper because they may aid in saving lives. Others think that, if a thumb-wiggler wants a ride and the motorist wants to give him one, it is a matter between them.

Trying to regulate these personal actions would be about like making it against the law to smoke. Many health organizations have declared smoking injurious but we can't legislate against everything that might injure a person. If we were to try it, we might find it against the law to eat more than so many calories a day.

Practically any driver who takes into his car someone he does not know is flirting with grave threats to his life, limb and property. It is foolish to run the risks involved in giving any stranger a ride. Tragic tales such as the one mentioned above are frequent.

Knowing all this, one motorist who traveled a great deal, went calmly along his way, picking up hitchikers ranging in numbers from one to three and sometimes in different groups. His head was never bashed in and no one took his car. In this he was extremely lucky.

Finally, he noticed he was being subjected to almost as much weather exposure as President and Mrs. Johnson suffered at recent inauguration ceremonies. Warmly-coated and wrapped hitchikers who were dressed to withstand the cold weather outside naturally were too warm when they got into his heated car. So, without "by your leave" or anything else, they opened the car windows and let the chill breezes hit their benefactor. Often they flicked ashes on his seat-covers or on the floor.

Now this motorist rides alone and likes it, because he can regulate the heat to suit himself. Danger to life, limb and property didn't stop him, but discomfort did.

Next time you want to help a hitchhiker, consider the odds — safety-wise and comfort-wise.

Everybody On Time

One of the oldest excuses known for being late to work is being "knocked in the head," or is likely to be before long.

An atomic clock that is said to be accurate down to one 10-billionth of a second has been developed for army field use. This clock would neither gain nor lose more than one second in 300 years.

The army said the clock would be used for setting radio frequencies, synchronizing radar nets and in tracking missiles and satellites, among other purposes.

First thing we know, there will be a big atomic clock to set all the country's clocks by. If the clock can't be wrong by as much as a second in 300 years, how will we be able to claim we were late because the clock was wrong?

Another thought: Time may sometimes hang heavily on people's hands but it will surely be accurately measured.

Labor Decision Unfairness

Alphonse, Gaston Attitude Wanted

THE NATIONAL LABOR Relations Board, presumably the impartial arbiter of labor-management differences, has ruled that a company which truthfully reports to its workers during collective bargaining with the union is guilty of an unfair labor practice. The NLRB, moreover, takes a dim view of any company which does not Alphonse and Gaston its way through negotiations.

The most recent hit by the NLRB has been the General Electric Company, and I have written at some length on this subject. In supporting GE against the NLRB — and against James Carey's International Union of Electrical Workers — I seem to be on the side of the angels. The Washington Post, whose fervid support of labor is proverbial, agrees that the NLRB violated the First Amendment and made a joke of collective bargaining in its recent ruling that the IUE could talk, but GE couldn't.

However, I am more interested in the manner in which Mr. Carey, president of the IUE, has observed the amenities of the bargaining table and negotiated in the kind of "good faith" which the NLRB demands of management. To make my point, I quote from the transcript of the bargaining sessions between Mr. Carey and GE. In a number of instances, I have deleted words which cannot appear in a family newspaper.

"MR. CAREY: (To Mr. Moore, GE's chief negotiator) I am a president. I don't even know what I am doing dealing with someone lousy like you . .

"Mr. Carey: Mr. Moore, I'll break both your arms if you make it appear that I accepted this favorably. I'll break both your arms and bat you over the head . . . I'll pull them out at the knuckles . . .

"Mr. Carey: I'll break every bone in your body. — it, I'll come over there and bust you right in the mouth . . .

"Mr. Carey: (To Mr. Hilbert, GE's labor relations counsel) Don't agitate me, Mr. Hilbert. I have no objection to turning over your car or beating you or Mr. Moore over the head. . .

"Mr. Carey: You want me to throw you out of this room. You want me to, Mr. Moore. . .

"Mr. Carey: I will pick you up and throw you out the window except it isn't high enough . . .

"Mr. Carey: "I'll make my point if I have to kill somebody to do it. . .

"Mr. Carey: You can all look forward to a blood bath in these communities. . . It will be your blood, Mr. Hilbert . . . .

"Mr. Carey: I hope that if anyone gets hurt in the blood bath it is one of the management . . . .

"Mr. Carey: I admit I was arrested, tried, and convicted many times, but I have never done anything to offend trade union morality . . ."

So much for Jim Carey's tactics. The quotations could go on indefinitely, for it is his practice to threaten mayhem when he finds things going against him. My concern, however, is not with any specific labor leader. If this is the kind of leadership the IUE wants — and if the AFL-CIO feels that Mr. Carey is a spokesman for responsible unionism — it is none of my business.

BUT THE QUESTION remains: How and why does the National Labor Relations Board sanction this kind of unionism? In the GE case, the NLRB examined all of management's acts, found no single one of them improper, added up a series of proper acts — and convicted the company of unfair labor practices. This defies logic and confounds the law. Even more astounding is that the NLRB can close its eyes to the threats of a James Carey, finding nothing wrong with them.

As every Washington correspondent knows, there have been repeated charges that the NLRB, a quasi-judicial body, is manipulated by the labor movement. This is passionately denied, and should be the subject of a very careful investigation by the appropriate committees of the Congress.

Neither the denial nor the charges should be lightly set aside. Back in the late 1930s and through the early 1940's, the American Federation of Labor complained bitterly that the NLRB was openly prejudiced in favor of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, then heavily weighted in its councils by Communist-dominated unions which were later expelled. The AFL's point was well taken, though the labor leaders who made the charges were smeared as "reactionaries" and "lackeys of Wall Street."

The publicity given to charge and counter - charge, however, was salutary. But at the present time, it is considered in bad taste or worse to express doubts as to the probity of any government body. The bureaucracy has become sacrosanct — and I know of at least one Pulitzer Prize winning correspondent who has gotten his lumps because he forgot this. Mr. Carey's excesses are symptomatic, which is the only reason why they are worth calling to anyone's attention. A good look at the NLRB is in order.

DR. PETER J. STEINCROHN

Medics Are Sued For Malpractice

PREMIUMS ARE up all over the country for insurance against malpractice suits. Many doctors gets the jitters when treating patients. Although they are capable, and do their best, there is always the possibility that someone will try a malpractice suit. When the doctor has been incapable, his judgment and treatment harmful to the patient, it is natural to want to seek redress and compensation.

However, what I am writing about is the case in which the doctor is entirely innocent and is the victim of the increasing pattern of attempting, at least, to collect from him damages of nuisance value outside of court action. If it should get to court, the resulting unfavorable publicity is damaging even to the innocent doctor.

It is for this reason that many doctors have told me that they would not dare to stop to help an injured person at the roadside. There have been many such instances in which innocent and humane doctors have been sued.

IN A RECENT column, I explained why the doctor is often unable to give a straight yes or no answer to his patient. Dr. S., of New Jersey, writes in part: "I want to congratulate you on your fine column 'Yes or No Answer Not Always Simple.' How right you are.

"With your permission may I add another 'why' the yes or no answer is sometimes so difficult. And this is undoubtedly on account of the dark shadow of a potential malpractice suit which floats in front of many a physician's mind during his daily practice.

"For example, I've recently heard of a case in which a doctor was brought to court for having honestly and innocently reassured a patient —a reassurance which unfortunately didn't come through.

"No wonder that the doctor has to ponder and to think it over and over again before he opens his mouth when a yes or no is the question."

Comment: One can only say that things are in a terrible state when doctors, in fear of being sued, are afraid to stop to help the stricken. In the end, it's the stricken who are the losers.

DEAR DR. STEINCROHN: Is it possible for a young child to get appendicitis? Could he withstand operation? — Mrs. Y.

Comment: I have been reading a recent report of 17 children who had acute appendicitis. Three were less than one year old; the other 14 ranged from one to two years. All the 15 patients who were operated on recovered. The two unoperated, died. It's evident that diagnosis and early operation are important, whatever the age.

DEAR DR. STEINCROHN: Is there a cure for bronchitis? My husband has had a cough for months. He won't go to a doctor. — Mrs. I.

Comment: Cure? It depends what you mean by bronchitis. The specific diagnosis is important. Is it really bronchitis? Emphysema? Asthma? Tuberculosis? Tumor? Postnasal drip? Allergy? Show him this list. It may arouse some curiosity in him to find the real cause.

Dr. Steincrohn's leaflet, "How to Overcome Your Child's greatest Menace: Accidents," will be mailed to you on receipt of a stamped, self - addressed envelope and 15 cents in coin for handling. Address your request to Dr. Steincrohn, in care of this newspaper.

Dr. Steincrohn regrets that he cannot give personal answers to readers' questions. However, most questions are later answered in his column.

Readers' Views

Recently, in Views of Our Readers, an error in spacing made it appear as if the Rev. A. T. "Tom" Mitchell of West Monroe were writing from Farmerville. The "Farmerville, La.," just below Rev. Mitchell's name was intended as the opening line of the next item. While he thinks Farmerville is a fine town, Rev. Mitchell, retired pastor of Ridge Avenue Baptist Church and known as "Mr. West Monroe" because of his numerous civic activities, is still a resident of the city in which he has lived for many years.

How Safe Is Our Social Security?

THIS MONTH THE number of beneficiaries on Social Security retirement, survivor and disability rolls will cross the 20 million mark. In February alone they'll receive nearly $1.4 billion.

Contributions coming into the system each month are now approximately payments going out to beneficiaries, and Social Security is virtually on a pay-as-you-go basis. But what would happen if an economic downturn pushed hundreds of thousands of new retirees onto Social Security rolls and slashed contributions to the system? What safeguards exist to protect our benefit checks?

The answers are of key importance to you — either as a beneficiary or as an individual paying Social Security taxes.

Our Social Security system has two major "bank accounts" — the Old Age Survivors Insurance trust fund and the Disability Insurance trust fund. These funds now hold an enormous $22 billion in "extra" accumulated reserves, clearly warrant the description the "largest financial trusteeship in history."

SOCIAL SECURITY'S trust money is invested in U. S. Government securities paying interest ranging from 2½ to 4⅝ per cent. Most new investments return 4 per cent or more a year.

While interest from its investments constitutes only a fraction of Social Security's total income — about $600 million last year — this income more than covers the system's entire administrative costs.

Q.: Why aren't the funds invested in corporate stocks and bonds which might return more to the system than U. S. securities?

A.: By law, the funds must be invested ONLY in U. S. Treasury securities — as a double-barreled safety measure. U. S. Government obligations are backed by the entire economic-financial might of our nation. Also, this requirement is designed to protect private business: If these vast funds were invested in private securities, they could exert a dangerously powerful government influence on our stock and bond markets and could become, in the words of the Social Security administration, "a mass of direct public intervention in business management."

Q.: Why should Social Security keep so much money on hand?

A.: THE FUNDS are kept as a "cushion" against an economic downturn — which would swell the number of beneficiaries and cut contributions — or against any other "unusual" pressures on the system.

With a backlog of $22 billion Social Security could weather a severe five - year depression with unemployment more than double today's rate before its funds ran out.

Q.: By investing Social Security funds solely in U. S. securities isn't the Treasury simply "issuing IOUs to itself and increasing the national debt?"

A.: This oft - repeated charge is without foundation. First, the Social Security system is financially independent and self-supporting; benefits are paid not by the U. S. Government but out of the contributions we make as employers, employes and self - employed. Second, the Treasury pays the going rates on funds it borrows from Social Security and it must redeem the securities on the system's demand. Third, the fact that Social Security buys Treasury issues doesn't increase the national debt. What increases the national debt is bigger government spending than income and resulting Treasury borrowing. If Social Security didn't buy the Treasury's issues, others would.

Q.: Aren't contributors to Social Security "victims of double taxation" — because they pay not only Social Security taxes but also income taxes to cover the interest the U. S. Treasury pays on securities held by Social Security?

A.: This commonplace charge also is baseless. The central point is that the U. S. Treasury sells securities to all comers and pays interest on all its obligations. If Social Security didn't buy any U. S. securities, other investors would — and your income taxes still would be used to pay interest on those securities.

"Social security funds are as carefully protected as any financial trusteeship in the world" declared Social Security Commissioner Robert Ball in an interview. They must be — always. Involved in this trusteeship is the personal financial security of every one of us.

Walker's Defeat Really Something

THE DEFEAT OF Gordon Walker in England, was, as they say, really something. The Daily Telegraph, a couple of days before the election, remarked sadly on the tribulations the poor gentleman had been undergoing — running a special election against an utter unknown, merely to comply with the quaint British necessity that every member of the Cabinet hold down a seat in Parliament. Gordon Walker was Harold Wilson's Foreign Minister in the Shadow Cabinet, but in the General Election that ousted the Tories and brought in the socialists, Gordon Walker was beaten. Wilson appointed him Foreign Minister just the same. To resolve the dilemma, Wilson singled out an aging MP, offered him a peerage — which is fairly safe bait for the English socialist, who seems glad for the opportunity to retire from the class warfare and tuck himself in as an official member of the British upper class. The incumbent having been duly knighted and retired, a vacancy was declared, in a constituency deemed utterly safe, on the basis of its historical performance, for Labour: and poor old Patrick Gordon Walker was entered as the official candidate for the Labour Party; and everything proceeded to go wrong.

To begin with, Gordon Walker is a retiring type, formerly a professor of history at Oxford, who looked about as comfortable teaching Contemporary Problems to the voters, as, say, Dean Acheson would look teaching the same thing to the Bronx. The voters of Leyton in England are as wise, and as unwise, as intelligent, and as dumb, as the voters in any comparable area in the United States: but in droves they deserted Professor Gordon Walker, in favor of a Conservative unknown.

THE BRITISH PRESS is in an uproar. The problem divides in two parts. Part one was, in effect, a test of Pure Democracy. Here you had an illustrious gentleman. Foreign Minister in the government elected by the people three short months ago, a scholar and intellectual seeking purely formalistic ratification in a district predisposed in favor of the general social and political outlook of the Government he represented. Over these you had a total unknown, a Conservative whose credentials were purely those of the image of the party that had been so recently repudiated at a national referendum.

Part two has to do with the worrisome question: if an illustrious member of the socialist government gets clobbered in a socialist constituency, mustn't it be that the entire country has suddenly turned anti-Labour, and that therefore the British Government is itself lacking the franchise it ought to have in order to pursue its ideological idiocies as the true representatives of the British people?

IF THE SOCIALISTS will admit a gentle knock from the direction of common sense, they might meditate on the current situation in England. Their best political ally is not any thirst by the people to go on to the next serial episode in the drama of socialism, but rather the anesthetizing sterility of the British Conservative Party, whose opposition to British socialism has been about as convincing as Nelson Rockefeller's opposition to Lyndon Johnson. So they voted socialist, and moments later found the kind of dismalness they had known before under Attlee (Earl Attlee, as he now is, having retired from commonhood): tariffs up, new taxes threatened, stock market down, capital expatriation, more socialization for the sake of socialization . . . The same day Walker went down to defeat, General Motors announced that 92 per cent of its workers now, pursuant to a profit sharing plan, own stock in the company they work for.

Sunday Poem

FORGET AND REMEMBER

Forget each kindness that you do
As soon as you have done it,
Forget the praise that falls on you
The moment you have won it;
Forget the slander that you hear
Before you can repeat it;
Forget each slight, each spite, each sneer,
Whenever you may meet it.
Remember every kindness done
To you whate'er its measure;
Remember praise by others won
And pass it on with pleasure;
Remember those who lend you aid
And be a grateful debtor;
Remember every promise made
And keep it to the letter.

Sweetest Phrases

Did you ever consider what the six sweetest phrases in the American language are? Well, here are the six that some writers say:

I Love you. Dinner is served. All is forgiven. Sleep until noon. Keep the change. And here's that five.

Businessman Lingo

In case you haven't ever thought about it, the American businessman has a lingo all his own. To a "foreigner" with just an academic knowledge of the lingo, it must be a hard puzzle to untangle. For the benefit of our foreign readership —if there are any—and maybe for just a plain old American — we publish today this handy glossary:

A PROGRAM — Any assignment that can't be completed by one telephone call.

TO EXPEDITE — To confound confusion with commotion.

CHANNELS — The trail left by interoffice memos.

CO-ORDINATOR — The guy who has a desk between two expediters.

CONSULTANT (OR EXPERT) — Any ordinary guy more than 50 miles from home.

TO ACTIVATE — To make carbons and add more names to the memo.

TO IMPLEMENT A PROGRAM — Hire more people and expand the office.

UNDER CONSIDERATION — Never heard of it.

UNDER ACTIVE CONSIDERATION — We're looking in the files for it.

A CONFERENCE—A place where conversation is substituted for the dreariness of labor and the lonliness of thought.

REORIENTATION — Getting use to working again.

RELIABLE SOURCE — The guy you just met.

UNIMPEACHABLE SOURCE — The guy who started the rumor originally.

A CLARIFICATION—To fill the background with so many details that the foreground goes underground.

WE ARE MAKING A SURVEY — We need more time to think of an answer.

SEE ME, OR LET'S DISCUSS — Come down to my office, I'm lonesome.

GIVE US the benefit of your present thinking—We'll listen to what you have to say as long as it doesn't interfere with what we've already decided to do.

WE WILL ADVISE you in due course — If we figure it out, we'll let you know.

TO GIVE SOMEONE the picture — A long, confused, and inaccurate statement to a newcomer.

A Thank You

A thank you and a tip of the hat goes to Bart Rainey of Bastrop for his comments about the Monkey and Man poem carried in last Sunday's column, and also for the nice things about the column.

Bart wrote in part .. . . "I got a big kick out of reading the poem about man and the monkeys as contributed by one of your readers. However, after reading it I cannot help but wonder if perhaps I am the "author unknown" as mentioned by the contributor. If so, the only part I regret is that "unknown" part, inasmuch as I have written and published ten books of verse, am presently syndicated in New England and Southern Canada, and have a small radio syndicate made up of my writings. I am sending along a poem I wrote nearly 40 years ago; strangely enough I find it very similar in content to the poem in your last Sunday's column. If the contribution was "borrowed" from my brainchild, some of the paraphrasing didn't do "Ole Pappy" justice; if not, then it all goes to prove again that sometimes the minds of authors do indeed travel in the same channels of thought. Either way it was good reading and I enjoyed it a lot."

After reading Bart's poem he sent along, we believe the article published last Sunday had to come from his output. Some day in the not too distant future we'll publish the one sent in to us by Bart, who is president and general manager of Radio Station KVOB at Bastrop.

OVERHEARD in a Twin Cities restaurant: A waiter asked the customer, "will you have your cup filled again with tea or coffee?"

Replied the customer, "If what I had last was coffee, I want tea; and if tea, I want coffee. At any rate I want a change."

LUCKY DAD — Recently a sophomore wrote his dad from college here, saying, "Dad, you're a lucky man. You won't have to buy new books for me next semester. I am taking last year's work over again." Wonder if the message got through?

Good Idea, Maybe

Up in Eatontown, N.J., an eighth grade teacher is conducting an experiment that may yield benefits far beyond school years. Seems she assigned all her boy pupils to home economics for 10 weeks and put all the girls in shop. Already the boy are turning out reasonably digestible apple pies and the girls are proving that you don't have to be a man to make a bookcase or rig an electrical circuit.

The experience should serve well in later life, for it is a happy home and a rare one where Mom can fix a leaky faucet and Pop can step in and whip up dinner in an emergency.

In marriage, as in athletics, they say nothing succeeds like a well-balanced team.

Stretching A Point

All of us, no doubt, frequently stretch a point — particularly when we want things our way. This little gem vividly illustrates this idea.

Seems an antique collector, passing through a small village, stopped to watch an old man chopping wood with an ancient ax.

"That's a mighty old ax you have there," he remarked.

"Yes," said the villager, "it once belonged to George Washington."

Different Meanings

Ever notice how the meaning of words have changed through the years . . . and have you ever kept tab on how many words used in the average conversation are employed incorrectly? Here are just a few we ran across the other day:

1. Dad — That is now used in teen talks to mean any member of the male sex whom you're addressing directly. Family relationship has nothing whatever to do with this use of dad.

2. Cute, for example, has a different meaning than men use it in describing a person of the opposite sex. The actual definition means — "Sharp, clever or shrewd."

3. Fringe. This word didn't start out meaning what the average American associates with it today. When first used, it was originated in England and applied to a certain style of hair-do for British girls. On an American girl, it would be called bangs.

TWIN CITIES WEEK IN REVIEW

Federal Pledges Issue Confusing

By RICHARD TYLER
World Staff Writer

One of the reasons Alexander was great is the fact that he cut the Gordian Knot, rather than attempt unraveling it.

An Alexander, or a Solomon, probably would have been welcome last week, as the federal-state-local confrontation on aid money threatened to become as snarled as that famous Phyrgian rope Alex hacked.

TYLER

Briefly, there were meetings held and meetings planned, but apparently nothing definite was set, as the March 3 deadline for signing non-discrimination pledges approached.

Compounding the situation for local school boards was uncertainty as to whether they could sign the agreements, even if they wished. From the governor came the statement that state laws wouldn't prevent signing, while other sources intimated signing could result in cut-off of state funds.

An opinion from Louisiana Atty. Gen. Jack P. F. Gremillion is expected early next week. Friday, from Baton Rouge, came the notice that school systems under court order to desegregate need not sign, but that applies only in four parishes.

Also from Baton Rouge, the governor indicated he felt most boards would refuse to sign, and Uncle Sam might be compelled to back-track.

Meanwhile, in Ruston, north Louisiana's educational chieftains and legal advisors met in closed conference to mull the problem, but local leaders, describing the session, said only that it was decided to "wait and see."

Along another line, Monroe's W. E. Whetstone, president of the State Board of Education, set a meeting of his group for next Wednesday to consider signing. Still another meeting was held Thurday, with state officials going to Washington, and reports may be released on that one soon.

To paraphrase Alice, things seemed to be getting involved-er and involved-er.

At about the same time, however, the Ouachita Parish Police Jury was working its way out of an involved issue of its own — that of providing rural fire protection.

A special meeting Thursday night produced the usual sparks, but ended with the setting of a date for a bond and tax election — April 6.

The plan to provide two fire stations, rather than four, was put to another vote, passing 11-8, with the jurors going on to call for a $175,000 bond issue and a 10-year, 1.75 mill tax levy. The bonds, to be paid out in 15 years or less, would finance construction and equipping of the stations — one east of the river, one west — and the millage is thought adequate to finance maintenance and operation.

Ward three and ward four jurors expressed doubt either measure will pass, but as Robert Downing, ward 10, suggested, at least voters will have had the opportunity to act on something.

The Louisiana Baptist Evangelistic Conference was held Monday through Wednesday at West Monroe's First Baptist Church and, we hear, drew good crowds for the many inspirational messages brought by outstanding ministerial leaders from several states. It was a perfect opportunity to get Dr. C. E. Autrey, late of West Monroe, back to town, and he got an enthusiastic welcome from numerous admirers and former flock-members. Dr. Autrey is a former pastor of the West Monroe church.

The West Monroe Chamber of Commerce also was busy during the week, as was the Junior Chamber in Monroe.

Committee meetings headlined happenstances in West Monroe, including those of groups charged with nominating a slate of new directors and with pounding out a 1965 budget. The nominating committee, composed of outgoing directors, chose 10 nominees, from which five will be elected by membership vote and installed at the annual Chamber banquet March 2. Their names, still pending confirmation, were not released immediately.

Meanwhile, a special Chamber committee had its first meeting Friday morning, though developments were announced. It's the one, headed by Dr. T. Scott Strickland, which was formed to look into ramifications of the operation of dual school systems in the parish. Earlier studies have suggested overlapping services are being provided by the Monroe and parish systems, and taxing inequities have been mentioned as well. The Strickland group has been directed by President Bert Hatten to seek data from greater depths; both systems have pledged continued cooperation, though a year - old Chamber request for inquiries into the situation by state officials apparently is gathering dust.

Speaking of that Chamber banquet reminds us, by the way, that tickets were pronounced ready for distribution. Letters went out Wednesday offering two reservations per member for each of about 400 members. Feb. 25 was set as confirmation deadline, after which remaining ducats will go on the block for us general publics.

The Jaycees had a big affair Monday night when they met to present a Distinguished Service Award to Monroe Planning Director George Parsons as the "Outstanding Young Man of the Year. That rarest of combinations — a live wire with perspective — and good civic head on his shoulders, the 34-year-old Parsons was cited for his planning, of course, which has brought the city up on a bootstrap to development patterns worthy of Metropolis.

Hardly less a factor was his work as president last year of the Monroe Optimist Club, in which spot Parsons proved the bane of pessimism, leading the group to "Honor Club" laurels from Optimist International. He was a cog in community beautification in addition, and was a strong left arm, to say the least, in advancing plans on the city's gigantic capital improvement program.

Sticking with the Jaycees, we see where they were planning the program for the state board meeting they'll be hosting Feb. 12-14. About 600 delegates are expected, and there'll be an address by the national Jaycee president. Three "outstanding young men of the state" will be selected on the program, along with other awards.

It was cap-and-gown time at Northeast Louisiana State College Tuesday as the school held mid-year commencement ceremonies to distribute 127 bachelor's degrees and 11 for master's work. Featured speaker for the occasion was Fourth District U.S. Rep. Joe D. Waggonner, who stirred everybody but surprised few by pointing out that the nation is more spiritually-weakened than ever before.

Also Tuesday, the City of Monroe passed an ordinance banning parking on DeSiard Street, from Ninth to 26th Streets, after June 1. The main drag thence will be a four-lane drag in those sectors. Downtown parking won't be effected.

Mayor W. L. Howard announced the same day that he was formally protesting planned rate hikes on automobile insurance and that he has asked a public hearing in Monroe on the subject. Howard made his feelings known in a letter to the Louisiana Rating Commission and the insurance commissioner. Said he in essence: Cost boosts in Ouachita Parish will be about 29 per cent, only about 14 per cent elsewhere, and that's not fair, or, if it is, why?

Other opposition came to the fore Thursday night as north Louisiana grocers gathered in Monroe to pose possible solutions to what they called price-fixing by the Louisiana Milk Commission. Apparently they had in mind mainly milk and ice cream, and they said agency policies were resulting in higher consumer prices, coupled with lower retail profits. Upshot was that the group banded officially, into an Independent Retail Grocers Association of Northeast Louisiana, named Ed West of Monroe as president, and appointed a legal committee to seek an injunction against the Milk Commission.

There were great doings Monday night by the Ouachita Parish Farm Bureau when the organization gathered, several hundred strong, for some of the lip-smackingest barbecue we've tasted, plus top annual honors bestowal at its big yearly banquet.

The World In Focus
Surprises Offset Mourning

By John Cale

To Rest

THE DEATH of Britain's Sir Winston Churchill on Sunday appeared to set in motion a series of planned and predicted events. The former prime minister, statesman, military official and writer had expressed his desires as to how his funeral should be conducted. Thus British subjects were ready to fall in line with a week of formal mourning and laying to rest one of the great men of the century.

THEN CAME surprises. A scheduled election in England came through with a startling upset for Prime Minister Harold Wilson's Labor Party government. Conservative Ronald Buxton defeated British Foreign Secretary Patrick Gordon Walker in an election for a seat in the House of Commons. Some observers saw the outcome as the most important event in British politics since the wartime Churchill government was voted out of office only three months after Hitler Germany fell.

In Washington, the week began with President Johnson in the hospital with what was described as a cold and fever.

While Mr. Johnson minimized the illness, told newsmen he wanted to attend the funeral of Sir Winston Churchill on Saturday, this was decided against by mid-week.

JOHNSON DISPUTED the theory that his decision not to wear a topcoat Inauguration Day brought on the cold. If the inauguration had anything to do with it, he said, it was because of "a little fatigue."

As a matter of fact, he said, he got too hot because he was wearing "electric underwear." What he meant was thermal underwear — his were not actually wired as is an electric blanket.

Mrs. Johnson was at Camp David, the presidential retreat in nearby Maryland, when the President went to the hospital. Then she entered in the same hospital, with a heavy cold.

VICE PRESIDENT Hubert H. Humphrey, on learning that the president was on the road to recovery, relaxed.

He revealed that when he got a call from the White House saying that the President was being taken to the hospital "I didn't know what to say or do. I just walked around the house for a while."

The President, despite his discomfort at that time, had a secretary relay a message to Humphrey:

"You tell Hubert to carry on and fulfill his duties. We want everyone at work."

The President and Mrs. Johnson were discharged from Bethesda Naval Hospital on Tuesday. But talk of more definite provisions for succession in case of presidential disability became stronger as is usually the case when a chief executive is hospitalized for any reason.

McCormack

A RATHER positive statement in this respect came from House Speaker John McCormack, who said in an interview following President Johnson's brief illness that "a great load" was removed from his mind when Hubert Humphrey was officially installed as vice president. For the preceding 14 months, Representative McCormack — already in his 70's — followed Mr. Johnson in line for the nation's highest office.

Unexpected

THE UNEXPECTED worked its way into capitals of the Middle East and Southeast Asia. Iran's Premier Ali Mansour, considered out of danger following an assassination attempt Thursday of the previous week, died Tuesday.

Surgeons had removed bullets from his throat and spleen and had given him a good chance for recovery.

Mansour

The pro-Western Mansour was shot twice outside the Majlis Parliament Building in Tehran by Mohammed Bokharai, a 21-year-old high school student. Bokharai and two alleged accomplices are in police custody.

SHAH MOHAMMED Reza Pahlevi charged in a nationwide radio-television address the attack was instigated by an "unholy alliance between black reactionaries and Red destructive elements" — the extremist Moslem clerics and Communist agitators accused of trying to block the shah's reform program.

The shah spoke after doctors had reported a sudden change for the worse in the condition of Mansour, who was the youngest premier in Iran's history. The monarch said that if Mansour died, he would appoint "someone like him" to carry out his reforms.

WITHIN AN hour after Mansour's death, the shah named Amir Abass Houvaida, 50, as prime minister. A friend of Mansour, Houvaida was expected to continue with the reform program outlined last March. He has served as Iranian finance minister under Mansour since that time and has been active in negotiations for agreements with major western oil companies relating to offshore explorations.

Khanh Returns

EVENTS LAST WEEK in Southeast Asia apparently were a source of surprise for Senator J. William Fulbright of Arkansas, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

After a briefing Tuesday by Central Intelligence Director John A. McCone on the situation in South Vietnam, Fulbright was quoted as saying:

"I DON'T see any signs of another coup."

The following day, South Vietnamese generals returned Lieutenant General Nguyen Khanh to power in a bloodless military coup, and the Buddhist opponents of the ousted civilian government began jubilant celebrations.

FOR THE UNITED STATES the latest government upheaval in South Viet Nam came at a difficult period in a war already bedeviled by political division.

Gen. Khanh

It presented U.S. officials with a bidder for power, General Khanh, whom they once highly respected but with whom they have recently been at odds.

There was no immediate comment or assessment from the State Department, where the first reports of the South Vietnamese army's action in Saigon came in news dispatches.

FOR SEVERAL MONTHS Washington had been looking unhappily on the progress of the war against Communist guerrillas. Into the struggle has gone more than $300 million in aid a year. Some 23,000 military "advisers" are in South Viet Nam; more than 230 of them have lost their lives since 1961.

Only Tuesday, U.S. officials released figures showing communist infiltration from Red North Viet Nam to South Viet Nam, through Laos, increased during 1964 to the highest level ever.

NGO DINH DIEM was South Viet Nam's chief of state for eight years and one month — from October 23, 1955, until he was assassinated on November 1, 1963.

In the 15 months since Diem's overthrow, South Viet Nam has had seven major government upheavals and rarely has been without political turbulence or the threat of it.

Congress

The brief stay in the hospital for President Johnson caused no letup in the flurry of activity between the executive and legislative departments of the government.

Early in the week, there was the President's budget message that called for expenditures just under $100 billion for the fiscal year opening in July, 1965.

A significant appointment was that of Nicholas Katzenbach to the Cabinet post of Attorney General. Katzenbach has served as assistant and deputy attorney general since 1961. He has acted in the capacity of the Cabinet post since former Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy resigned to run for the U.S. Senate in the State of New York.

Katzenbach

Ramsey Clark, son of Justice Tom Clark of the U.S. Supreme Court, was named by the President to fill the position of deputy attorney general vacated by Katzenbach. Both appointments are subject to Senate approval.

Later in the week, the President asked Congress to approve "at once" two constitutional amendments on presidential disability and vice presidential succession as well as the abolition of the Electoral College as it now stands.

In a special message, Mr. Johnson endorsed a pending amendment to permit the president to fill a vice presidential vacancy and to establish procedures to enable the vice president to take over when the president is incapacitated.

There was also submitted a suggested amendment to abolish the presidential Electoral College as it now stands but retain the system of state electoral votes. Voters would vote directly for president and vice president instead of for electors.

The President told the House and Senate: "Action on these measures now will allay future anxiety among our own people — and among the peoples of the world — in the event senseless tragedy or unforseeable disability could strike again either or both of the principal offices of our constitutional system.

"If we act now, without undue delay, we shall have moved closer to achieving perfection of the great constitutional document on which the strength and success of our system have rested for nearly two centuries."

Baker Case

ALSO IN WASHINGTON the explosive Bobby Baker case flared again last week with Republican charges that Representative Emanuel D. Celler's New York law firm paid $2,500 to Baker's law firm.

Celler, describing as "utterly fallacious" the account of the payment given by Senator John J. Williams, scheduled a news conference to give details of his side of the story.

In a Senate speech Williams said that Baker, the former secretary to Senate Democrats under investigation for his business dealings, had shared a $10,000 legal fee from the Sweetwater Development Co. of Dallas, Tex., with Celler's law firm.

The senator charged the money was connected with work being done by the firm for the Interior Department on a salt water conversion plant in Wrightsville Beach, North Carolina.

SWEETWATER, owned by the Murchison financial interests, holds a $1.03 million contract for the plant. Investigators for the Senate Rules Committee, which is conducting the Baker investigation, have been checking into the contract.

Celler, chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, said in an interview later that Williams was "utterly confused" and "all balled up". He said the $10,000 was a legal fee for complicated work on lease operations for supermarkets in New York and New Jersey.

State Level

GOVERNOR JOHN McKeithen of Louisiana, after taking the position that individual school boards in the state must decide whether or not they desire to sign pledges for continued federal aid, sent representatives to Washington last week for a briefing on civil rights tied to federal aid to schools.

At a press conference Thursday, McKeithen said he thinks the federal government will defeat its purpose unless it modifies the civil rights mandate to school boards. He pointed out if school boards took voluntary steps to comply, many might face public recall moves.

"Many school boards can't sign and white as well as Negro students involved would be affected by any losses of federal funds," the governor said.

"It is my feeling that if the Health, Education and Welfare Department insists upon its directive it would be defeating the very purposes it sought," McKeithen added.

He also said he is ready to sign whatever is necessary for any school boards wanting to comply.

Contrasts

THE PASSING of Sir Winston Churchill does not leave the world wanting for further information for those wishing to carry out research relating to his life and times.

Students will have no trouble in the coming years. They will read his speeches, they will look at television reruns of the chubby man in a derby poking around battlefields with a cane, they will grin at his growl.

But, they will understand him, just as the outnumbered Greeks at Marathon would have understood him 400 years before Christ, for he was and will remain the contemporary man of all seasons.

CHURCHILL WAS more than a symbol of the ageless search for victory in the ashes of disaster. So was Napoleon, as the world learned to its regret in his last blood soaked journey from Elba to Waterloo.

He was a symbol of something else, too, just as precious and discernible in those years of the 1940's when the world was consumed by fright and fury in the oven of war. He put it this way: "The future towards which we are marching, across bloody fields and frightful manifestations of destruction, must surely be based upon the broad and simple virtues and upon the nobility of mankind."

ON THE OTHER hand, Russian students will never know that Nikita S. Khrushchev was premier if they depend on a new textbook on Soviet history. Khrushchev in the book is the forgotten man.

The book was authorized for publication on December 3, six weeks after Khrushchev was ousted from power. It went on sale recently.

About all that students will learn of Khrushchev if they rely solely on the textbook is:

A group of prominent party and state leaders, including Khrushchev was assigned to military work at the start of World War II.

But there is not one word of Khrushchev's appointment as chairman premier of the Council of Ministers in 1958, or of his connection with any of the dramatic domestic and international events that followed the death of Josef Stalin.

Has Education Failed Nation?

System Failure?

EDITOR'S NOTE — Hyman George Rickover has carved out two separate careers — as expert in nuclear ship propulsion and as goad on the conscience of American education. In the latter role he often speaks in strident voice of what he sees as faults in the school system. In this article, Vice Adm. Rickover asserts that faulty statistics are misleading Americans about their educational system, and blocking necessary reforms.

Great events throw long shadows. That is why it is customary to observe their anniversaries. We might with profit have used the occasion of the seventh anniversary of sputnik last October to reflect on its significance and to take stock of how we reacted to the challenge it posed for us.

Sputnik dramatized the fact that today a nation's position in the world is closely related to the number and competence of its scientists and technologists, as well as to the educational level of the general population. We were more deeply shocked by this Russian achievement than most other people because we took for granted that the first man in space would be an American. Were we not first in wealth and military power? Most Americans believed this proved we were supreme in science, technology and education as well. It seemed incredible to them that Russia should excell in these areas. Has Sputnik taught us to eschew illusions? Not in education, I am sorry to say. There we continue to repeat cliches based on misleading statistics that hide the true state of our position vis-a-vis other countries with whom we are in competition on the world stage.

Sputnik challenged our scientific and technological performance in a direct and obvious manner. To this we responded promptly. We proceeded to mount a major offensive; we are still doing our best. In a less direct, less obvious way, it also challenged our educational performance. Here our response has been uncertain, faltering, and in no respect as positive as in the technological field. What made us react so differently to the several challenges implicit in a single event? To know the reasons is important for then we might find ways to speed a lagging response. Capacity to act without delay when change becomes necessary is one of the attributes that make a society viable, that keep a country at the top.

In the missile-space case we had several things going for us: the people on whom the country depends for action in the field, the scientists and technologists, were quick to see that Sputnik necessitated upgrading of our performance; they were willing to help bring this about. We had a concrete and practical problem. We set ourselves a clear cut goal which could be attained simply by investing enough money and skilled manpower. There was no organized opposition. So we went ahead with dispatch.

In the education case, none of these things were going for us, except money. Though ours is already the most costly school system in the world, in terms of its yield in genuine education, money has not been a major bar to reform; the following factors have: those directly responsible, the members of the educational establishment, were slow to grasp the significance of Sputnik for education, reluctant to admit that drastic reforms are necessary, strongly opposed to changes in the status quo which would adversely affect their vested interests. There was no organized opposition of this kind in the missile-space case.

School reform, moreover, is not a simple practical matter, especially not in this country where it is mixed up with all sorts of deep emotions. We cannot bring ourselves to look upon our schools as institutions charged with specific tasks they ought to perform as competently as possible; certainly as competently as schools in other advanced nations. We fail to recognize that life in all modern industrial countries now calls for much the same kind of intellectual competence, and that this competence can be acquired in no other way than by formal schooling. Many Americans have almost as fervent an attachment to our present school system as to the Constitution. To submit evidence that it is less efficient than others smacks to them of treason. This makes reform difficult.

Then, too, we have never agreed on precise goals for American education; it is therefore not surprising we have been unable to set clear-cut goals for educational reform. Even if we agreed on goals, where would we find the skilled manpower to attain these goals? No really significant improvement is possible unless we raise the intellectual and educational qualifications of teachers. How can we do this, in the face of the determination of educational officialdom that existing certification requirements be enforced. These are an insult to intelligent people, a useless bore to bright students. Intelligence is at a premium today; it will not be lured into education unless it is appreciated and rewarded in our school system.

From whatever point we look at the reform problem, we come up against organized opposition by defenders of the status quo habitual ways of thinking and acting goes counter to the nation's interest in having a first-class system of education. Of course, no solidly entrenched bureaucracy ever submits meekly to demands that it reform itself. Whether it be concerned with education or any other matter, the response will be the same: the power of the organization will be used to try to muzzle would-be reformers within the bureaucracy, to attack and vilify outside critics, and to fashion so admirable an image of the achievements of the organization that popular clamor for reform will be stilled.

No wonder we have had more talk of reform than action; more experimentation, gadgetry, costly mechanical gimmicks than fundamental changes that would make our school system responsive to individual and national needs. There have been changes for the better, but these have been sporadic and slow; little has been done to remedy the basic weaknesses in American education. We are still the only advanced country where direction of the educational enterprise is in the hands of administrators rather than teachers; our teachers still are less qualified than their counterparts abroad; we prolong comprehensive schooling unduly; there is chaos in educational nomenclature and academic degrees.

Critics like myself, whose concern with educational deficiencies antedates Sputnik, did rather hope the Russian spectacular would lend urgency to our pleas for reform. Perhaps it has but, to a reflective observers not shackled by commitment to the status quo, it seems as if there has merely been a change in the wording of the cliches that are being put forth in order to soothe the public by stimulating educational chauvinism. Ten years ago, the cliches one heard were: "Ours is the best school system in the world; only we educate all children; we pioneered free public education." These are not often heard now, instead everyone says that "We have many times more people in higher education; 25 — or if the speaker's enthusiasm carries him away, 40 — per cent of our youth attend a university compared to 4 or 5 per cent abroad." None of these cliches have any basis in fact but by sheer repetition they have become embedded in American folklore. They flow from the mouths of speakers as automatically as light turns on when you press a switch; they sink into the minds of audiences with the ease of self-evident truth.

What keeps these cliches alive are the statistics put out by the educational establishment. These are compiled by people whose unfamiliarity with education in other advanced countries leads them to equate educational achievement levels that are widely divergent, thereby creating an illusion that young Americans get more "higher" education than do Europeans. The catch is in the adjective. What we call higher isn't considered so abroad. We label our schools and degrees differently; thus what is called "university" or rates no higher than an academic secondary school or a vocational institution below university level; what we call high school would be a "middle" or a "continuation elementary" school. Faulty statistics and labels that overvalue American education by three to four years perpetuate the illusion that we have a mass system of "higher" education.

I have tried for years to combat these illusions by collecting and publishing concrete facts about European education. We must be realistic. It is European education we should equal — better still excel; there is no doubt we do splendidly in comparison with education in the Congo or Outer Mongolia; in my books on English and Swiss education I give documented information on educational achievements abroad which enables the public to compare foreign school systems with our own. Here is what I found to be fact concerning the true amount of schooling our children obtain. Compare it with the fiction of education cliches.

What has to be kept in mind is that the educational value of a school year in Europe is at least a third higher than in America. This is so because their school year contains more hours of classroom instruction. During each hour more is learned because children follow carefully planned sequential programs that avoid duplication and leave no serious gaps in subject knowledge; they study more intensively, do more homework and are better taught. European standards of teacher education are notably higher, especially at the secondary level. Also, teachers are not enthralled to pedagogic blunders dreamed up by researchers; for instance, the notion that serious study must be postponed because children, supposedly, are not ready at age 6 and need more playground activities. Nor is European education handicapped by the ideological strait jacket that imposes comprehensive schooling to age 18. This cannot but make for great inefficiency and an appalling waste of our children's best learning years.

The result is that Europeans attain any given educational level years before our children get there. At the end of their compulsory school period they will have had at least as much schooling as Americans at the end of 11 years. While abroad every normal child absorbs this much education because the authorities enforce 100 per cent attendance, here so many drop out that more than a third of our youth do not at the present moment complete the equivalent of this European minimum.

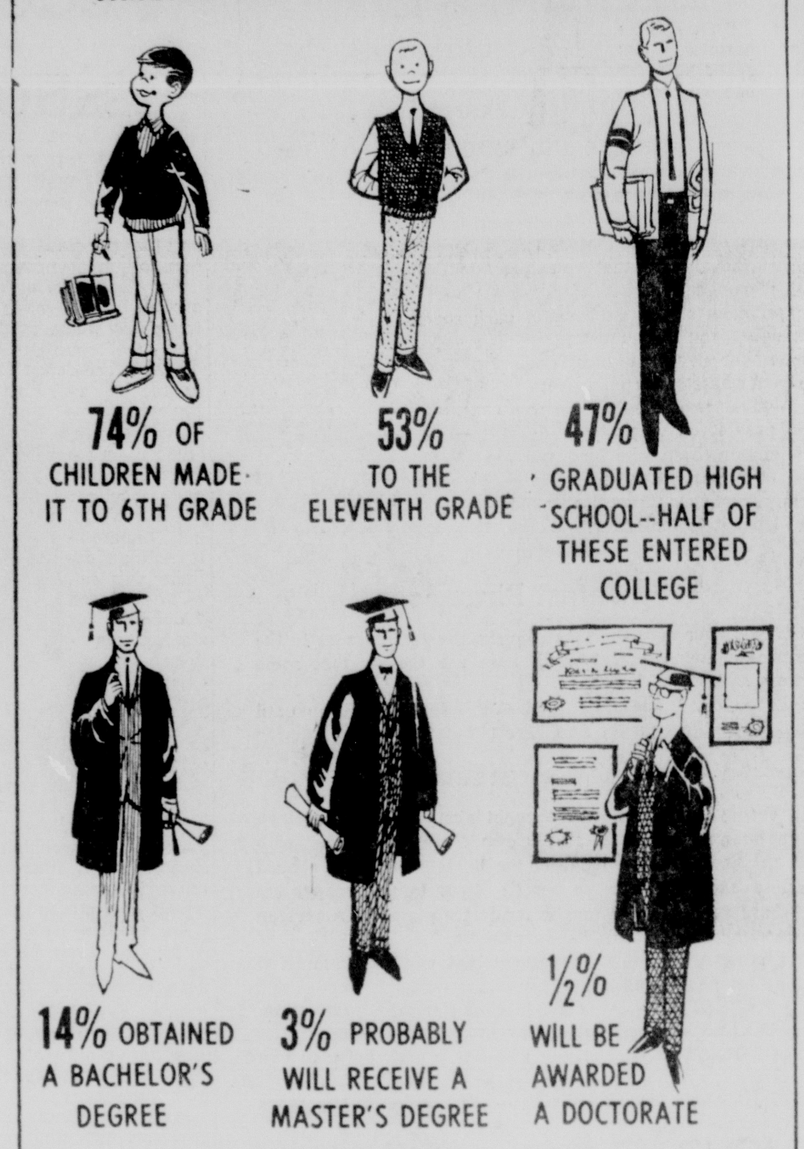
It is estimated that in Western Europe only about 10 to 15 per cent of youth are content with the minimum; the rest either continue at school or begin a combined apprenticeship- part-time school program, lasting two to four years and culminating in an examination that yields a diploma in a skilled trade. In some parts of Europe this vocational education is compulsory for those who quit school after eight years. The combination of elementary and vocational education amounts to more schooling than most American high school graduates obtain. Enrollment figures show that not until 1958 did we manage to get half our youth through the full high school course.

What of the stereotyped boast that 5 to 10 times more Americans than Europeans attend a university or college? Alas, it is a semantic illusion. To equate the European university with our college is absurd. In the course of the 19th century the European university, which once consisted of a college or undergraduate faculty and three graduate faculties, was transformed into an exclusively graduate institution. Simultaneously, what we call college or undergraduate education was shifted from the faculty of arts of the old university to the upper grades of the academic secondary school which prepares for the European baccalaureate. Consequently, the American college, in European terms, is concerned with secondary education; only our graduate departments and postbaccalaureate professional schools are the equivalent of the continental university. Because of the stretch-out, in American education, it takes a college-preparatory high school course plus four years of college to reach the bachelor level here, which Europeans attain in 12, at most 13 years. Vocational and professional colleges are roughly comparable with European technical schools below university level. Every time we use the term "college" when we speak of a European university, or "high school" when we mean a gymnasium, lycee, or grammar school, we perpetuate illusions that do us no good.

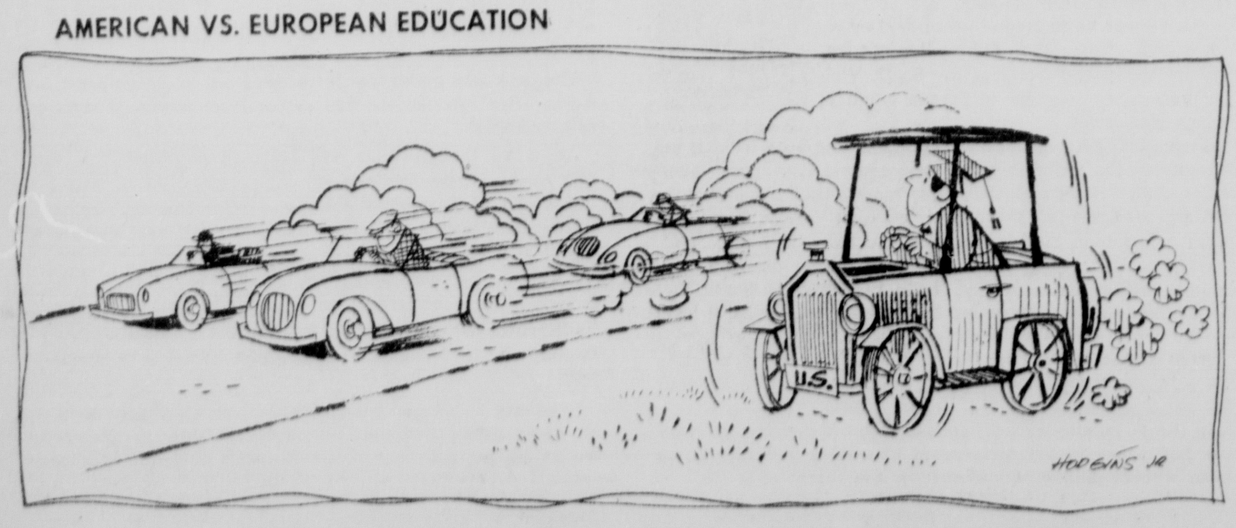
It is instructive to follow a class of first graders on their climb up the education ladder. On the basis of enrollment figures in the hearings before the general subcommittee on education, Committee on Education and Labor, House of Representatives, 87th Congress, first session, H.R. 4970, and degree awards listed in the American Council on Education's fact book on higher education, this is what happened to the children who entered school in 1944: 74 per cent made it to the sixth grade, 53 per cent to the eleventh, and forty-seven per cent graduated from high school. About half of these entered college; 13 to 14 per cent obtained some sort of bachelor's degree, 2½ to 3 per cent will probably receive a master's degree and one-third to one-half of one per cent a doctorate.

These percentages are much higher than a few years ago. According to the statistical yearbook, 60 per cent of the population 25 years or over has had fewer than 11 years of schooling, 10 per cent five years or less; only 7½ per cent have had four years of college or more. We have yet to achieve an attendance record comparable to that in Prussia in 1825 — 139 years ago — when every child between 7 and 14 was in school. In 1880, the illiteracy rate of German recruits was one half of one per cent, in 1925 that of Japanese recruits less than one per cent, but today we reject one quarter of our draftees because they can't read a simple manual. Estimates of functional illiterates vary between 8 and 11 million. In Denmark they have an amiable argument whether there are one or two illiterates in the country!

While Europe has for some years had a shortage of unskilled workers and must import foreigners to do common labor, we have a surplus. We have masses of young people so deficient in mental and manual skills that no advanced society could provide them all with jobs, except on a charity basis. Their tragedy makes a mockery of our constant boast that we are the best educated, most literate people on earth. So severe is our shortage of professional people that we shop abroad for men with doctorates, much to the chagrin of countries that have spent large public sums on the education of these bright young people.



AMERICAN VS. EUROPEAN EDUCATION



There's A Church Home For You in the Twin Cities . . .

Practice hospitality ungrudgingly to one another.

LIKE A VISIT to another world is a tour of the valley of Goreme in central Turkey, a land of ancient churches and monuments carved in volcanic rock. This is the Chavushin Church, typical of the sanctuaries. A steel ladder has replaced wornout rock stairs. The church is one of 365, about 60 of which are accessible. Some still are bright with frescoes. Their dates are unknown, but the valley was a religious center from the ninth to the 15th centuries. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

IN SOLID ROCK

Remote Turkish Valley Is Land Of Churches

(EDITOR'S NOTE — In a remote Turkish valley are 365 churches, cut into solid rock — one for each day in the year. Inside they are decorated with frescoes and paintings from the New Testament — and no one knows when they were built or why.)

By AHMET BALAN

GOREME, Turkey (AP) — The valley of Goreme in central Turkey is studded with abandoned caves and thousands of strange towers, spires, pyramids and cones of various sizes and shapes.

A thick layer of white dust covers the earth and innumerable rock pyramids rise toward the sky. The lack of signs of life for miles around gives the valley the appearance of the moon in science fiction stories. Wandering in this fantastic and colorful place, one wonders if he has somehow entered another world.

There is nothing to disturb the tranquility. It is terribly quiet all around under the blazing sun, as it has been for the last seven centuries.

REMINDER

Occasionally a white-bearded man riding a donkey, or a veiled woman with a basket of grapes, remind the visitor he is still in this world.

Scattered among the boulders there are 365 churches cut inside solid rock. Only about 60 of these are presently accessible.

The legend is that a church was carved out of rock for every day of the year. The Byzantines are said to have sought refuge in them more than a thousand years ago.

The full history of this strange land is not yet known, and it is not possible to give a date when these chapels and churches were built. It is believed, however, that this religious center enjoyed its most brilliant period between the ninth and thirteenth centuries.

SPELLBOUND

Visitors are spellbound. Tourists, mostly German, American, French and British, exclaim their surprise and wonder at this rich and uncommon treasure.

How was this valley formed? One explanation offered by geologists is that the now-dead Erciyes volcano — Mt. Argeus — in the central Anatolian province of Kayseri, about 60 miles east of here, spewed gigantic rocks and lava about 10,000 years ago, forming hundreds of layers of soft rock. Erosion is credited for the formation of the cones and spires which inspired the Byzantines to carve out temples and dwellings in the soft volcanic stuff.

Some of the churches, still rich in frescoes, paintings and ornaments, are easy to enter. Others are almost inaccessible, either lying deep under ground or high up in a rock.

The only way to reach them is to crawl through labyrinth-like corridors and tunnels, or climb wooden or steel ladders that now replace the ancient rock stairs worn out through the ages.

A good number of holy portraits, ornamentations and sacred paintings on the walls and ceilings have been destroyed by nature or defaced by the last inhabitants of the valley who were Moslem Turks. Yet many of the frescoes are good enough to illustrate the civilization of the bygone era in full splendor.

Scenes from the New Testament adorn the walls of the Tokali Kilise — The Church with the Buckle. The name is derived from an ornament in the vault.

Karanlik Kilise — the Dark Church — 12 by 9 feet in size, is accessible only if one wears sneakers and climbs the slippery and rugged terrain. After crawling through several tunnels and holes inside the huge stone, one reaches the inside of the sanctuary housing several tombs, now empty, and adorned with a couple of pillars. It is rich in frescoes and sacred paintings, but a flashlight is needed to see them.

ONE OF SMALLEST

Elmali Kilise — the Church with the Apple — 16 by 18 feet, is underground and accessible only by crawling down a well-like entrance carved in the rock. It is one of the smallest churches in the valley, and one of the few with almost undisturbed and complete decoration comprising paintings of the life of Jesus, prophets and saints.

Another interesting sanctuary is Carikli Kilise — the Church with the Sandals. Two footprints in the rock under a painting of the holy ascension are said to be a copy of those of Jesus in the Sanctuary of the Ascension in Jerusalem.

The Chapel of St. Barbara is built in the same rock as that of the Church with the Apple. Paintings of St. Theodorus and St. George face the entrance, and next to a big cross on the wall is a painting of St. Barbara.

A two-story monastery and refectory is next to the Dark Church. It is decorated with frescoes, crosses, a small table and chair carved of stone and a basin scooped out on the floor.

Two miles south of the valley lies the village of Ortahisar with the only hotel for miles around. Here the donkey competes with the truck, and women weave carpets or are engaged in handicrafts. Men work in fertile fields of volcanic soil.

Thousands of tourists come to Ortahisar every year to visit the petrified valley of Goreme.

HOSPITABLE

The women of the area cover their faces upon meeting any person they do not know. At home, however, the peasant women freely uncover their faces. They are hospitable and talkative.

Asked why they cover their faces in the street, they say: "It's the custom here, you know. Otherwise there'd be no end to gossip."

In the Ortahisar area, large underground warehouses have been carved from the soft rock. The cool, dry atmosphere inside preserves oranges and lemons for long periods. The local wine is also aged in cisterns cut into the rock.

About three miles south of Ortahisar, on the Uzengin River, are the "pigeon apartments," some of them in use over a thousand years. Pigeons nest in thousands of openings cut in the rock. Peasants collect their droppings for fertilizer.

Great Need In Mission Field Cited

The Methodist Board of Missions has announced its needs for new career missionaries for 1965. They range from A to Z — from missionary pastors in Alaska to a journalist-teacher to train Christian writers in Zambia.

The Board, which conducts the missionary work of The Methodist Church in the United States and 48 countries overseas, said in its annual announcement of missionary personnel needs that, as in the past, the types of missionaries and deaconesses needed are many and that qualifications for service are high. The Board's statement of personnel needs includes a list of specific openings for career missionaries in 23 countries of Africa, Asia and Latin America, and a description (though not a detailed listing) of needs for missionaries and deaconesses in the United States.

PERSONNEL NEEDS

In announcing the needs, the Board's Office of Missionary Personnel said: "The needs for new missionaries and deaconesses in 1965 are great, as they have been in the past. The work that must be done in the church's worldwide mission always seems to call for more qualified people than are available. New missionaries and deaconesses are essential if the church is to strengthen present work, increase momentum and meet new opportunities for witness and service.

"In the field of world missions, the younger churches overseas are calling this year for more missionary personnel with skills, preparation and experience. Men, women and couples are sought to perform a wide variety of tasks in the church's mission abroad. In home mission fields, the needs for missionaries and deaconesses continue to outrun the supply of qualified workers."

MANY VOCATIONS

The statement of missionary personnel needs for 1965 shows that workers are sought for many kinds of mission-related vocations in America. These include work directly under the Board of Missions and other types of work which are not under its direct administration but are related to the home missions program. There are special opportunities for deaconesses in several of the fields. The vocational openings include:

Pastors for new congregations and for inner-city and rural churches; Goodwill Industry executives; doctors, nurses, and other medical and hospital personnel for mission medical centers; workers with children and youth; directors of Christian education; rural church-and-community workers; pastors and other workers in special home mission areas such as Alaska and Hawaii; teachers for mission schools; community center workers of many kinds (social workers, recreation and camp leaders, etc.); administrators and houseparents in homes for children and youth; and various other openings.

Gideon Speaker Will Appear At Ministers' Meet

A Twin Cities businessman will be featured speaker at the monthly Monday noon dutch luncheon meeting of the Monroe Ministerial Alliance at Salvation Army headquarters, 105 Hart.

He is William B. Mann, who will discuss the work of the Gideon Society in distributing Bibles.

Activities for the coming year also will be discussed at the meeting, with presentation of a tentative outline for the program.

REV. W. A. WIMBS, pastor of Emmanuel Baptist Church, Wellerman Road, West Monroe, left Saturday for Jamaica in the West Indies where he will take part in an evangelistic campaign extending through Feb. 13. Five other pastors from Louisiana are accompanying him.

Graham Picture Will Be Shown

"World Fair Encounter," a film produced by Evangelist Billy Graham, will be shown today at 7:10 p.m. at College Place Baptist Church, 301 Sherrouse Ave., it was announced by the pastor, the Rev.T. Earl Ogg.

The film is based on the story of two young people who actually visited the fair during its first season of operation, and found spiritual inspiration at the Billy Graham Pavilion.

FIRST CHURCH OF GOD, MONROE

Evangelism And Sunday School Emphasized In Services, Activities

The First Church of God, 1513 South 3rd St. at Beauregard, Monroe, places strong emphasis on evangelism, Sunday school, and tithing. Last year 16 per cent of its budget went to its outreach programs, missions, colleges, camps and other activities of state, national and world scope.

Formation of the First Church of God had its start on December 30, 1956, when a small group of those who had worshipped at Prairie Road Church of God near Monroe, with the Rev. Carl R. Owens, pastor, expressed their desire for a church home within the City of Monroe.

FIRST SERVICE

The initial service of First Church was a prayer meeting held in the home of Mrs. Enola Oliveaux, January 2, 1957.

After finding a Nazarene Church building for sale at the present location, the group borrowed sufficient funds from the Revolving Loan Fund of the Louisiana Ministerial Assembly of the Church of God, for a down payment on the church and parsonage on Feb. 14, 1957.

The facilities consisted of a 40 by 70 foot concrete building which housed a sanctuary, two Sunday School classrooms, office, nursery, two rest rooms, and a separate five-room parsonage. The facilities were remodeled in July, 1958 and three classrooms were added within the main building, reducing the size of sanctuary.

Rev. Owens and his family resided in the parsonage until 1961, when they moved to their present home at 1700 Medra Drive, Monroe. A few months later, the old parsonage was converted into a classroom and office building.

The pastor pointed out that attendance at the church has increased about 10 per cent each year over the previous year.

PRESENT FACILITIES

There now are eight Sunday school classrooms, a nursery, and an office, in addition to the sanctuary. The facilities have air conditioning.

Pointing to the goals of the church, Rev. Owens said, "We eventually plan to have a graded worship program, arranged according to the various age groups, children, juniors, and adults church services.

The children's church, which is held at the same time as the morning worship services on Sunday at 10:50, was started a year ago, and the pastor added, "There's lots of interest. The children like it and want to come back at night for services." The children's church is for those in the four to seven age bracket.

The schedule of activities gives an indication of the pattern of the program toward serving all age groups.

On Sunday at 9:30 a.m. Sunday school teachers meet for worship, sign in and provide information on whether they contacted absentees. Visitation cards are turned in. Sunday school starts at 9:45 a.m.

The children's church which is conducted in the smaller building, is taught by Mrs. Howard P. Davis. The program includes Bible stories, flannelgraph lessons and films.

OTHER SERVICES

On Sunday evening from 6 to 7 there is another children's service, and one for juniors. From 6 to 6:30 p.m. Sunday there is choir practice, and from 6:30 p.m. to 7 p.m., the Builders' service for young people and adults. At 7:05 p.m., evening worship is held for children and adults.

Rev. Owens pointed out that the children's and juniors' services in the evening, give the youngsters something to do while the adults are in choir practice and other activities.

The church's minister of music, Joe Bickford, who came here from a Texas church, is a 1963 graduate of Gulf Coast Bible College, Houston, Texas, one of several colleges supported by the denomination nationally.

Robert Warner is Sunday school superintendent and a member of the board of trustees. D. E. Coody is chairman of the Board of Trustees and other members are Harley Loy, M. L. Owens Sr., and Mrs. Howard Davis. The treasurer, David Johnston, is an ex - officio member of the board.

ADVISORY GROUP

A Church Council, composed of the chairmen of all boards and committees of the church, works with the pastor in an advisory capacity on matters of the Sunday School program. It is headed by the Sunday school superintendent. Another active group of the church is the Woman's Missionary Society, which is affiliated with the national organization. The local society is headed by Mrs. Gertrude Owens. One of its members, Mrs. D. E. Coody, is state society president.

The pastor reported that the church's Missionary Society has won several state awards for its work and service.

Literature of the church points out that this Church of God movement has general offices in Anderson, Indiana.

It states, "With no intent of being 'another denomination' the movement breathes the vision of uniting all christians everywhere into the oneness of Christ. To do this the Church of God endeavors to take a position of openness on the Godward side to all truth, and openess on the manward side to fellowship with all God's people everywhere. They believe the church is not an organization you join, but a fellowship of persons who by spiritual birth have become members of the family of God. Therefore, the Church of God is an open fellowship to all who have joined themselves to God. A slogan often used is 'Where Christian experience makes you a member.' There is no rite of church joining, but rather a recognition of an experience of fellowship with those who are in Christ."

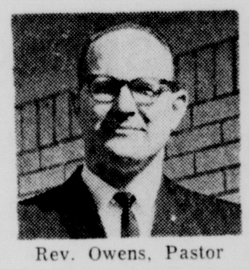
The Pastor's Corner

WEIGHED AND WANTING

Thou art weighed in the balances and found wanting. — Daniel 5:27



Rev. Owens, Pastor
First Church of God, Monroe

You recall the story of how King Belteshazzar made a feast for a thousand of his lords, and he was drinking with his concubines and he even got so bold as to have the Holy Vessels from the Temple, and his guests drank from these Holy Vessels that were sacred unto God. They praised the gods of gold, and of silver, of brass, of iron, of wood, and of stone. Suddenly some fingers began to write upon the wall.

Daniel came and interpreted the dream for him — our text — thou art weighed in the balances and found wanting. The weighing time always comes, no matter how long it may be postponed. God does this weighing, in one way or another. It is never left to chance or to fate.

Note the following things — Daniel had been warned in Daniel 5:17-23 by ancestral history. He had his father's record before him. He knew God rewarded righteousness and punished sin.

REPROOF

He had been warned by personal reproof . . . doubtless the queen mother, who advised that Daniel be called, had warned him. No doubt but what God warned the old King. The Persian armies then were surrounding the city, and Darius was making his bid to capture it. Notice Babylon had 150 gates of solid brass, a wall 87 feet thick and 350 feet high, boasted that it could close its gates and live 20 years without buying or selling or outside contact. In the hour of their utmost security, the city fell.

Just as God weighed King Belteshazzar, God will weigh every one in His own time and way. God's balances are accurate and from them there is no court of appeal.

God's weighing ability is infinite — "He knoweth our thoughts afar off," and can read the "Intent of the heart," and judges our motives. God always gives time for repentance. Belteshazzar had his opportunity for repentance, but when God called him, he was wanting.

Wanting, this word is an old English term, which we often use for "desire." It literally means hollow, shallow, in default, imperfect, unfinished, below par, less than excellent, incomplete. Too many people are in the category of "wanting" today. I am fearful that too many people professing to be Christians are in this category of "wanting" today. They are wanting or lacking in honesty, morality, purity; in holiness, in love, in spiritual power; in good deeds, holy living, and readiness for death.

WHAT A TRAGEDY

Wanting, wanting!! What a tragedy to face death wanting.

Then old Belteshazzar met a woeful end. He met it unexpectedly. Had anyone told him as the sun dropped behind the western wall of Babylon that night, he would be dead before morning, he would likely have laughed them to scorn. Modern life brings unexpected death to millions.

I referred to Belteshazzar as being old. Actually, he was younger than I. For a king he was very young — only 32 years old. Death does not regard age . . . check by reading tombstones in a graveyard if you doubt it. But saddest of all, he met it unprepared. One of the sad thoughts of the future is that time of final judgment when the masses of earth shall step onto the balances and discover their lack. God's word declares in Matthew 4:4 "Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God."

When we stand before the great white throne of God and the Word of God is placed on one side of the scales, and our life is placed in the other, will the two balance. They will if we have lived by every word that proceeded out of the mouth of God. What will happen to those who take only a part of God's word to suit their fancy. Woe unto them who refuse to measure their lives by all of the word of God.

What will the Judgment hold for those who have never repented, when Jesus said so plainly in the Gospel of Luke, "Except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish." John the Baptist, who was the forerunner of Christ, insisted on repentence. The apostles preached it. It is the need of the world today.

BORN AGAIN

Nicodemus was a religious man, but Jesus told him that he must be born again. We become a new creation through the operation of the Spirit of God, when we repent of every sin and have faith in the saving power of the shed blood of Jesus Christ. Do you know of a time when your committal to Christ was definite? The reason so many congregations are crushed and dragged into the mire of sin and corruption by the mediocre Christians, or what we may call nominal Christians, is the lack of the New Birth. People who truly have been born again won't feel at ease by their radio or television when services are going on at church, if they are physically able to get there. Simply having your name enrolled on a church roster somewhere and not living the life of a real Christian will only serve greater damnation to your soul in the fires of burning Hell.

Jesus said to love one another with a pure heart. "By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples if ye have love one for another." Where will these stand at the judgment who go through life cold - shouldering and even hating some? Weighed in the balances and found wanting.

CONDITIONS

Jesus said that except your righteousness shall exceed that of the scribes and the Pharisees, ye shall in no wise enter in. Their righteousness was mostly external, outward to be seen of men.

The Word of God teaches us that we should not forsake the assembling of ourselves together. What about people who manage to drag out to services about once every new moon or on Easter or Christmas? No one can live a spiritual life and live in open violation of the Word of God.

The Word teaches us to live a life separate from sin and the world. You that are so wrapped up in the world, that you have no time left to serve God faithfully will simply be weighed in the balances and found wanting.

Jesus said that it was more blessed to give than to receive, and to withhold, places you in the category of thieves and robbers. Your giving should exceed a tenth of your income that goes directly to the building of the Kingdom of God

Jury In Neshoba Won't Get Look At Rights Data

PHILADELPHIA, Miss. (AP) —The Neshoba County Grand Jury convenes Monday but apparently will be blocked from investigating the slaying of three civil rights workers due to pending action in federal courts.

Dist. Atty. Bill Johnson said Saturday he would ask the jury for immediate action if the FBI would turn over its evidence in the case for study.

However, federal sources said the government probably would not release its evidence to the jury until final disposition of the action pending against 18 men indicted on charges of conspiring to kill the trio last summer.

And a Justice Department spokesman in Washington declined comment on Johnson's statement pending receipt of a formal request for the evidence.

Earlier this week in federal court at Meridian, 17 of the indicted men pleaded innocent to the conspiracy charge. The 18th man was expected to enter a plea in Atlanta, Ga.

Johnson said he was unable to recommend any specific action to the grand jury when it convenes because he is unfamiliar with the evidence.

But he said he would seek action "if the federal government gives us evidence in time to present it" to the jury when it meets on Monday.

It would be the second time the jury has convened at Philadelphia and asked for evidence in order to take action.

Parish Agents Explain Auto Liability Insurance Rates Which Begin Monday

New auto liability insurance rates will go into effect in Louisiana, Monday, with those in the Twin Cities and Ouachita Parish showing the greatest percentage of increase, but remaining next to the lowest in the state's eight rate territories.

This was pointed out Saturday by R. D. Farr Jr., of Monroe, secretary of the Ouachita Association of Insurance Agents.

To provide an example of the amount of rate increase in Ouachita Parish, including Monroe and West Monroe, Farr cited Class I-B Risk insurance, which is on "a car not owned or driven by a male under 25 years of age, and which is not used in business or profession."

The rate on a policy providing liability payment of $5,000 per person, and $10,000 per accident limit, and $5,000 property damage per accident, including uninsured motorist coverage, but not medical payments, was $44 in Ouachita Parish under the old rating. Monday it will be increased $11 to $55. Rapides Parish, including Alexandria, will have a rate rise from $44 to $52, while East and West Baton Rouge parishes will move from $65 to $73.

Farr said, "The impression has been left that this rate increase applies to all types of auto insurance, whereas, it actually applies only to bodily injury and property damage premiums. Prior to this increase our rates, Shreveport's, and Alexandria's were the lowest in the State."

He said that auto insurance rate making is a highly technical business.

Farr said, "For Louisiana the rates are actuallly prepared by the National Bureau of Casualty Underwriters in New York and they are submitted for approval to the Casualty and Surety Division of the Louisiana Insurance Rating Commission, which must then pass on them."

The association official explained that premium rates are determined by two basic factors: 1. The frequency of claims — the number of claims for each 1,000 insured cars, and 2. The average cost of claims. Louisiana, for rate making purposes is divided into eight territories so that in each territory insurance buyers are paying premiums developed as a result of auto accidents in their own areas.

Explaining further, he said, "The reason, of course for the whole idea of increasing rates is that there hasn't been an increase since August, 1958, and the cost of paying claims, hospital, and other expenses has gone up since that time. The National Bureau of Casualty Underwriters makes filings almost annually on the insurance rates, but the state commission has failed to approve them in the past."

Farr commended law enforcement officials of Monroe, West Monroe, and Ouachita Parish for keeping auto accidents down to the present level, even though there has been an increase in the number. He added the thought, "There are now more automobiles and more people driving them than previously."

A chart compiled by the Ouachita Association showed the accident trend in the area over a period of three years. In 1964 in Monroe there were 2,089 auto accidents, 528 injuries, eight deaths. In 1963, 1,730 accidents, 380 injuries, one death. And in 1962, 1,645 accidents, 399 injuries, and four deaths.

Statistics for West Monroe showed, in 1964. 525 accidents, 198 injuries, two deaths; 1963, 527 accidents, 143 injuries, one death; 1962, 470 accidents, 80 injuries, no deaths. For Ouachita Parish, 1964, 652 accidents, 336 injuries, eight deaths; 1963, 590 accidents, 295 injuries, 15 deaths; 1962, 558 accidents, 279 injuries, and 20 deaths.

The following tables show comparative rates under the old schedule and the new schedule on a Class I B Risk, 5-10-5: insurance policy:

Skiers Stranded At Utah Resorts By Snow Slides

ALTA, Utah (AP) — Steady, heavy snows triggered more avalanches in the high Wasatch Mountains on Saturday, bottling up resorts and stranding 300 persons in this ski center only 25 miles from Salt Lake City.

Most of those marooned were in the sixth day of the weather-caused exile — and mighty unhappy. They were restricted to lodges because of slide threats on the ski slopes.

All were well and warm. The only problem, resort officials said, was a growing feeling of "cabin fever" because of long confinement.

Avalanches plagued many other parts of Utah and southern Idaho where, ironically, unseasonable warm weather in the Boise area brought minor street flooding.

One man was killed when his tractor was buried in a snow slide near Cascade, Idaho.

Norval Fleetwood, 45, of Cascade, was clearing a mountain road when the slide hit. His body was recovered.

A Utah man making a snow survey was luckier. Buried four hours by an avalanche, Robert Doty, 28, of Logan, was found unharmed when a member of a search party sat down to rest and heard Doty's faint cries.

NOT BROKEN IN ANGER

ADDISON, Ill. (AP) — Breaking dishes rates highest among young mothers who average nine dishes a year, according to a survey of 600 homemakers.

Karl Jensen, a sink manufacturer, says that 70 per cent of the breakage occurred during the drying process rather than washing.

"If a dish slips while drying, the fall is longer, too," he said.

In washing most homemakers usually have some type of cushioning in the sink and the chances of breakage are diminished.

The breakage rate is lowest among grandmothers and husbands. The grandmothers are more careful and the husbands dry fewer dishes than young homemakers.

Fire Destroys Home At Hodge

NORTH HODGE (Special) — Fire of undetermined origin destroyed the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sonny Anderson in North Hodge late Friday night.

A neighbor reported the fire, and the Jonesboro-Hodge Volunteer Fire Department answered the call shortly before midnight Friday, but when they arrived on the scene the building was falling in. Everything was destroyed.

Mrs. Anderson and her two children were with Mr. Anderson's parents at Black Lake, and Mr. Anderson, who had worked until 11, had gone there to join them.

No estimate of the loss was available. Cause of the fire is being investigated.

Group Opposes Arkansas Tax Hike Proposal

EL DORADO, Ark. (Special) — The petroleum industry in Arkansas is opposed to the proposal of Gov. Orval Faubus to increase the state gasoline tax by one half cent, C. W. Kinslow Jr., chairman of the Union County Petroleum Council, said Saturday.

Kinslow said that "even though many of the points outlined in the governor's (Thursday) address are commendable, the industry must oppose the gasoline tax increase for several reasons."

He pointed out that the increase would not be imposed on the industry as such, but on the industry's customers. It is, however, collected by the industry at no costs to the state, he pointed out. He also explained that 65 per cent of Arkansas use their cars in getting to work, and that gasoline is not a luxury even though it bears a tax burden equivalent to a sales tax of over 53 per cent.

He suggested a study be made of the present road program to find ways to apply present highway user revenues to the greatest advantage.

MAN OVER MACHINE

Molen, an assembler in the large jet engine department of a General Electric plant here, came up with a time - saving suggestion which eliminated four expensive machines.

The machines, called electronic protractors, were used in automated assembly of jet engine rotor vanes. But they were temperamental and often needed repair.

New Vote Drive Starts In County Next To Selma

SELMA, Ala. (AP) — A drive to register Negroes as voters will enter its third week Monday at Selma, while a new voter registration campaign is to begin in neighboring Perry County.

The Rev. James Bevel, an aide to Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. in the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, said Negroes will be encouraged to march on the Perry County Court House in Marion, 30 miles west of here.

Bevel also said massive street demonstrations in Selma are being considered to protest the pace of registration in Dallas County.

As the Negroes concentrate their campaigns in specific Alabama counties, a three-judge federal panel has been appointed to hear a Justice Department suit asking that the literacy test be thrown out in Alabama.

The suit contends that the voter registration test is discriminatory since the majority of eligible white voters in Alabama were registered before the test became part of the application.

The state asks dismissal of the suit, claiming that the federal court does not have jurisdiction.

King said he would return to Selma tonight to address a rally. He did not mention Perry County.

No specific plans have been revealed for the Perry County movement, where a federal voter referee is testing applicants rejected by the county registrars. Negroes there say the registration pace is too slow.

The referee, attorney O.S. Burke of Greensboro, Ala., was appointed by U. S. District Judge Daniel Thomas of Mobile, the same judge who issued an injunction last weekend ordering Dallas County Sheriff James G. Clark not to interfere with the Selma drive. The injunction also specified which entrance to the court house the Negroes could use and limited the length of the application line to 100 persons per day.

BUILDING A FLEET

BELGRADE (AP) — Yugoslavia will spend 125 billion dinars ($166 million) between the end of 1964 and 1968 to build 33 modern merchant ships totaling 218,000 tons to replace outmoded freighters. When the program is completed in 1968 Yugoslavia expects to have a merchant fleet of 154 ships totaling 1,113,000 tons. They are expected to carry 9 million tons of goods a year at an annual earning of $47 million.

PRE-ENGINEERED BUILDING FRANCHISE AVAILABLE

The dramatic growth of the pre-engineered steel building market in this area represents an unusual profit potential for an individual or organization experienced in building construction. Metallic Building Company and Stran-Steel Corporation will select a Franchised Builder in this territory to represent our complete line of buildings. The choice will be made within a few weeks.

Complete knowledge of all phases of building construction is essential. If not a general contractor, the prospective Franchised Builder must have the ability to sell a complete building "package," and then coordinate the sub-contracted construction.

The principal requirement of the Franchised Builder would be the development of a full-time, hard-hitting sales organization. Aggressive merchandising would be required to produce maximum sales volume in all phases of the market.

Sufficient managerial capacities and capital backing are required to sustain a number of separate projects, simultaneously, without diluting new business efforts. No large storage and handling facilities are necessary as there is no inventory; factory-produced, pre-engineerd buildings are shipped direct to the job site. The Franchised Builder selected in this area can expect a fast return on his capital investment.

Metallic and Stran-Steel produce the most complete line of high-quality, pre-engineered steel buildings for commercial and industrial use. A program of national and local advertising is geared to help sell and to produce inquiries for immediate follow-up.

Signup To Begin For Homestead Tax Exemptions

Homestead exemptions will be open for signing Feb. 1 through April 15 in the Ouachita Parish Tax Assessor's office, according to Bert Coverdale, assessor.

Coverdale urges all home owners who are veterans to talk with someone in his office about the veteran's exemptions when signing the homestead exemption forms for 1965.

The parish tax assessor explained that there had been a recent change in the veteran's exemption law which will now allow all veterans an additional five - year $5,000 exemption. This applies to all veterans although many veterans have used up their five - year exemption previously. He said that the new law also provides for World War I veterans to obtain the increased exemption for five years.

"We urge all home owners to come by early to avoid any delay in signing their exemptions, and we also urge veterans to be sure and let us know about their being a veteran of World War I, World War II or the Korean War and whether or not any veteran exemption has previously been used," Coverdale stated.

He added that all veterans who are entitled to the exemption will be given it, but "we will need their cooperation in regard to information pertaining to, their status," he commented.

Home owners living within the city limits of Monroe and West Monroe are asked to drop by the assessor's office to sign their exemptions. Deputies will take the exemptions to the home owners who live in the rural areas outside the two municipalities, as has been the policy in the past.

The assessor's office is located on the first floor of the courthouse and is open from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 8 a.m. until noon on Saturday.

Mothers March Slated Monday For Donations

Climaxing the annual March of Dimes campaign, hundreds of mothers will join in marches Monday in the Twin Cities and other Ouachita Parish communities seeking contributions for the fight against birth defects.

Mrs. Marvin Smart, mothers march chairman, said the volunteers would be out on Monday. They will leave return envelopes for residents who are not at home when they call she added.

"Our Marching Mothers have a true personal stake in this campaign against birth defects," she said. "More than anyone else, they realize the tragedy that birth defects can bring into a home.

"They want to do something about preventing these conditions which cripple limbs and retard minds and disrupt what should be a happy family life," Mrs. Smart noted.

She said that the March of Dimes, through its scientific research program, has begun to make strides toward this goal of prevention. She cited studies now underway on the causes of chromosome abnormalities such as those which occur in mongolism and the nature of certain inherited metabolic disorders which cause brain damage and mental retardation.

The March of Dimes is also pioneering in the care of birth defect victims by developing and perfecting new treatment techniques at its numerous university and hospital - connected centers around the country, she explained.

"The Marching Mothers and the March of Dimes care enough about the birth defect child to help. Do you?" she asked.

Louisiana JAC Clubs Receive National Award

Louisiana Junior American Citizens clubs, sponsored by the Daughters of the American Revolution, have won the first place national award for public relations for the second straight year, Mrs. W. Carl Wallace of Shreveport, state chairman, announced.

Mrs. Wallace reported the second place national award was presented to Louisiana for the largest percentage of participation in the Junior American Citizens program of activities, and honorable mention for JAC membership gain. A number of Louisiana boys and girls also won national prizes for their contest entries.

Mrs. Wallace said clubs sponsored by the Chief Tusquahoma Chapter, West Monroe, and Fort Miro Chapter, Monroe, "made outstanding contributions" to the JAC program.

Club members are taught loyalty to their country, and to be proud of their heritage. Emphasis is placed on responsibility, and boys and girls are encouraged to practice patriotic action in terms of practical service in the home, school and community, thus developing good junior citizenship.

Gray 1st, Morgan Fourth At Boston

BOSTON (AP) — Courtland Gray of the U.S. Naval Academy pulled a major upset Saturday and won the 45-yard high hurdles from a veteran field in 5.5 seconds at the Boston A.A. Games.

Gray, who had never before been invited to an indoor hurdles event, won by about two feet over Olympian Elias Gilbert. Broad jump record holder Ralph Boston, who had won three major indoor hurdle events this season, was third and Roger Morgan, winner of the hurdle event in New York's Millrose Games, was fourth.

It was one of the better hurdles fields put together this season but it did not bother the midshipman. He won his trial heat, took it easy with a third place finish in the semifinals and scored easily in the final, edging in front on the second of three hurdles and increasing the margin at each stride.

The time matched the meet record set by Harrison Dillard and later tied by Hayes Jones and Richard Davis.

Sam Perry of Fordham, who matched the indoor 60-yard dash record Thursday, just edged out the Army's Mel Pender in the 50-yard dash in 5.4. Perry took it by inches, and both he and Pender said the indoor schedule was too heavy.

"It's too much—New York, Toronto and here," said Perry who has run in the three meets. "We need a day to rest."

"Yes," said Perry. "There's too many meets. We want to compete but we don't want to burn ourselves out. There's a long outdoor season in front of us."

In events restricted to New England collegians, Tony Lynch of Harvard took the 440 in 51.3, and Crimson teammate Keith Chiappa won the 880 in 1:55.7.

In the afternoon field events, held at the Northeastern University cage, Bob Backus of the New York A.C. captured the 35-pound weight with a toss of 62 feet 8½ inches. He edged his teammate Al Hall whose best throw was 62-4.

BREWSTER GETS 35

Ruston, Neville Are Victorious

RUSTON (Special) — Neville squeezed past Minden here Saturday night and Ruston withstood a strong West Monroe rally in the final period to take victories in the second day of doubleheader action.

Neville topped Minden, 69 - 64 and Ruston pulled ahead in the second and third quarters then hung on for a 56 - 52 conquest of the Rebels.

The Minden - Neville game was the tightest of the night with the score tied 17 - 17 at the end of the first period and 29-29 at the end of the opening half. The Tigers pulled away in the final half on the shooting of J. Dodd Brooks, who dropped in 24 points for the night and Jay Eppinette, who sank 17 for the Tigers.

Jerome Vascau led Minden with 16 markers and Brooks Van Horn chipped in an additional 12. Two Bearcats dropped in eight points each, Mike Jackson and Stan Green.

Neville is now 22 - 2 in overall play and Minden, 17 - 9.

Ruston trailed the Rebels by one point at 15 - 14 at the end of the opening period of play in the second game of the doubleheader but rolled out strong in the next two periods to outscore the West Monroe squad by nine and 12 points to take a commanding, 58 - 38 third period lead.

The Rebels' last period rally was headed by Sammy Brewster, who finished the night with 35 points, but fell short and gave the Bearcats a four point victory. Brewster boosted his average to 23.8 for the season.

Buddy Camors was the Bearcat big gun with 25 markers, all but one point coming from the field. John Brooks aided with 16 points with Gary Heard and Cecil Barham each sinking nine points.

Chumbler's Shot Nips LSU Tigers In Last Second

STARKVILLE, Miss. (AP)—Sophomore Bill Chumbler hit a last second field goal from 30 feet out to give Mississippi State a thrilling 76-74 Southeastern Conference victory over Louisiana State Saturday night.

Chumbler's winning basket was in the air when the buzzer sounded.

He was one of three Mississippi State sophomores with 16 points. He had only three points the first half.

LSU's Dick Maife was high point man with 18. He was limited to one field goal and three foul shots in the first half.

Other Tigers in double figures were Kenny Drost 14, Brad Brian 13, and Bill Wilson 10.

ENLOE LEADS WAY

Northeast Tops Crusaders With Second Half Effort

HATTIESBURGH, Miss. (Special) — Despite a somewhat ragged first half performance, Northeast State put together another of its patented second half finishes to conqueror William Carey, 75-72, here Saturday night.

The victory was the 12th of the year for Northeast against four defeats. William Carey is now 10-4, with two of the losses coming at the hands of Northeast.

Coach Lenny Fant's NLSC Indians now await their big Gulf States Conference battle with league leading Southeastern at Hammond next Wednesday night. Southeastern is 4-0 and Northeast 3-1 in loop play.

Tommy Enloe, who just three nights ago came through with two clutch free throws to ice away a crucial road victory against McNeese State in the last six seconds, was again equal to the occasion in the last minutes.

The junior guard had one of his best nights offensively of the season with a 29 point total and he kept Northeast ahead in the last minute of play when he made five free shots. Enloe connected on 10 of 17 field goals and had nine of 11 free shots during the contest.

Paul Thompson followed Enloe in scoring with 14 points and had eight rebounds while Glynn Saulters added 11 points and Larry Butler chipped in 10 points and seven rebounds.

Bill Brazil led the Crusaders with 26 points and almost pulled the game out with some hot shooting in the late stages. He hit 12 of 18 shots from the field. Danny Boutwell followed Brazil with 16 points and Jim Chatman scored 12.

Northeast got off to a slow start, trailing by five points early in the game, and made numerous floor mistakes. The score was tied 34-34 at intermission and the Indians began taking control early in the second half.

Northeast, behind the long range bombardment of Enloe, steadily pulled in front of William Carey and held an eight point lead with less than five minutes to play.

Northeast called time with 1:50 to play and began freezing the ball. Enloe was fouled with a minute left and calmly sank two free shots on a one-and-one situation — pushing the Indians in front 70-66.

William Carey failed to score on its next shot and Enloe was again fouled while trying to stall. This time he hit his first shot but missed the second and the Tribe was in front 71-66 with 50 seconds left.

Bazil hit a jumper with about 40 seconds left, leaving the score 71-68, but Thompson came through with a two pointer for a 73-68 Northeast lead.

LHSAA Passes Rule Concerning Entrance

By STUART HILL
World Sports Writer

ALEXANDRIA — Passage of new membership requirements here Saturday highlighted the closing session of the Louisiana High School Athletic Association's annual meeting.

The new rules, approved in the final general assembly at Bolton High School, requires a two - thirds majority by both the schools in the district involved and the association membership.

The executive committee Friday refused admission to nine schools, including Airline of Bossier City and a New Orleans all - Negro Catholic school, pending action on the now approved amendments.

In the general session, the association took a step toward relieving some problems anticipated for next year's session, which will include redistricting and reclassification.

A committee will be established shortly to study the statewide reclassification of schools and make recommendations by mail to the entire membership by November 22, 1965.

Also approved was an item to base the classification of schools on total enrollment rather than only male enrollment, which has been used as the standard for classification up to now.

A resolution was also passed to consider a plan to improve basketball officiating. The item was referred to the executive committee. J. H. Napper, principal of Ruston High School and a member of the committee said the first step taken by the committee would be to allocate more funds to improve and increase basketball clinics. "In general this means that we will do anything that is necessary to improve the officiating," Napper added.

In Class meetings Friday, Class AA voted to hold its 1965 state track and field meet at Pineville May 14. The shift was necessary because both LSU and Northwestern had conference conflicts on that date.

FOUR HORSEMEN ARE NO MORE

Friends, Teammates Pay Respects To Stuhldreher

PITTSBURGH (AP) — They stood side by side, the three of them to pay their final respects Saturday to a friend and former teammate. Together, they were the Four Horsemen.

A solemn high requiem mass was sung at St. Paul's Cathedral near the University of Pittsburgh's Cathedral of Learning in the city's Oakland section. Burial was in Calvary Cemetery.

Fullback Elmer Layden and halfbacks Don Miller and Jim Crowley, the other members of the backfield that was written into football annals by the late Grantland Rice, were honorary pallbearers.

About 500 persons attended the services on a cold day under a brilliantly sunny sky, not like that of which Rice wrote after the Notre Dame-Army game in 1924:

The Four Horsemen is a biblical allusion to the Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse-famine, pestilence, destruction and death.

Stuhldreher, 63, a U.S. Steel Corp. executive, died last Tuesday in West Penn Hospital where he underwent surgery Jan. 14.

Other honorary pallbearers included the surviving four of the Seven Mules — the linemen on the 1924 team. They are tackles Rip Miller and Joe Bach, end Chuck Collins and center Adam Walsh.

Attending the services were the Rev. Edward Joyce, Notre Dame vice president; Ara Parsegian, Notre Dame coach; Frank Carver, Pitt athletic director; and Joseph M. Barr, Pittsburgh mayor.

MAKES BIG PUTT

McGowan Takes Lead In Tourney

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Little Jack McGowan, a 34-year-old veteran from Largo, Fla., birdied the 18th hole with a 50-foot putt for a three-under-par 68 and the third round lead in the $57,500 Lucky International Golf Tournament with a 54-hole score of 207 Saturday.

Almost everyone had conceded the lead to the double-eagle shooting of Bud Holscher, who had finished more than an hour before with a 65 for a 208 total.

McGowan confounded them by finishing with four straight threes, including three birdies as he played in the final threesome.

Holscher, a 34-year-old club pro from North Hollywood, Calif., dropped his double-eagle two on the par 5, 510-yard ninth hole of the Harding Park Municipal course. Even rarer than a hole-in-one, the double-eagle carried Holscher into the early lead.

McGowan played even par for his opening nine, bogied the 10th hole and then had birdies on 11, 15, 16 and 18 on putts of 3, 4, 9, and 15 feet.

The 146-pounder said, "I played the first nine very ratty, but I salvaged a couple pars. I got hot after 11."

His fine finish put him six strokes under for the 54-hole distance with the final 18 in the 72-hole scramble for $7,500 first prize scheduled today.

Canada's George Knudson ran into trouble on the 18th when his second shot out of a sand trap stuck in a tree and he had to take a penalty stroke.

AM&N Defeats Grambling Quint In Loop Contest

GRAMBLING (Special) —Unbeaten Arkansas AM&N sent a standing room crowd of 5,721 fans home considerably disgruntled Saturday night with a spine-tingling, 116-112, victory over nationally-ranked Grambling.

The decision was the seventeenth straight for the Golden Lions. It is almost certain to command the attention of pollsters who have completely ignored them in small college ratings.

Arkansas was successful beyond its wildest dreams and the brilliant efforts of Harold Blevins, Hal Allen and Robert Allen were cheered heartily by AM&N supports.

Arkansas tallied heavily midway in the opening half and left floor with a 60-57 halftime advantage.

The Lions' ability to check Grambling inside at crucial points and the alertness of Belvins and the Allen boys told the story in the second half.

Comeaux scored 36 points for the Tigers in steadily mounting excitement. Wilbur Frazier added 20 more as Grambling suffered its fifth defeat of the season. The team has won 12.

State Studies Deer Resource

With Sam Hanna

Three-Man Committee

Deer hunting or deer management or just plain deer are topics that can drum up a conversation around any woodstove when the last shot of the season has been fired.

Now that it's safe for the bucks to roam around again, you can bet your bottom dollar that a lot of hunters are cropping up with ideas on ways to improve deer hunting in Louisiana.

From an official capacity a newly - appointed three-man committee from the Louisiana Wild Life & Fisheries Commission soon will begin searching around for methods of improved deer management.

The committee is available to any Police Jury that wants to sit down and talk about local problems, or deer management in general. There should be dozens of Police Juries interested in doing that.

So the committee shouldn't have any trouble finding something to do.

For instance, some hunters think the season is too long and we're sure there are some who think it's not long enough. Many believe the any-deer seasons are more harmful than helpful, but some believe it's the proper approach to deer management.

An interesting suggestion came across our desk this week from Sen. J. C. (Sonny) Gilbert, a deer hunter himself who informs us that some hunters are advocating a three - split deer season like Arkansas.

Louisiana, for the past two years at least, has had a two-split season running over 30 days.

This is another one of those proposals that will draw support from some circles and opposition from others. For example, you could say that the three-split season would give the hunter a better chance to get a buck by resting his dogs and himself.

But, on the other hand, you could see where the three-split season would put more pressure on the deer herd by having three opening days. You know how everybody rushes to the the woods on opening day.

Arkansas has a three - split season, six days in November, six days in December and three days in late December and early January. Director Nelson Cox, who, incidentally, is resigning to take care of his health, advised us this week that the three-split season had worked fine for Arkansas.

He said the kill for the past season would equal that of a year ago, or a total kill of about 25,000 deer.

Louisiana's kill may go over that, but remember that we have over 30 days for deer hunting while Arkansas this past season had only 15. So the three-split works in Arkansas, mainly because it doesn't take Arkansas, with more deer than we have, to kill a good many deer.

Now it's possible that a three-split season would work in this state, but we don't believe the state would go along with a season split three ways over 30 days. It probably would mean giving up some deer hunting days.

The season can't run too far into January, because that's the rutting season.

We doubt whether Louisiana will ever have as many deer as woods on opening day.
to the north have more wooded areas. So we'd better give our hunters more time than Arkansas gives its hunters.

But that's just one man's opinion. If you have any, there's a three-man committee you can talk to, or try the boys around the woodstove. They've got lots of ideas now that the season is over.

Georgia-Pacific Property

Richard Yancey, assistant wildlife director, informs us that the Wild Life & Fisheries Commission will re-negotiate a lease on part of the Georgia-Pacific Game Management Area sold recently.

Georgia-Pacific sold 19,130.4 acres to the Morrison - Quirk Grain Corp. of Nebraska. This was property located inside the recently established game management area north of Bastrop.

But Yancey said a five-year lease would be worked out with the new owner, just as a new five-year lease would be worked out with Georgia-Pacific on the property it still owns.

Thus, for the time being, the Georgia - Pacific Game Management Area will remain intact.

A five-day deer season was conducted on the area last fall —the first hunting permitted there in years.

Yancey said the commission would act at its February meeting on a request by the Morehouse Parish Police Jury to hold a turkey season on the Georgia - Pacific area this spring.

It should be a great turkey season. The area is the best for turkeys in North Louisiana.

Good Man Gone

The News-Star in an editorial last Monday paid its tribute to the late O. N. McNeil, whose unexpected death last Saturday was a shock to his many friends in the Monroe area.

But we don't think the passing of O. N. McNeil should go unnoticed in this corner, because he excelled in the field of conservation to the admiration of his fellow workers.

Mr. McNeil was a charter member of the Louisiana Wildlife Federation when that organization was formed 25 years ago in 1940. He was active in the federation for 25 years until his death.

Twice O. N. McNeil was elected president of the Ouachita Wildlife Unit, which through the years has attracted the services of numerous good men. Mr. McNeil was one of them.

A lot of men who participate in civic work in their younger years take an inactive role in their later years. Many drop drop out altogether. But not so with O. N. McNeil, whose life was cut short at 61.

Even though he had served as president of the club for two years, he remained active, attending board meetings and regular meetings, offering advice when called upon, doing what he could to assist.

He kept working because he believed in conservation. He loved the field and the life that goes with it.

We'll miss O. N. McNeil, the quiet, good man with the pipe and the experience and the willingness to help those coming along a trail he had already covered.

Little Man's Corner

The quail were wild and wouldn't hold, but the fish were biting and the little men made news afield.

Most of the bird hunters we know reported little luck, but we understand that Harry Pankey of St. Joseph has been killing quite a few. He bagged 46 on seven hunts. That's one of the best reports we've had in this area.

But Sixty Rayburn, the Bogalusa senator, was up for a day and told us that quail hunters in his piney woods area were having great hunts. He said the birds were plentiful around Bogalusa and in nearby Mississippi.

Sixty, we understand, is a deadly shot.

And the latest waterfowl inventory released by the commission showed Northeast Louisiana with 102,500 ducks between January 3-9th, but the survey didn't include all the waterfowl areas.

George Franklin of Holly Ridge says he has about 100,000 ducks on his pond.

The state total was 4,899,000, or more than December when the season was open.

For a comparison, the Arkansas inventory between January 4-7th showed 1,379,554 ducks, including 1,151,350 mallards. Louisiana's mallard total came to 651,000.

So we've got far more ducks than Arkansas, but fewer mallards by far.

Nelson Cox, the outgoing Arkansas director, informed us on the phone, incidentally, that Arkansas bird hunters were having a tough time of it too. He said there are a lot of quail in the state, but hard to find. He's a bird hunter himself.

In the area outdoor news, Mr. and Mrs. Blackie Odom of Jonesboro went back to Kitterlin Creek Bay and again landed a big string of white perch. In the Lake Providence section, Mrs. John Hankins caught some nice bass in the barpits near her home nine miles north of Lake Providence. She's been fishing with an H&H with a black and white skirt.

C. L. Roy and Eldon Roy of Pioneer had the limit of white perch in Lake St. John while Fannie and Nancy Rosa got the limit of bass in Old River Lake. They're from Monroe.

Mrs. George Lee of Lake St. John landed the limit of white perch in the Blue Hole.

From Lake Providence, Bill Shirey and his two sons bagged 11 quail one afternoon recently while at Oak Ridge. The champ, Abner Wimberly, and his Monroe guest, George Mouk, came within a bird or two of getting the limit.

We understand it was George's first hunt with Abner, who had a tough time convincing him that bird hunting wasn't that good always.

Optimist Club Clinic Slates Final Session

The concluding session of this year's Optimist Club Boys Baseball Clinic, the third held by the local club, will begin at 1:30 this afternoon at Memorial Stadium in Bernstein Park.

About 200 boys turned out for the Saturday session which was termed "very successful" by Optimist Club officials, although the number attending was somewhat less than hoped for because of the sudden cold weather.

Today's clinic activities will be highlighted by an hour demonstration by instructors on the arts and techniques of hitting, fieldings, pitching and other phases of the game.

Also on the agenda for today is a morning golf tournament for the instructors and Optimist Club members at the Highland Park course in West Monroe.

PLAY McNEESE TUESDAY

Techsters Try To Get Back In League Race

RUSTON (Special) — Louisiana Tech will be trying to get back in the Gulf States Conference race here Tuesday night when the Bulldogs face McNeese State.

After opening loop action with three losses, Coach Scotty Robertson's outfit has rebounded with consecutive wins over USL and Northwestern State.

McNeese handed Tech one of the losses, 65-52, in Lake Charles. Hampered by a lack of height and rebounding strength, the Techsters got some valuable assistance against NSC from 6-10 newcomer Bob Watson.

Watson, a West Virginia product who became eligible at midterm, poured in 20 points, including several tip-ins, and picked off 16 rebounds as Tech downed Northwestern State 83-68 for the first time in several years in Natchitoches.

Tech is now 7-7 for the campaign and 2-3 in the league race.

Jerry Hood, 6-4 senior, got 25 points against the Demons and has a 21.8 scoring average after 14 games. Leon Barmore is averaging 13.9, Jim Pruett 11.7, and Ray Penny 10.4.

Robertson undoubtedly has one of the top rookies in the league in Malcolm Smith, the ex-Neville of Monroe ace. Smith was a defensive standout against the Demons while contributing 14 points and six rebounds in a tremendous second half performance. He is averaging 6.5.

McNeese will bring in its tough defense and scoring punch supplied chiefly by Tom Wunder and Clyde Briley.

After the McNeese scrap, Tech travels to Monroe Saturday night to face the Northeast Indians who are trying to overhaul Southeastern Louisiana. SLC is 4-0 while Northeast is 3-1. Tech frosh will meet the Tribe in Monroe Friday night.

Tech has eight games remaining, five at home and three away. Two of the remaining five loop tilts are on the road.

Grambling Inks Senior Halfback

GRAMBLING (Special)—Surrounded by self-appointed advisers and well-wishers Coach Eddie Robinson announced Saturday that star halfback Henry Anderson of Booker T. Washington has signed a grant-in-aid scholarship to attend Grambling.

The 18 - year - old Shreveport senior selected Grambling "because of the school's national reputation in athletics."

He also listed "The congenial atmosphere I found on campus" as a major factor in his decision.

MRS. JOE DEXTER ALBRITTON

Janice Crow Is Bride Of Joe Dexter Albritton

A candlelight ceremony solemnized at 6 p.m. Friday, January 29 united in marriage Miss Janice Maxine Crow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Max Crow of Marion and Joe Dexter Albritton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elton Albritton of Farmerville.

Rev. Oscar Bradford performed the vows in the First Baptist Church, Marion, following a prenuptial concert by Mrs. T. D. Reppond, of Marion, organist and Miss Joan Odom, Farmerville, soloist.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a gown of angelmist taffeta with fitted bodice of Chantilly lace. A chapel train attached at the back waist by a bow of the taffeta, was embellished with appliques of the Chantilly lace. Her fingertip veil of illusion fell from a tiara of seed pearls. The bride carried a cascade bouquet of white roses.

Mrs. John Rodney Pilgreen of Monroe, served as matron of honor and wore a gown of blue peau de soie. Her headpiece was a wedding ring of blue satin with a brief veil and she carried a bouquet of long-stemmed white roses. Bridesmaids, dressed identically to the honor attendant were Miss Armanda Stell of Marion and Miss Carla Taylor of Downsville. Each carried a single white rose.

Chairs, Sofas Now Geared To Age Of Leisure

Sitting softly but firmly in the foreground this season is upholstered furniture with its new shapes, sizes, directions, mechanisms and a profusion of new fabrics. Chairs, sofas, sectionals, recliners, sleep sofas, rockers, ottomans and occasional seating pieces . . . all are more generously upholstered this year.

Sofas that are framed in wood, mounted on sling bases, or backed with cane or slats are big news. There is a great variety on view, many with dual functions. Often large castors give mobility for convenience, flexibility and the needed expandability in modern living habits. The "age of leisure" is here and furniture is geared to comfort, relaxation and home entertainment.

STERLING ON THE TABLE

Sterling silver flatware adds to the beauty of any table setting — formal or informal. In arranging flatware on the table, the spoons and knife go to the right of the place setting and the forks to the left — except the seafood cocktail or oyster fork. It goes on the right with the spoons.

The church social room was scene of the reception which followed. Guests were registered by Mrs. Kenneth E. Hart at a table covered with white satin and net, adorned with a memory candle.

A silver compote of white stock and pompons interspersed with hearts in a Valentine theme, formed the central decor for the table, with silver candelabra on either side. The bride's tiered and columned cake, topped with three bells and floral sprays, was served by Mrs. Lee Hicks of Laurel, Miss., and presiding at the silver punch bowl at opposite end of the table was Mrs. Raymond Gregg. Centering the groom's table was a replica of an aircraft carrier afloat in a blue sea, beside which stood a doll dressed as a sailor. Sophisticated Designers Go Long Torso For Spring

By FLORENCE de SANTIS

Certain younger designers have gained a name for clothes with an air of youthful sophistication that suit woman of about 35 who like to look a bit different.

One thing many of these designers agree on for spring: the long torso silhouette that shows off without confining a good figure. Eric Lund, for example, does the short dance dress in a black and white feather chiffon print by Luksus, with sleeveless skimmer torso down to thigh-top, where a bias-flare skirt begins.

The scarf which softens the neckline is often a feature with these designers. Pat Sandler swathes the top of a two-piece tunic overblouse dress with a big, fringed scarf. The skirt widens toward the hem. Wider skirts are another point in sophisticated collections. See it in Modern Couture's black silk sheer full-skirted short evening dress with cropped white jacket. Charles Kleibacker puts it on the coat of a short evening costume, while keeping the dress slim.

Gerard Pipart of Paris does it for Mlle. Ricci by means of a deep inverted front pleat in a costume whose jacket is well down over the hips. Matty Talmack's version is a slim black organza slip under a full and ruffled sheer coverup.

Sophisticated prints are important to these designers. Ronald Amey for Burke-Amey goes to the trouble of creating his own for evening dresses, in huge border florals on silk crepe.

SHOCK-PROOF RUGS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Is your rug shocking — when you walk across it these winter days, touch something metallic and receive a jolt?

The National Institute of Rug Cleaning reports you can have your rug treated to take out the shocks. If you have this problem, consult your local professional cleaner for the anti-shock treatment.

St. Francis Auxiliary Adds New Members

Five new members were welcomed by the St. Francis Hospital Auxiliary at its January meeting held Monday morning in the hospital auditorium.

They include Mrs. Joel Samson, Mrs. Leo Zipkes, Mrs. Arthur Brueck, Mrs. Charles M. Pugh and Mrs. Harry S. Spooner.

Following an informal coffee period, Mrs. Ernest Strauss, president, conducted the business meeting during which reports were made by various committee chairmen.

Those making reports were Mrs. Tom Scott on the gift shop; Mrs. James Geisler, membership; Mrs. Stanton Huey, hospitality and Mrs. Verna McCullough, comfort cart. A report was made on the annual Christmas party given for hospital patients in December. Chairman of the event was Mrs. Shirley Jussell.

Plans were formulated to repeat last year's successful "Bunny Party" at Eastertime for children patients with Mrs. McCullough appointed chairman of the event.

At conclusion of the business session James Hice, hospital administrator, spoke in detail on plans for future hospital projects in which the auxiliary will participate.

Lingerie Gift Is Favorite For Valentine's

Lingerie, a traditional and favorite Valentine's gift, needn't be all frills and lace to be appreciated. Men usually fall into the trap of buying something so gussied up, so outrageously expensive and so out of character with their wives or girl friend's personality that the gift often stays in the bureau drawer, unworn.

Between the prosaic nightgown and the spangled palazzo pajama, there is a world of beautiful and practical lingerie that doesn't cost a king's ransom. Besides, it will be worn.

Yolande's new spring line of lingerie, made of Chemstrand Blue C nylon, offers many choices which are sane but not dull.

For the woman who wants to feel glamourous but not overdressed, splurge on an off-beat color. Almond green is one of the prettiest new lingerie colors to look for; a beiged-mocha is another.

Mr. Picton is touring the Southwest area, to set up tentative dates for fund-raising projects. The local alumnae group will sponsor a dinner next November as its part in the fund raising program.

Those attending the luncheon meeting at which Mr. Picton spoke were Mrs. I. C. Enochs, Jackson, Mississippi, regional vice-chairman of the development program; Mrs. James Wade, local alumnae president; Mrs. Thomas Holmes, Mrs. Ed Seymour Jr., Mrs. C. H. McHenry, Mrs. Wesley Shafto, Mrs. S. E. Huey, Mrs. J. S. Drew and Mrs. John Salisbury, all of Monroe and Mrs. L. Yancey Jr., of Rayville.

Spring Accessories Detailed For Refinement

The bold drama of past seasons gives way to feminine refinement for spring accessories. The softened silhouette of fashion is completed by a filmy scarf-tied hat, accented with precisely detailed bags and jewelry with a precious look.

Hats have never been prettier, with the softest fabrics, the most alluring bonnets, the snoods worn under big-brimmed separate hats. The scarf hat is a natural extension of the importance of scarves themselves.

Scarves are Roman-striped in pastels, finely pleated, bright with polka dots, always contrasting with the costume. Collars in crisp white organdy are important, often with tiny ruffled edges, or a bit of ruching.

Handbags look smaller even when they're not, as the tailored look replaces the deliberately bulky. Envelopes, swaggers, satchels, all usually take handles, the clutch being reserved for dress wear, and the manner of doing handles and clasps is what makes the individualism of the bag. In materials, grained leathers continue important, in new colors.

In jewelry, the scatter pin in twos and threes replaces the single big pin. Animal, bird and floral themes are tops, done with the fine look of real jewelry or in enamel.

STAINED GLASS

Renewed interest in stained glass as a decorative window treatment has inspired a simple way to achieve this glowing effect in any house. Translucent presson plastic film, designed in authentic stained glass patterns, can be cut to size and laid over any window. Sponging with soap or detergent suds will keep these "panes" clean.

Resort Wear Sets Trend For Casual Look

Resorts set the trend for summer clothes next season. Acapulco, growing fast into a large-scale resort, is influencing resort wear toward a casual look.

The silk shirts and pants, fur pieces and beaded sweaters are out in favor of casual separates, gay cotton shifts and the barer-look swimsuits.

Women who go to Florida habitually are now going to Acapulco, and they are switching from dressier resort clothes to the simpler, casual look. As Acapulco has a fashion image above that of Florida, it is influencing designers.

Expansion Attic Homes Popular

Homeseekers accustomed to choosing between split - level, ranch and Colonial models soon may have another choice — the expansion attic-home. If the success of one of the nation's builders is any criterion, the latest addition may prove more popular than any of its predecessors.

NLSC Commencement Climaxed By Reception

Informality marked the festive affair which climaxed an evening for Northeast Louisiana State College students who received the bachelor's and master's degrees at commencement exercises in Brown Auditorium on campus.

Tuesday night a reception was held in the main lounge of the College Union Building for graduates, their families and friends.

Among the special guests was the Honorable Joe D. Waggonner Jr., Congressman from the Fourth District, who gave the commencement address.

Greeting guests at the first floor entrance were Dean and Mrs. Dwight D. Vines. As they ascended the stairs to the foyer of the lounge, they were welcomed by Dean and Mrs. T. Eugene Holtzclaw, who stood against a background of white gladioli in tall cream colored urns.

Setting for the occasion was enhanced by arrangements of flowers on low tables and topiary trees placed at vantage points throughout the room. Claiming special attention was a pyramidal decor of yellow gladioli, orchid iris, small yellow chrysanthemums and acacia in a silver epergne.

Floating hostesses were Mrs. Clarence Ball, chairman of the reception committee, Miss Frances Kelso, Mrs. Rosemary Hamner, Mrs. Eloise Stanhope, Miss Emily Blomquist and Mrs. Ellard Brantley.

White damask covered refreshment tables held silver punch bowls encircled with acuba leaves and studded with small yellow chrysanthemums. Pouring were Miss Robbie Lee Coxe, Mrs. Walter Bentrup, Miss Alma Lufcy and Dr. Hazel Mitchell, all members of the faculty. Assisting in courtesies were Mrs. Catherine Vaughan, Miss Frances Kelso, Miss Gertrude Sandrock, Mrs. Mack D. Vaughan, Miss Frances Baldwin, Mrs. Annie Lee West Stahl, Mrs. Charles Ted Brodnax and Mrs. Maynard M. Dolecheck, also faculty members.

Tea girls included Misses Marguerite Davis, Glenda Gates, Judy Swayze, Pam Rudisill, Grace Hodge, Cecelia Reeder, Georgette Varino, Alice Butler, Lynn Byce, Lynda Bryce, Wanda Langley and Marilyn Evans, students of the Panhellenic Organization.

Coppertone Is Favored Kitchen Color

Just 10 years ago the color-choices in home appliances echoed the old Henry Ford axiom: you can buy any color, as long as it is black.

Today's consumer selects her appliances from a full spectrum of colors, including coppertone, turquoise, yellow, pink and brown. According to designers, about 30 percent of all appliances sold last year were in colors. The favorite? Coppertone is by far the most popular in refrigerator, ranges, dish-washers and washers and dryers reported one design group.

The popularity of coppertone as an appliance color is based on the fact that it blends perfectly with both natural wood finishes and all other colors. Although most kitchen cabinets sold in the past year were in wood finishes, the color trend in decorating changes every year.

TWO-WAY STRETCH

Two-way stretch has been added to the other comforts of thermal athletic underwear. These waffle-knit textured nylons, in a choice of red or white for both men and women, are machine-washable.

Ivy League Fashionable In House Plants

Ivy League styles, long perched atop the fashion ladder are trend setters too, as winter house plants.

New professionally grown varieties can give your interiors a surprising variety of colors, ranging from gold, silver, purple and red to delicate shades of white and gray.

One new clay - potted Glacier ivy from California combines gray, green and white to make a nicely variegated addition to your house plant displays. The glacier, like most indoor ivy species likes cool to intermediate temperatures and filtered light.

Ivy plants are highly versatile and long "keepers" in clay pots that provide a sturdy base for either the self - branching types or the "creepers". These plants like their living conditions either on the dry side or constantly moist — but not "drowned". So clay pots, which afford slow, natural drainage from all sides of the container, are preferred for ivy culture, to avoid over - watering.

Ivy is available, too, in a variety of sizes, to fit any space. Try Maple or Parsley Ivy for smaller displays and confined locations. Both are self - branching and have wiry stems.

If you can provide "crawl space", the varieties known as Curlilicks or Manda's vetsed ivy are good.

You'll also find a growing selection of trailing varieties, including one called Kangaroo ivy, as well as the popular Grape ivy.

Whether you use them for single upright display plants, as trailing plants from hanging baskets, as crawlers to cover open stretches of interior space, or in dish gardens, you'll find the Ivy League well worth adding to your home fashions in living plants.

DECORATIVE TREADS

If you apply non-skid strips to the bathtub as a precaution for the elderly, choose these for decorative appeal. Self-adhesive treads now come in a wide range of popular bathroom colors. The permanent kind stays put on the tub bottom through daily scrubbings.

Berry-Keeth Vows Read In Candlelight Setting

Frosted winter evergreens and lighted tapers formed a background setting for the wedding Friday, January 29 in the sanctuary of the First Baptist Church, Jonesville, of Miss Margaret Keeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Henry Keeth of Jonesville to Jimmy Berry, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Berry of Winnfield.

Frosted pine trees were banked behind the choir and front of the chancel rail where the focal point at the altar was a massive arrangement of white carnations, chrysanthemums and stock in a white marble urn on a pedestal stand. White candles burned in candelabra arranged pyramid fashion behind the chancel and in four tree candelabra which surrounded the area.

Rev. James O. McNair performed the ceremony following an organ concert of sacred music by James K. McNair. The church choir, in white robes sang preceding the exchange of vows, under direction of Mrs. Louis Little.

Tall lighted tapers accented with wintergreens and velvet ribbon lined the bridal aisle, down which the bride was escorted to the altar by her father. Her gown of candlelight peau de soie was fashioned with a controlled skirt and bodice of Chantilly lace. A watteau train fell cathedral length from her shoulders. She wore a short veil of French illusion attached to a crown of pearls and crystals and carried a bouquet of white orchids, carnations, chrysanthemums and moss green velvet leaves.

Mrs. Rodney Calhoun of Monterey attended her sister as matron of honor, and maid of honor was Miss Pam Booth of Jonesville. Bridesmaids were Misses Robbie McMillin and Johnnie Carol Keeth, sister of the bride, both of Jonesville and Miss Linda Gail Lawless of Haynesville. Their floor length sheath gowns of moss green velvet were accented at the empire waist with a band of matching peau de soie from which back panels fell to the hemlines. The dresses featured long tapered sleeves and scoop necklines. Their headdresses were of moss green tulle held by velvet roses and leaves and matching satin slippers completed their ensembles. They carried white fur muffs attached to which were white carnations and moss velvet leaves with streamers of white velvet tubing.

Miss LaJean Womack of Jonesville, was flower girl. Her floor length dress of moss green velvet featured a full skirt accented by a cummerbund and bow of matching peau de soie. She wore a moss velvet Dior hair bow and carried a white fur muff covered in moss velvet leaves and lily of the valley.

James Loyd Collins of Winnfield served as best man for Mr. Berry. Groomsmen included Benny Connerday, David Adams, Mike Pinnerllo, all of Winnfield and Rodney Calhoun of Monterey. Carl Whitehead of Sulphur served as ring bearer.

Candles were lighted by Misses Martha Gayle McNair and Jennie Marie Wilson, Jonesville, who wore frocks of white velveteen and slippers of moss green matching their velvet Dior bows. Their wrist corsages were of green carnations.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the church educational building where the moss green color scheme was echoed in the cloth of satin and net enhanced with snowflakes of white, which covered the refreshment table. The central decor was of white carnations in a silver bowl flanked by white candles in silver candelabra. Alternating at the silver punch bowl were Mrs. Jimmy Keeth of Pineville and Mrs. Doug Keeth of Jennings. At the opposite end of the table Mrs. Bill Berry of Winnfield and Miss Janet Durr of Natchitoches presided at the silver tea service.

The wedding cake, centered on a round table, covered in white satin and tulle, was served by Mrs. George Keeth of Jonesville and Mrs. Loyd Holland of Parhams. Groom's cake in the shape of a wedding ring was served by Mrs. Clifford Whitehead of Sulphur. Presiding at the guest book on a round table covered in moss green and decorated with a memory candle and the bride's bouquet, were Mrs. Larry Kennedy of Jonesville and Miss Carolyn Capps of Alexandria.

Tea girls were Misses Royce Chevallier, Cathy McLeod and Linda Little, all of Jonesville, who wore white dresses and net aprons of moss green with green corsages. Rice bags were distributed by the candlelighters. Assisting in the courtesies were Mrs. Quinton Dosher and Mrs. Louise Little.

For travel the bride changed into a suit of cranberry mohair with white velvet hat, white kid gloves and the orchid from her bouquet. Black shoes and bag completed her ensemble. Following a wedding trip the couple will be at home in Natchitoches where the bridegroom will begin work on his master's degree in education at Northwestern State College. The bride is a graduate of Block high school, Jonesville and attended Northwestern. Mr. Berry finished Winnfield high school and was graduated this month from from Northwestern.

Dior Spring Collection Is Fresh, Flattering

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON

PARIS (AP) — Marc Bohan of Christian Dior ministered to the comfort of men by keeping his promise not to introduce radical, budget-breaking fashion changes — at least not this season.

The spring collection he showed in his warm, well lighted and crowded showroom was fresh, bright, flattering and evolutionary, but not revolutionary.

Ordinarily a warm, well lighted showroom would not be worth mentioning. But some of Paris today is dimmed, chilled, and stilled by the second day of a strike by public utilities workers. The house of Dior utilized auxiliary power.

This is the year of the indented woman for the fashion house which in the past made history by ignoring the anatomical fact of the waistline.

Designer Bohan, like others this year, has belted his mannequins' middles. He has also used pleats and gathers to emphasize the little middle.

But he has shown considerably more restraint in this matter, at least with his daytime clothes, than other French couturiers.

The primary theme in suits, coats, casual and fancy dresses is the collarless, cross-wrapped costume, double buttoned and tight chested.

Another was the Asian rajah theme of a collarless tunic silhouette — long or short and widening gradually once past the bust line.

Skirts grew wider and frothier for late day and night occasions. Specifically, this is how you can tell a Dior vintage '65 from older models:

Hem lengths — Another facet of fashion that has had its ups and downs at Dior — were midknee for day. But Bohan's new evening length for some, but not all, the costumes is midway between the calf and ankle.

Shades of the gay nineties were in pin-striped suits and boater hat costumes as well as lacy, floating ball gowns.

Pleats on the Dior skirt were stitched flat to the body until mid-hip. Very often the pleats were confined to the front panel of the skirt.

Palm Beach Goes Elegant For Theatre

While resort fashions generally go more casual, places frequented by social leaders offer occasions of elegance. Palm Beach, for example, has the Royal Poinciana Playhouse, whose opening nights are as elegant as any in Paris or New York.

Combining a theater and a dining wing, the Playhouse was designed as settings for the display of gowns and jewels. A single evening may see gowns by Givenchy, Dior, Hartnell, Norman Norell and Bill Blass of Maurice Rentner.

Playhouse evenings contrast with the usual dressing of Palm Beach residents, who have always been quiet and conservative in their daytime clothes. For socialites, the winter in Palm Beach is a chance to live a retired life in casual clothes. Only on special occasions do the ladies wear the glitter that many other women believe is always worn at resorts.

Fused Panels Introduced For Foundations

Not to be outdone by all the fuss over bras, girdles will also make news for spring.

Top of the news may be the new fused panels, making two pieces of fabric feel like one, thanks to bonding, not sewing. This will mean reinforcements in all kinds of shapes, not just the familiar back and front panels.

Panty girdles, already favored far above all other kinds, will come in more lengths from bikini to long-leg, but they are being challenged by the "body stocking," a new all-in-one like a sheer net maillot bathing suit.

Lycra, the new fabric that outdated rubberized and make the panty girdle a wild success, will become even lighter but just as powerful. The trend to increasing lightness and suppleness of girdles will continue, although high-rise, zippered styles will return.

Hooks Designed To Mount Easy

For homemakers in need: hooks that can be mounted almost anywhere around the house without damaging surfaces with holes, screws, bolts or nails. A simple steel rack is mounted by pressing it onto the surface. Adhesive foam tapes take care of the sticky business. The hooks can be moved from side to side for convenience in spacing.

Louetta Taylor Becomes Bride Of Ed Alexander

An arch of greenery and baskets of white gladioli against a background of lighted tapers in branched candelabra formed a setting in Emmanuel Baptist Church Saturday, January 30 for the wedding of Miss Louetta Taylor, 401 Park Avenue and Ed Alexander, 213 K Street, Monroe.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Taylor of Camden, Ark., and Mr. Alexander is the son of Mrs. Sarah Alexander, of Hamburg, Ark.

Rev. Fred Doolittle performed the double ring ceremony at 7:30 p.m. following a prenuptial concert by Mrs. Marie Moncrief, organist, who also accompanied the soloist, Reggie Guice.

Mr. Taylor gave his daughter in marriage. The bride's gown was a traditional design of shimmering romance peau de soie and Chantilly lace. The bodice, overlaid with the hand-clipped lace, featured a Sabrina neckline and long tapered sleeves. Appliques of the lace were repeated on the gently belled skirt and wide cathedral train. Her tiered veil of English illusion drifted from a bridal wreath of illusion rosettes, highlighted with baroque pearls and pearlized orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of white carnations with white streamers.

Miss Nora Taylor, attended her sister as maid of honor and wore a red satin brocade dress, styled with fitted bodice, and self-fabric cummerbund, scoop neckline and belled skirt. Her headdress was a veiled pillbox of matching fabric and she wore red slippers and carried a bouquet of white pompons with white satin streamers Candlelighters were Miss Joann Turner and Miss Rosa Lea Parnell. They wore identical dresses of red velvet, featuring square necklines, elbow sleeves and controlled skirts. Completing their costumes were Dior bows with circular veils and red satin slippers. They wore corsages of white carnations.

Serving as best man for his brother was James Alexander and ushers were Joe Bailey of Camden and Joe Platt of Monroe.

For the occasion the bride's mother wore a blue wool suit with matching accessories and a corsage of white carnations. The bridegroom's mother wore a suit of beige wool with accessories to match and a white carnation corsage.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the social room of the church, where the bride's table was covered with a lace cloth and centered with an arrangement of white carnations and cluster of wedding bells. Wedding bells were also attached to each corner of the table where Mrs. Sue Taylor served the all white wedding cake and Mrs. Margaret Fowler presided at the punch bowl. Miss Jean Parker was seated at the guest book table.

For their wedding trip to New Orleans the bride changed into a slim suit of pastel green and beige weave with Chelsea jacket, trimmed in green braid. Her accessories were black and she wore the corsage from her bouquet. They will be at home in Monroe where both are employed.The bride is a graduate of Bastrop high school and Foster Business School in Camden, Ark. Mr. Alexander was graduated from Hamburg high school.

Legs Appear In Spotlight

As hems go higher and shoes become wisps of whimsy, one thing is emphatically obvious-legs are more in the spotlight than ever before.

Before wearing a pair of the new patterned stockings, (diamond shapes and squares in a variety of colors are the big news), be sure that your legs are in perfect shape. Everyday exercise and a daily application of a good hand cream is the easy answer. Watch the popularity of legs grow. There is even talk of rouging the knees again!

February arrives tomorrow—February, that month which compensates for fewer days by making a larger number of them RED LETTER SPECIALS. We have Groundhog's Day and Lincoln's birthday, and St. Valentine's Day, and Washington's birthday, and the anniversary of the Parent Teachers' Association, to mention a few.

And, in Louisiana at least, we have Mardi Gras. Even though Ash Wednesday itself does not arrive this year until March 3, the month of February will be filled with celebrations which traditionally precede Lent.

An annual observance locally is the Mardi Gras ball at Bayou DeSiard country club. This, most gala occasion of the club calender, is set for Saturday evening, February 27, according to BERNICE WOODS, general chairman. Committees began making their plans for the affair at a luncheon meeting held at Bernice's home Tuesday.

Theme selected for the ball is "Famous Personalities". Decorations in the ballroom will represent the White House portico, with the rose garden duplicated in the young people's room. The court will be presented on the portico. Guests are invited to attend in costume, representing any famous personality of history from Adam and Eve through Antony and Cleopatra to Queen Elizabeth I to Davy Crockett to the Beatles.

Those who will be assisting Bernice as chairmen of various rooms are SUSAN WOODS, ballroom, with BARBARA RIVERS, co-chairman; SHARRON BONNER, door and entrance hall, with EVELYN COLE and RENEE TILLERY; FLO KELLY, court with MARIANNE RAY; MARTHA UPSHAW, young people's room, with JANET MORGAN; and PAULINE RILEY, bar.

MARY PEARL and CECIL JARRELL were hosts last Saturday night at a dinner party at the Paragon club. Guests were seated at four tables: three set up on the ballroom floor; another on the bandstand. The last was centered with a silver epergne filled with red carnations. Silver candelabra with red carnations and red tapers stood at each end of the table. The other three each held five crystal bowls filled with greenery and red candles. Thirty couples were invited to share this occasion.

Here from Alexandria last weekend were DR. and MRS. JACK WILLIS, guests of JUNE and BREWER GODFREY at their home on Pargoud boulevard. Saturday evening the hosts took their visitors to Bayou DeSiard country club's oyster roast.

On Sunday morning, June set a lavish table for brunch honoring the Willises. Her menu included ham, sausage, and bacon, with eggs in the basket, sliced tomatoes, hot grits with redeye gravy. With this she served tiny individual pastries with fresh raspberry topping, hot biscuits with three kinds of preserves.

At this time of year, a number of our people enjoy mid - winter vacations. ALICE and TED ALLEN returned Tuesday from a ten-day trip to the East coast. Ted went to Massachusetts on business, and then the two visited his brother, SHERWOOD ALLEN in New York. They saw the Ice Show, toured the antique show, visited Guggenheim Museum, attended a performance of "Ballet Folklorico de Mexico" and "Fiddler on the Roof," new smash hit starring Zero Mostel.

A number of our people are in Las Vegas this weekend, attending a national convention. They left separately during last week, are due home Wednesday. Among those making the trip were HELEN and LEE EDWARDS, TEEDEE and JOE DIXON, JEAN and M. S. DIXON, CISSY and JERRY RYAN, GEORGIA and DICK TOUCHSTONE, JEAN and FRED HUENEFELD, JR.

This week saw several of our college group home for between - semester break. JAN ADCOCK arrived Monday night from the University of Arizona in Tucson. Jan is transferring to LSU, enrolling there next week.

Speaking of our college group, we were so pleased to hear last week of MIGNON SCOGIN's being elected to Phi Kappa Phi, scholastic honorary at Louisiana Tech. Mignon, who is president of her social sorority, Kappa Delta, was also named to Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities.

One of February's birthdays, that of George Washington, is celebrated each year by two of our patriotic societies. This coming Saturday, February 6, Children of the American Revolution will mark the occasion with a luncheon in the Paragon ballroom. PRARIE JEFFERSON SOCIETY of Morehouse parish are hosts for this affair, given jointly with LT. JOSEPH BOWMAR SOCIETY each year.

The next Saturday, February 13, Daughters of the American Revolution honor George Washington at their annual luncheon, also planned for the Paragon club at 12:30. Ft. Miro, Chief Tusquahoma, and Abram Morehouse Societies plan this affair together each year.

February is also a big month in entertainment in this area. Concert series and other groups plan some of their most outstanding attractions for this time of year. Little Theatre of Monroe, Inc., presents its annual musical during the month. This year's choice is "Sound of Music", that most popular of plays, with its lilting music and charming story. It is set to open Friday evening, February 19, to run through Sunday, February 28.

Northeast Louisiana Concert association has scheduled a performance of Jose Molina's BAILES ESPANOLES for the evening of February 22. This, one of the series headlined attractions, will be presented at Neville High school auditorium.

Louisiana Tech Concert association is planning two major presentations during the month of February. On Monday and Tuesday evenings, February 8 and 9, the Caledonia Folk company is the attraction. This group, which will be presented in Howard auditorium, consists of a number of performers from Scotland who will give a program of Scottish music, dances, and songs. . .Later in the month, on Thursday, February 18, the outstanding pianist, Jorge Bolet, will be presented. These programs are for members of the Tech association only.

Preparing for St. Valentine's Day, let us in the next two weeks consider a group of love poems. First, Christopher Marlowe's lines "The Passionate Shepherd to His Love":

Come live with me and be my love,
And we will all the pleasures prove
That hills and valleys, dales and fields,
Or woods or steepy mountain yields.
And we will sit upon the rocks,
And see the shepherds feed their flocks
By shallow rivers, to whose falls
Melodious birds sing madrigals.
And I will make thee beds of roses
And a thousand fragrant posies;
A cap of flowers and a kirtle
Embroidered all with leaves of myrtle.
A gown made of the finest wool
Which from our pretty lambs we pull;
Fair-lined slippers for the cold,
With buckles of the purest gold.
A belt of straw and ivy-buds
With coral clasps and amber studs;
And if these pleasures may thee move,
Come live with me and be my Love.
The shepherd swains shall dance and sing
For they delight each May morning;
If these delights thy mind may move,
Come live with me and be my Love.

MRS. SIDNEY FAITH O'BRYAN

O'Bryan-McClane Vows Exchanged In Winnfield

Miss Sandra Lynn McClane, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. S. McClane of Winnfield, became the bride of Sidney Faith O'Bryan, Baton Rouge, in a double ring ceremony Saturday, January 23 in the First Methodist church, Winnfield. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Lorice Cole of Joyce and Claude O'Bryan of Calvin.

Lighted candles lined the aisle and tall candelabra holding white cathedral tapers were alternated with baskets of white flowers on either side of the altar where a large blue-lighted cross formed a background for the ceremony. Rev. George Ross performed the vows at 2 p.m. following a program of wedding music by Mrs. Morris Lee Wood, organist and Miss Janie Lou Wroten, soloist.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a full length gown of white sculptured brocade, fashioned with scooped neckline and long pointed sleeves. The sheath skirt was designed with a chapel train and her bouffant veil of silk illusion was held in place by a tiara of pearls and lace appliques with crystal drops. She carried a cascade bouquet of glamellias with a white orchid, atop a small lace covered Bible.

Mrs. Tommie Jackson of Houma served as matron of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Peggy Mason of El Dorado, Ark., Miss Amy Hardaway, Shreveport; Miss Janie Lou Neff. Lecompte and Miss Kathy McClane, Winnfield. They wore formal length gowns of gold brocade, fashioned on Empire lines with floating back panels and elbow length sleeves complemented by long white gloves. Matching Dior bow headpieces and gold slippers completed their costumes and each carried a single golden rapture rose.

Miss Debbie O'Bryan, flower girl, wore a full - skirted floor length dress with short white gloves and a bandeau of matching brocade and illusion. She carried a white basket of rose petals.

Mr. O'Bryan attended his son as best man and groomsmen were Jerry Willis, Baton Rouge; Gary Harkins, Mansfield; Mickey Frazier, Winnfield and Larry Rice, Shreveport. Ushers were Ernest Baxley, Winnfield; George Cameron, Lake Charles and Danny Brupbacher, Natchitoches. Candlelighters, who also escorted the mothers of the couple to their pews were Wayne McClane and Edward Crawford.

Mrs. McClane chose for her daughter's wedding a gown of Dior blue silk organza and lace with matching accessories and a corsage of white glamellias. The groom's mother, Mrs. Cole, wore an early spring model and a white glamellia corsage.

A reception followed in fellowship hall of the church where Miss Helain Lynch registered guests at a satin and net covered table, graced with a memory candle, encircled with ruffled lace. A white and gold theme was carried out in all appointments.

Mr. and Mrs. Clay Brock received guests entering the reception area. A tall candelabra, garlanded with white flowers centered the bride's table where Mrs. Gene Duco and Mrs. Richard Galloway served the wedding cake and Mrs. C. E. Brown and Mrs. Pat Weldin alternated at the silver punch bowl. Mrs. C. L. O'Bryan and Mrs. Willie Burnum served coffee and small fruit cakes from the groom's table. Assisting with courtesies were Mrs. Kelly Peterson, Mrs. George Rodgers and Mrs. Charles Weaver. Tea girls were Misses Pat Rodgers, Pam Peterson, Fran Shell, Nancy and Marsha Holmes.

For travel the bride changed into a three piece suit of beige silk with dark brown alligator accessories and a white orchid corsage. The bride is a graduate of Louisiana Polytechnic Institute, Ruston and Mr. O'Bryan was graduated from Northwestern State College, Natchitoches. The couple will be at home in Baton Rouge.

SWIRL JUICE

Ever try swirling frozen orange juice concentrate through softened ice cream and then storing in the freezer until firm? You can use vanilla or chocolate ice cream — chocolate is surprisingly compatible with orange flavor.

DRYING BLANKETS

Drying a blanket by hand? Hang it over two lines instead of one. That way, there's less chance of a crease forming, and blankets dry faster, since there's more room for air circulation.

Shift Goes To Office Or Beach

As dress designers move on to new cuts, the shift still refuses to die. It is rapidly becoming a classic, which means that casual clothes designers have taken it over.

It's now that gay little extra dress, useful for day or evening according to whether it has sleeves or not, a straight hem or a flounce, is in cotton or voile.

It may go to the office with sleeves and an open collar, ruffles down the front. It may go to the beach in gaily striped cotton, to the patio in a hot floral Caprolan print.

Those who like shifts will still find it possible to assemble a whole wardrobe in this easy shape that indicates but doesn't confine a figure. And the shift is still a great travel dress.

Appliques of pearl-studded Alencon lace embellished the scoop-necked bodice and were repeated on the skirt. She carried a cascade bouquet of bride's roses and stephanotis, backed with tulle and pearl leaves, and centered with a cattleya orchid.

Many Affected By Inability To Perceive Color

But in this country, some 8½ million people have difficulty in recognizing some colors. This deficiency varies widely in degree, and frequently is mistakenly referred to as "color blindness."

In the U. S. fewer than 600 people are believed to be color blind, without the ability to recognize any color. Everything is seen as a shade of black or white. These people usually have other visual problems as well.

Design Paper On Ceiling Can Break Room Height

By BETTY PEPIS

Q: I have a large, sunny sun room with 12 windows. We have an oval, moss green braided rug. Walls will be painted a similar green. Ceilings are eight feet high. I wonder if I should paint them the same as the walls. Would this break the height and make the room seem cozier or would it be too much? Furniture will be recovered later; I'll try to pick up some accents colors, perhaps yellow.

A: Yes, paint the ceiling same color as walls. Or, they could be papered in an appropriate design in green ground with, say, yellow and white design, or whatever colors you select for room.

Q: Our living room walls are autumn gold, rug is beige. Early American furniture is covered in a tweed fabric; sofa in spice, with rust and beige; wing chair is fern green with rust and brown. What color for another chair, draperies and pillows?

A: Select either autumn gold or a documentary with gold ground and beige, green and rust in design for draperies, chair and pillows.

Q: My living room needs a lift. Walls are papered in a pale green with a leaf pattern in green, gold and white. Rug is gray, sofa is forest green, two chairs are gold, two captain's chairs are white and draperies a medium green. There seems to be no accent color. Is gray rug the trouble?

A: Since the basic color scheme of the room is green, white and gold, it is the gray rug that stops a unified look. Rug in soft green would be best. Pick up golden yellow for accessories.

Q: My new wall-to-wall honey beige rug tends to make my present beige walls and woodwork look very pink and neither color suits the other. I intend to paint in the fall; what colors for draperies, slip covers or sofa and two chairs. I'd appreciate your help for at present rug is an expensive disappointment.

A: Paint walls and woodwork in a paler tone of the honey beige found in the rug. Cover the sofa and have the draperies in a pale honey beige ground print with white, greens and lemon yellow. Cover the two chairs in lemon yellow. A green plant arrangement will add interest to room as well as a few worthwhile art objects.

YOUR PROBLEMS

Let Him Call If He Gets Urge - To Merge

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I've been going with (or should I say "staying home with") an eligible bachelor for three years. He lived in the apartment below mine, and we sort of fell into the habit of having dinner together every evening — at my place.

Three weeks ago I decided to move out of the building so he would have to at least walk a couple of blocks for a free meal.

Now I'm not so sure I did the smart thing. He telephones me when he feels like it and this week he has felt like it only twice. Furthermore he's the jealous type and says he will never see me again if I go out with anyone else.

Last night I asked him bluntly when he planned to marry me. He replied, "If there's anything I can't stand it's a pushy woman." Ann, I am 29 years old and I believe I've been very patient. I love this guy and don't want to lose him. I know he doesn't take out anyone but me. I need some help. — AGING FAST

Dear A. F.: The answer to this one is so old I'm going to have to shave it to tell it.

Tell your friend if he wants you to be Exclusively His, a marriage license costs less than a dinner these days. In the meantime, go out with others and tell him to call you when he gets the urge — to merge, that is.

Dear Ann Landers: You saved our marriage. I was actually packing my suitcase when the mailman delivered your letter.

Your advice was as follows, "It would be foolish to leave your husband. It sounds as if the man needs to see a doctor. By all means insist that he get a physical checkup."

I showed Howard your letter and he agreed to see our family doctor. I guess he was shocked that I had written to you. Also he was surprised you answered. He said he didn't think you'd bother.

Well, Ann, the doctor gave Howard a series of tests and found out that he was dangerously anemic and had a low grade infection. No wonder the guy was tired and irritable all the time and had no interest in me or anything else.

Now, four weeks later, Howard is like a new man. The shots and pills have done wonders for him. It's almost like being on a honeymoon again and I want to say thank you, thank you. — BACK ON THE BEAM

Dear Beam: People who are not well physically are difficult to live with. It's tough to be cheerful and pleasant when the pep-o-meter registers zero.

Irritation and chronic fatigue can be symptoms of illness and should be investigated. I hope others will take a cue from your letter.

Dear Ann Landers: My daughter has gone off to school again — in tears. Sally is eight years old and very sensitive. Her sister, who is 11, refused to walk with her again this morning because she had made plans to walk with a girl friend.

younger sister loves her, and looks up to her, the battle is won. It's difficult to be mean to someone who loves and admires us.

The older girl should be given "grown-up privileges" (later bedtime, etc.) as a symbol of her seniority. Explain that grown-up privileges carry with them responsibilities. Make her feel honored to be an older sister and tell her you hope she will live up to her sister's high opinion of her.

"The Bride's Guide," ANN LANDERS' booklet, gives authoritative and complete information on how to plan a wedding. To receive your copy of this comprehensive guide, write to Ann Landers, in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents in coin.

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT DAMON PRATT

Baptist Study Scene Of Vows Uniting Couple

In a double ring ceremony Friday, January 22 Miss Paula Marie Slavent, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Murray Jr., 1002 South 9th, Monroe, became the bride of Robert Damon Pratt, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Pratt, 408 N. 7th, West Monroe.

Vows were exchanged at 1 p.m. in the pastor's study of the First Baptist Church, West Monroe, with Dr. Clifton Tennison performing the ceremony.

Mr. Murray gave the bride in marriage. She wore a white lace two-piece suit with white illusion veil and other accessories of white satin. Her corsage was of pink and white flowers.

Miss Sharon Richardson attended the bride as maid of honor and Randy Hilborn served as best man for Mr. Pratt.

Survey Shows Eggheads Prefer Working Alone

NEW YORK (UPI) — A study of 342 persons with "high intellectual capability" shows that 70 per cent of them took jobs "which gave them freedom to work alone or power to individually lead and dominate others."

The study, conducted by seven Columbia University researchers and published as a book, "Talent and Performance", was conducted among persons who had received fellowships at Columbia for postgraduate or professional training 15 years ago.

"It's an important finding because it indicates how very large the search for self-determination, self-expression and autonomy looms in the talented people's plans for their life work."

The study also showed that those who did well in college did not necessarily do well later in life.

Another finding was that the most successful persons in the group married early and those who "had difficulty launching their careers . . . tended to marry late. Single men were not conspicuous among those in the top achievement level."

Among the conclusions reached by the researchers:

— "No individual who has the capacity and desire to proceed with his education should be blocked by lack of funds."

— A high level of employment in the outside world encouraged the students to pursue their education to the PH.D. and "the conservation of talent truly depends upon minimum unemployment."

MISS BETTIE GAILE TIPPEN

Gilmore-Franks Vows Read In Fort Necessity

Mass arrangements of all white gladioli in pedestal baskets formed a setting in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Jefferson Gilmore, of Fort Necessity, for the wedding Saturday, January 23, of Miss Frances Elaine Franks and Thomas Franklin Gilmore. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Franks of Crowville and the parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Jefferson Gilmore.

The Rev. J. H. Patterson performed the double ring ceremony at 7 p.m. in the presence of the immediate families.

Mrs. Freddie Hadley was her sister's only attendant. She wore a charcoal and beige suit with complimentary accessories. Her corsage was white feathered carnations.

Serving as best man was the bridegroom's brother, Kenneth Gilmore.

For the occasion Mrs. Franks, mother of the bride, wore a navy crepe model and Mrs. Gilmore was attired in a sky blue suit. Their corsages were white carnations.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the dining room of the home. The wedding cake was served by Mrs. Cloy Anderson, aunt of the bridegroom, and Miss Sue Gasken served at the crystal punch service.

'65 Corvair
by Chevrolet

(discover the difference)

More room for getting in
More power for getting away

So ease yourself into the cockpit of a new Corsa. Scan the instrument cluster—tachometer, trip odometer, pressure and temperature gauges. Watch what happens when you hook it all up to a standard 140-hp Turbo-Air Six.

Either engine will be mounted in the rear for better road balance and easy handling.

It turns so easily, in fact, we won't even let you consider ordering power steering.

When you put all that on top of Quadri-Sport 4-wheel independent suspension and a wider front and rear wheel tread, you'll enjoy the kind of ride some sport cars charge you anywhere from $3,000 to $6,000 more to get.

Come on in and test drive a '65 Corvair. We bet you'll begin to think that the car you're now driving will never give you any satisfaction again.

BUCHENWALD draws thousands of visitors to remember the thousands of Jews, Russians and other victims burned in the efficient furnaces of the Nazi concentration camp outside Weimar, East Germany. Here a delegation of visitors from Czechoslovakia enters the camp for a wreath laying ceremony. Germans and many from Socialist states make up most of the visitors. Few come from the West. Writer Recalls Buchenwald On Visit To Death Place Site

By PRESTON GROVER

WEIMAR, East Germany (AP) — Weimar is a beautiful city, rich in history, with a tree-lined avenue so quiet a whisper can be heard.

It was that way when I returned here recently on a tour of East Germany. It was the same unwhispering, romantic quiet I had found when I first visited the city in 1940 as a correspondent in Hitler Germany. But the quiet in that early time cloaked one of the most monstrous secrets ever hidden by any city.

Despite our questioning — and we did ask repeatedly — we never got a hint at that time that on a beautiful wooded hill just above the city lay the murder camp of Buchenwald. Correspondents in 1940 got frail intimations now and then that there were camps in Nazi Germany that were more than just places to confine Jews.

Yet without ever mentioning the camp, military officers and officials of the Propaganda Ministry led us correspondents on sentimental tours around the cafes in Weimar where Goethe had gossiped with the poet Schiller and dabbled in politics. Did they know? They never let on.

It was growing dark when I reached the grim iron gates of the camp this time. It is now run as an educational center against Nazism. Scores of German visitors were streaming down the hill as I arrived, including numbers of children. The camp was closing for the day, but two German guides agreed to show us around in return for a ride back into the city.

THE PLACE

A tall, slim, darkhaired one, about 50, unlocked the doors and the other — blond, shorter and a bit younger — did the talking.

"Here is where the Fascists beat the Jews," he said. He pointed to a rack where feet and hands could be fastened, with the body stretched across. By it were heavy whips and some thin, supple canes.

"Six Russians were shot here by the Fascists," he said in the same sort of memorized monotone, as he pointed to another concrete cell. The Russians have hung a Soviet flag in the cell.

Then he showed me where men who had worked hard all day were jammed into a concrete cell so tightly they had to stand up all night until work time next morning.

"They had to run all the way to work," he added. "When they fell down, they were taken to the incinerator."

"Over there 300 Jews died of cold and hunger. They were left in the open without shelter." The camp was built for 3,000, but 40,000 at a time were crowded into it.

The clanking keys ahead opened the way to a documentation center built especially for visitors. Thousands of Germans course through the camp each week, as well as many from Communist states. Not many come from the West, but some of the exhibits were clearly prepared for them.

As we entered, a flood of lights was turned on to disclose pictures of Nazi leaders intermingled with photographs of emaciated Jews and piles of dead in unidentified nakedness.

Lengthy documents in large type along the walls tell of Nazi atrocities. Never was the word "German" used. One sign said 238,980 prisoners passed through the camp between the time it was founded July 6, 1937, and March 31, 1945, when it ended with the approach of American divisions. In that period, 56,545 were killed.

From here the guide led on to the "shooting gallery," once destroyed but now reconstructed to show how thousands of Russian prisoners were shot. Under guise of giving them physical examiniations, Nazi SS men led them into a narrow room where each was backed up against a device for measuring height. As he stood there, he was shot in the back of the neck through a slot in the wall. A roaring loudspeaker kept the waiting victims from hearing it.

EXPERIMENTS

Another building housed a laboratory where experiments were carried out on Jews. Many were simply killed by injections of poison directly into the heart. One room was lined with meat hooks, like a butcher shop.

"Those killed in the laboratory were hung up here waiting for the furnaces," said the guide. He pointed to a heavy mallet. "If they were still alive, their skulls were crushed with this." A conveyor took their bodies to the furnaces.

There we went next, and the guide pointed out their diabolic efficiency. First there had been only four in a row, each with a chute which flipped the body quickly into the flames. The ashes sifted into a tank below. Later three more furnaces were added, oil burners. Instead of taking 40 minutes, like the coal burners, the guide said, the oil burners could destroy a body in 20 minutes.

At the end of the tour I called to the attention of the guide that in none of his prepared talks, nor in any of the explanatory notices around the camp was the word "German" used, only the word "Fascists."

"We never use the word German because Germans are not on the same level as the Fascists," he replied, not with heat, but firmly. "We Socialist Germans are not at all the same as they.

"Nor are all the people, even in West Germany, guilty just because there are Fascists in the government who are responsible.

"It is the same in America, not all Americans are guilty just because a few in the government and in high places persecute Negroes."

He said he first learned of the horrors of the camp in 1943 at a tobacco factory where he was working. A messenger who came regularly to buy cigarettes for the SS men told him about it.

The guide told one final story. As the Allied armies were closing in, the SS men called up 14 women spies in Weimar, kept there to hunt out any who talked about Buchenwald. The 14 women, said the guide, were brought to the camp, shot and burned. They knew.

East German school texts have been re-written. Those who worked in the underground against Hitler now are honored by high posts in the government or, if they died, schools and streets and factories are named after them.

The guide claimed not a single NAZI holds a job in East Germany. Other informants said numbers of known Nazis have jobs in low places in the government and industry, but not in high places. That happens only in West Germany, you are told over and over again in East Germany.

But another man with access to information commented: "How can we be sure, even here in East Germany?" He insisted that 80 per cent of Germans supported Hitler when he was winning.

PLEASING EFFECT of this five-bedroom house is created by excellent mixture of differing materials, including pierced concrete block giving privacy to the front porch and effectively hiding two-car garage at right.

HOUSE OF THE WEEK

Two-Story Features Striking Design Details

By ANDY LANG

When we look at the outside of a house, we are likely to have one of three reactions: admiration, distaste or indifference. Most of the time it's indifference, if only because most house exteriors are familiar enough in design to have very little emotional effect on us. But every once in a while we see a house that makes us take another look, either because it has an usually good or an unusually bad appearance.

We had one of those instant admiration reactions when architect Rudolph A. Matern showed us the exterior rendering of the five-bedroom house he designed especially for the latest House of the Week. And we think you will, too, if you stop reading for a moment and take a look at it. Note how the pierced concrete block screens the front porch and ties the garage into the house invisibly, a really dramatic design feature. Add to that the continuation of the garage roof around and across the front entrance, a well-executed architectural device, and you have eye-appeal plus. Horizontal siding and whitewashed brick make up the balance of the exterior materials in a pleasing combination.

A full study of this architect - designed House of the Week may be obtained by writing THE HOUSE OF THE WEEK, c-o the Monroe Morning World, Monroe, La., and enclosing 50 cents to cover cost of handling and mailing. Please specify House Plan H-68.

CURVED STAIRCASE

Let's move inside and see what measures architect Matern has taken to match the living comfort of this two-story house with its attractive outside. As we open the double front entrance doors, we step into a slated-floored foyer, 12'-by 14', unusually generous in size for an entrance area. The focal point of interest is a graceful, slightly curved staircase leading to the second - floor bedrooms.

To the left of the foyer is the living room, with a wide expanse of windows at the front and a large fireplace at the side. Adjoining the living room in an uninterrupted sweep is the dining room and its sliding glass doors to a rear terrace. There is an entrance from the dining room to the large kitchen, which has an efficient U-shaped arrangement and a special breakfast area which comfortably seats as many as eight persons.

To the right of the foyer, down two steps, is a family room constructed on a concrete slab and permitting a maximum of indoor-outdoor living. Besides the easy access to the front porch, this fireplaced room has nine-foot sliding glass doors leading to a rear porch. Atop the slab is resilient tile for easy maintenance. The walls are wood-paneled, and opposite the fireplace is a built-in hi-fi and game center.

AMPLY SUPPLIED

The upstairs bedroom area is amply supplied with closets and has two large bathrooms. But its outstanding feature is the setup of the master bedroom. It has a fireplace connected to the same chimney as the one in the living room, as well as sliding glass doors which open to a porch. By a clever design, the large bedroom and another bedroom are so located that they can be furnished as a single master suite if a fifth bedroom is not needed. Under this arrangement, a door in the stair hall isolates the suite and includes a private bath.

The two-car garage is far larger than most. A glance at the floor plan shows the vast amount of storage space it has on the inside, as well as a convenient outdoor storage room. In keeping with Design H-68's good traffic pattern, it can be entered from either the front or rear porch in addition to the normal auto entrance.

Polk Of Rapides Wants To Abolish 17 Levee Boards

ALEXANDRIA, La. (AP) — Rep. William Polk said Saturday he plans legislation to abolish Louisiana's 17 levee boards.

The Rapides Parish lawmaker said he hoped to have the legislation ready for the fiscal session in May.

If he is unable to get the proposal considered in the May session, he said, he will wait until the 1966 regular legislative session.

"It is my definite intention," Polk said, "to introduce legislation to abolish the levee boards, and in some manner transfer their duties and revenues to the department of public works."

He said the levee boards may have been a good thing back in 1920, but now the state has the department of public works and the Army Engineers do much work concerning levees.

Abolition of the levee boards, he said, "should save many dollars."

Priest, Minister Exchange Pulpits

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz. (AP) — Pastors of Our Lady of Guadalupe Roman Catholic church and the Protestant Episcopal Church of the Epiphany will trade pulpits next Sunday, Feb. 7.

The need for Christian unity will be emphasized in both sermons.

"We will stress the things we agree on, rather than the things on which we differ," the Very Rev. Robert Lord of the Episcopal church declared.

Episcopal clerics have been authorized since 1878 to appear in the pulpit of any Christian groups, he pointed out.

The authority for the Very Rev. James Lindenmeyer's decision to deliver a sermon in the Episcopal church came from Catholic Bishop Bernard T. Espelage, bishop of the diocese of Gallup.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Spring Touch In Program

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR

"Touch of Spring," might well be the theme of the program presented by the Primrose Path Garden Club of Monroe last Wednesday for the Fifth District Garden Center at Sears. Mrs. E. D. Elmore, president, with several club members made the six designs which reflected Spring in different ways. All of the designs were different creating variety and showing the many ways of achieving beauty in design with the use of few flowers.

Mrs. Dorothy Standard created the crescent design using Japanese Yew for the massed line design in a tall black, ceramic compote container. Camellia buds, leaves and full open blooms filled in this established line. Depth was obtained by placing one large camellia to the back side of the focal point. With this line established this design could be used indefinitely by replacing the flowers from time to time. This foliage (Japanese Yew) will last for months in water, even take root.

INSPIRATION

Mrs. Jean Elmore, club's president, was inspired to make her design by using a very distinctive driftwood cedar root that she purchased in Florida last summer. She mounted the wood, with the help of her husband, on a large iron rock. This was done by first boring a hole in the proper place in the rock, inserting a large screw and thus fastening the wood secure in place to the rook. Since the wood needs very little enhancing, she placed a few red camellias with the buds in the focal area of the wood which had an excellent recessed cavity for a needle cup holder.

Buds of the camellia were placed higher-to the back for depth, in an orchid tube which was held in place with posey clay. Very cleverly the rock was sealed with a clear shellac which made it cleaner to handle. A piece of felt was glued to the bottom of it so that it could be placed on a piece of furniture. This design was created for Mrs. Elmore's den. She and her family will enjoy this design indefinitely because she can replace the flowers at her leisure. The wood alone is a conversational piece.

"In the Oriental Manner," was excellently made by Mrs. Allie Mae Kidd. Three small pine branches with clipped needles formed the line (heaven, man, earth) in a large, black, needle cup holder. Three pink camellias were placed low in the design as fillers. A straw woven place mat served as a base. Small, black river rocks were added to the base of the design which furthered the oriental feeling. To complete the picture a colorful oriental figurine (giesha girl) was placed as an accessory to one side of the design.

Mrs. Sara Blakemore used flowering quince to make her diagonal line in a small, antique footed container. Pink and white (variegated) camellias were placed within the line, blending in texture and color with the container. The leaves of the camellia were used effectively as filler material. This design was finished on all sides making it ideal for a coffee table or to be used in front of a mirror.

TWO DESIGNS

Mrs. Marilyn Russell made two designs. The first was created with pussy willow blooms which formed the overall line (asymmetrical) in a tall frosted gold glass compote. Daffodils were placed within this line. For focal interest one large red camellia with it's leaves was placed in the lower part of the design. The complimentary color scheme (red and yellow) is very cheerful for the home these long wintry days.

For her other design, Mrs. Russell made one to carry out a color scheme in the decorations of a friend's home, blue and green. So often we can do this with the permanent flowers. In this case she used blue roses and corn flowers for the overall asymmetrical design in a lovely green glass compote. The green leaves on the flowers blended with the container. For interest she added green grapes to finish the lower line of the triangle. This was a lovely design accenting color harmony in a definite color scheme in the home.

Don't forget — The Camellia Show, Feb. 20 and 21, at the Central Bank, Monroe. Plan to enter your specimen blooms, indoor or outdoor, in the Horticulture Division of the show. Entries will be received from 7 a.m. to 12 noon, Feb. 20. Exhibitors need not be members of the Camellia Society. Detailed rules governing the show are available from the Secretary, Northeast Louisiana Camellia Club, P.O. Box 761, Monroe, La. or phone FA 2-8730 — FA 2-5510.

Colors Show Plant Hunger

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

Lack of normal green color in your broadleaf and coniferous evergreens at this time of the year is a dead giveaway that your plants are starving. Of course, many of the conifers assume beautiful purplish, grey, lavender and olive shades in winter. We are not discussing these here, but even they may look drab if they are starving, too.

It is in the dead of winter that we most enjoy the many shades of green in our evergreens. If your trees and shrubs of this kind are yellow-green or abnormally browned, they are simply under-fed. You may not wish to fertilize them right now, but make your plans to feed them in the next few weeks before spring. Cemetery plantings often get neglected through the years and need to be checked before evergreens there die of starvation.

INSPIRE TO PRUNE

Sunny days in winter may inspire you to do some pruning. While the weather is cool, you may tackle some of the larger jobs that are really too much in hot weather. Tangles of climbing roses that have been left for even two or three seasons always have a great deal of completely dead wood in them. As we have said before in the column, long dead canes should not under any circumstances be cut loose and pulled out. It is easy to cut them into short pieces that will simply fall to the ground without damaging the live canes.

LONG-LIVED

The popular Dr. van Fleet and Silver Moon climbing roses will not have much dead wood in them because their canes are very long-lived. These rampant climbing roses are glorious wherever there is a great deal of room for them. Silver Moon will climb up into a very large tree and make a giant waterfall of white. The light pink Dr. van Fleet has always been known for its ability to cover whole sides of houses. Wherever there is not room for it, grow some other less vigorous climber because it is a shame to have to cut off a wagon load of live canes every year or so. Both of these roses bloom beautifully on old wood, so you need not bother them with pruning.

For a shower of light yellow, plant a Lady Banksia rose and train it up into a tree or onto a very high post where it may produce a waterfall of descending canes that are green all winter and tend to produce evergreen leaves. This is one climbing rose that is easy to prune or to handle because of its lack of prickles.

WILDER AND ALBEE

VIENNA (AP) — Thornton Wilder and Edward Albee are the most popular American playwrights in Austria, according to a survey by the University of Vienna.

The Institute of Drama and Theater said Wilder's "The Seven Ages of Man" and Albee's "Who's Afraid of Virginia Wolf?" compiled the greatest number of performances last season by theatrical companies here and in other cities. "Kiss Me Kate" retained prime popularity in the imported musical category.

Prune Some Plants Now

By AUDREY H. DAWSON

February is an excellent month to prune all evergreens and such flowering shrubs as crape myrtle, cape jasmine, and oleander. Remember in pruning, preserve the natural form of the plant. Thin from within a portion of the plant to allow sunlight to reach all parts of the plant.

For large wounds as pruning, Neil Odenwald, our horticulturist, recommends that you use a commercially prepared sealer for the cuts. All cuts over 1½ to 2 inches should be coated. Materials such as house paint and roofing cement are not recommended.

PRUNE ROSES

February is the month to prune roses also. If not pruned, roses will grow into large plants that produce small flowers of poor quality. Pruning consists of removing some healthy top growth as well as twigs and branches that are dead, diseased, injured or those thin and spindly. On an average sized plant keep four to eight healthy canes. For vigorous varieties cut back 12 to 15 inches from the ground. Do not prune the rambler type roses until after they have bloomed in the spring.

February is one of our very best months to transplant trees, shrubs and vines in the landscape. Most nurseries have their finest selection of plants at this time of year. Make a visit to your local nursery in February.

If you Mr. or Mrs. Gardener want to add a pecan tree, now is the time. Transplanting of your pecan trees should be completed by late February. The dormant season will end in early March and the trees must be set out before the growing season begins.

SCHOLARSHIP

Linda Tolbird, a junior majoring in Home Economics was awarded the Euna D. Spielman Scholarship, by Mrs. Don Wills, chairman of the committee at the council meeting last week. The one hundred dollar scholarship is awarded each year by the Ouachita Home Demonstration Council to a deserving girl majoring in Home Economics. Other committee members were Mrs. L. J. Bower, Mrs. Robert Joiner, and Mrs. C. K. Brooks.

Linda was a former 4-H Club member here in the parish.

CRYSTAL CHANDELIERS

Washing and polishing a crystal chandelier is a time consuming job, but there is nothing more beautiful, whether it be an authentic antique or a reproduction, when its clean and glistening.

A chandelier should be taken down in units, unfastening the pins — wash a few pieces at a time in a pan of water or sink padded with a folded dish towel to protect against chipping or breakage. Half-fill the pan with hot soap or detergent suds. Add a few drops of ammonia or bluing to the last rinse water to bring out the sparkle in the crystal. Dry with a soft lint free cloth. This non-glamorous job should be done about every six months.

SOLVENTS, CLEANERS

You, Mrs. Homemaker, use many solvents and cleaners in the home, and many should be used with caution. Many appear as aerosols, either alone or in combination with propellents to aid in producing a desired spray effect. In hazards they range from being extremely flammable to nonflammable, and from highly toxic to barely toxic. Since the composition is usually not known the user must depend on the adequacy of the label. If the phrase use with adequate ventilation appears, it means air movement sufficient to remove the vapors completely from the breathing zone.

NEW IN PRESSING

One of our sewing aids manufacturers introduced a new two faced press cloth. One side is made of wool for use in pressing wool garments and the other side is made of cotton. This cloth allows fabric and garment protection at a wide range of pressing temperatures. The size of the pressing cloth is 12 inches by 27 inches.

South Tour By Maharis Boosts Film

George Maharis, touring the south in behalf of his latest release, "Sylvia," was in New Orleans Thursday and paused long enough to contact many of the theatres where the motion picture will play.

He co-stars with Carroll Baker in the Martin Poll production, "Sylvia," for Paramount release.

In discussing his role in "Sylvia," Maharis said it originally slated for an older person, but later the producers felt the age of the male star made no difference. When the change was made on the age restriction, he landed the part.

In discussing his co-star, he said he and Miss Baker had been friends for years. Originally, the two had been scheduled to appear in another movie, but due to previous commitments, neither was able to take the rolls.

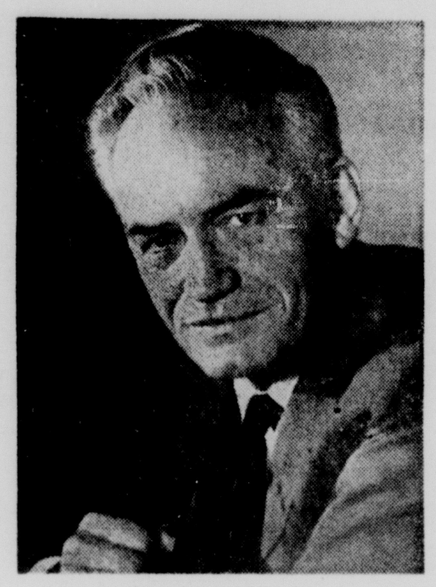
Goldwater Is Back



This week Barry Goldwater, America's foremost spokesman for the conservative cause, returns to the Editorial page of the World. Thoughtful and outspoken comments of responsible opposition will appear here three times each week in the future. The articulate and controversial Presidential standard bearer of the Republican Party will write about national and international subjects which are close to the fast-breaking news of the day. As most readers will recall, Goldwater discontinued his column during the presidential campaign. During Barry Goldwater's recent stint as a nationally syndicated newspaper columnist he was necessarily restricted in his writing by the sanctions placed on him as an elected member of the U.S. Senate. Such restrictions no longer exist. And the result will be a forceful, thought-provoking column.

Here is Goldwater's statement:

When I announced the resumption of this column, in The World I said I hoped to provide a "responsible opposition" on political and governmental questions. This I intend to do, but I want to emphasize that this does not mean that I intend to indulge in opposition merely for its own sake.

It does not mean that I will take apart each and every act of the Johnson administration and condemn it out of hand. And it does not mean that I will blindly oppose merely because the event involved was participated in by people who once opposed me.

On the contrary, I intend to criticize only when I believe that actions of the administration or the Congress or of individual public officials run counter to the best interests of the United States and the well-being and welfare of the American people. I intend to give credit when and where it is due regardless of who is involved.

My basis for appraisal will be the conservative principles I have always believed in and espoused. I shall continue to argue loud and clear for limiting the size and role and power of the federal government, for balancing the federal budget, for reducing the amount of deficit financing, for the development of a foreign policy based on strength and for the validity of the Constitution as a document of government for today and for the future.

I shall weigh many contemporary developments and trends against the tried and proven values of the past. My yardstick will be the best of our American heritage and tradition. My purpose will be entirely constructive, and it will be aimed at adding to the sum total of public discussion on a national scale.

In taking on this assignment, I am fully aware that I do not qualify as a scholar in the academic sense. What I bring to the job will be largely what I have learned through a broad background of varied experience and travel.

For example, my observations on economic matters will be based to a large degree on the experience I gained in more than 20 years as a businessman and merchant.

In discussing military matters, I shall be drawing on experience gained in the Air Force during World War II, as a member of the Air Force reserve before and after that war, as a member of the Air National Guard and as a former member of the Senate Armed Services Committee.

On questions of public policy, my 12 years as a member of the United States Senate will provide a background of which no other newspaper columnist today can boast.

In addition to this, I count my extensive travels throughout America as a priceless asset in the journalistic endeavor upon which I now embark.

Be sure to read THE BARRY GOLDWATEK COLUMN this week and then three times each week in the future. It is another of the exclusive features that you'll find only in the Monroe Morning World.

CURTAIN CALL

By JACQUE BIEGENWALD

Mailers announcing performance dates for "Sound of Music," will go out this week to our membership. As always, they will include a form for advance reservations, which we hope will be sent back as soon as possible stating dates and seat preference. This enables our box office to satisfy more people as to exact requests and also avoids that last minute crush which precedes every musical.

There has been a change in the date of the matinee would be played on Feb. 21. This is now scheduled for Feb. 28.

Also, we ran an error last week in our membership prices. Correctly, they are: Regular adult membership is $2.50 (plus $2.50 admission to the musical and $1.25 to each show); and Regular Student membership is $1 (plus $1.50 admission to the musical and $1 to each show).

Memberships may be purchased by writing Box 868, Monroe, enclosing a check in the above amount. Box office will open for telephone orders on Feb. 17.

NEW TITLE

George Brian, who directed several of Little Theater's children's plays and is a professor of drama at Northeast, is proudly wearing a new title now. He is Dr. Brian, as of this past Tuesday, when he received his doctorate in speech and drama from L.S.U. George stopped in to watch rehearsals of "Sound of Music," and stayed to tell us a little something about his thesis. He chose the title, "Amateur Theater in Louisiana — 1900-1925." He researched thirty-six communities in his study, and found so much material that he had to cut out a great deal in order to keep it to the required 400 pages.

In order to give Executive Director Lonny Fraze the time he needs to put on such a demanding show as "Sound of Music," Ivan Uttal, a former director of our theater, has been engaged as co-director, helping to stage the musical number and assisting in direction. Ivan has been in New York and Italy for the past few years, doing very exciting work in directing and stage managing a variety of productions. After "Sound of Music," his plans include directing an off-Broadway production of two one-act plays in the spring and working as advance director for a play scheduled for the summer circuits.

DEPARTURE

Arthur and Carolyn Griffith left this week for New York, where another of our former directors, Richard Clark, will meet them and help them to get settled.

Technical Director Chris West, received a good response from our call for set workers, and the elaborate von Trapp villa sets that they are working on are something to behold. He now asks for 15 men, strong and true, for stage crew. These men are needed now since rehearsals will soon be going into final stages.

Working on a stage crew is a lot of fun, since you are a part of the production, a very important part, and yet don't have the responsibility of carrying an acting part. We'd like for more men who have never taken part in one of our shows to come out and help Chris. You'll make new friends and possibly discover a new interest.

RETURN FROM TOUR

Judy and Bob Evans recently returned from a tour of the Ozarks during which they visited with Little Theater people in Little Rock, Rogers, Fayetteville Fort Smith, Hot Springs, Pine Bluff and Camden, Ark. In Little Rock, they saw the magnificent new 389-seat theater of the Arts Center where "Hay Fever" was in rehearsal under the direction of Dugald MacArthur, a pupil of Paul Baker. The Little Rock Comunity Theater, which shares the same playhouse, was about to start rehearsals for "Bells Are Ringing."

The Fort Smith Little Theater operates on a calendar year basis and its first offering of the new season, "Picinic," had just gone into rehearsal. The Hot Springs Community Players had converted their theater into the round for "The Unexpected Guest," also in rehearsal.

CAMERA ANGLES

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

I took pictures of a beautiful bride.

The young lady has been one of my favorite models from the day she was born a little more than 23 years ago. But today's event was unique, a milestone, for the bride was Susan, the eldest of my three daughters and the first to be married. The other two, also long-time homegrown models, were today the maid-of-honor and a bridesmaid, respectively.

I've been told that the father of the bride simply does not take pictures nor is a camera considered part of the regulation wedding attire, male. Well, Emily Post never was a camera enthusiast, unfortunately. As a confirmed photo addict, I had a hunch I'd bend a rule or two and make an attempt to snap a few shots of my own. This, even though two professional photographer friends were scheduled to cover the affair in color and in black and white.

CAMERAS LOADED

My cameras were loaded and ready the night before to avoid any female accusation of my delaying the nupital day preparations. While Susan was having her hair arranged by her maid-of-honor sister, a camera went into action. I shot available light candids hoping to remain inconspicuous. There was some mild protest but I didn't impede progress and I had a record of the moment.

My next set of pictures was of the bridal party leaving our house, getting into the car and arriving at the temple. I must admit this sequence lacks something—namely, the father of the bride!

At the temple, the two official photographers took over. Since they had a job to perform and an amateur is ethically bound not to get in their way, it cut down on my personal picture taking opportunities. In addition, I had to take orders as one of the subjects, though I kept my camera handy. Perhaps that is why some of the non-photo fans present thought it amusing to see the father of the bride escorting her down the aisle during the wedding rehearsal . . . with a camera draped from a tuxedo shoulder!

NOT PERMITTED

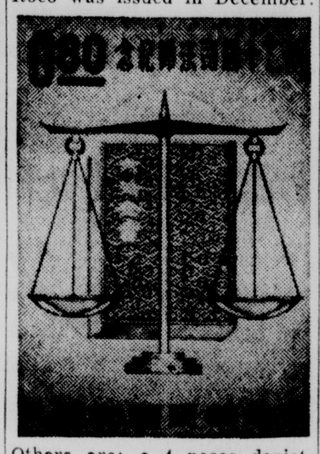
Needless to say, this wasn't permitted during the ceremony proper. While imbued with the nature of the service, it was inevitable to feel that I was in a wonderful close-up position for picture taking. But I could not take advantage of it! I longed to share with others my personal visual image of these two sincere youngsters dedicating their lives to each other. But one cannot process, print or distribute a mental image . . . at least, not yet.

I did get back to the camera later for some of the festivities and that is why our family album has a thrilling ending. . . and a beginning. Susan's wedding marks the close of a chapter in her picture story and it starts a new volume. I am grateful to photography for giving me these memories to look back at . . . and to look forward to.

STAMPS

Republic Of China Judicial Day

Several new issues have been released by Argentina. A 4 pesos stamp showing the portrait of Gen. Julio Argentino Roco was issued in December.



Others are; a 4 pesos depicting the market place at Montserrat Square from an oil painting by Carlos Morel, discovery of America, United Nations Day and a card for the Olympic Games.

The Republic of China on Formosa has commemorated its "20th Judicial Day" with a set of two new stamps, reports the World Wide Philatelic Agency. The stamps feature the scales of justice and a legal code book in the foreground symbolizing fairness and justice. In the background can be seen an emblem of the Chinese national flower, a plum blossom.

Also reported from Nationalist China are the following upcoming stamp issues: 60th anniversary of Rotary International, Double Carp, Madame Chiang Kai-shek's portrait, New York World's Fair 1964 - 1965, the centennial of International Tel ecommunications Union.

Brush and Palette

by Jan Bank

There are posters all over town heralding "The Youth Art Exhibit" at the Masur Museum of Art. A wonderful job has been done in placing the large well-lettered cards, but I am sad to relate that there is a discrepancy in the date for the opening of the exhibit.

Formal opening for "The International Red Cross Youth Exhibit" and work of area grammar and junior high schools will be Sunday, Feb. 7. Please bring work for the exhibit to the museum on Tuesday between the regular museum hours of two and five p.m.

Portraits for the current show must be picked up Sunday after five p.m. or Monday between two and five p.m. As you can see, this gives you only this afternoon between two and five to see the portraits of Monroe people done in a variety of styles by many artists now being exhibited at the Masur Museum, 1400 South Grand.

Portraits have been a central theme for artists for centuries. After heroic church works and extensive mural decoration in the places of the wealthy, portraiture next engaged the attention and labors of the artists of the 17th and 18th centuries.

The rising importance of the state and the growing wealth and prominence of the merchant princes, as well as the vanity of the great, opened a new and lucrative avenue for the development of artistic genius in this field and established for portraiture an eminence which continues to this day; but, even before that artists were to leave the world a great heritage of beauty in masterpieces of portrait painting.

Perhaps one of the most well-known portraits is the "Mona Lisa", done by Leonardo da Vinci over 400 years ago. There has been much speculation as to why La Gioconda was smiling that way. A physician interested in art made headlines by announcing the Mona Lisa's smile was clearly the expression of a woman who was pregnant.

Sigmund Freud, in an incomparable psychological reconstruction, traced the smile back to Leonardo's memory of his mother. Some say there was perhaps a story in some model of Leonardo's other than La Gioconda. There was a young Italian girl, Cecilia Callerani, whose portrait Leonardo was commissioned to do. Some imply that the artist was in love with the 17 year old, noted for her beauty, and that it is she smiling elusively in many of his paintings. The Mona Lisa smile, that subtle, enticing, dreamlike smile, appeared long before Leonardo painted the Mona Lisa. It appears on the faces of his angels and cherubs, Madonnas and Holy infants.

Research has revealed another possibility behind the smile. The 20th century can't claim invention of the "finishing" school, for during the Renaissance, well-born maidens were schooled in the components of charm. In one primer on the feminine graces, Agnolo Frenzuola advised the ladies, "From time to time, close the mouth at the right corner with a suave movement, and open at the left, as if you were smiling secretly . . . ." If Freud and the good doctor were wrong and the smile is a bit of premeditated feminine deceit, it was practiced long before Leonardo and will be to the end of time; but, only Leonardo had the skill and talent to capture the knowing delight of the secret which has caused millions to pause and wonder and maybe become so absorbed in thought that they feel their mouth close at the right corner and, with a suave movement, open at the left.

Two of the most admired portraits in the show at the Masur Museum are the work of Jean Despujols, internationally known artist, who died in Shreveport this past week. The work of Despujols was recognized early in his life. At the age of 24 he received the Prix de La Ville of the City of Bordeaux, France and a few years later, he received the Grand Prize of Rome for his paintings.

In 1936, he was commissioned to go to French-Indo China to record, on canvas, life in that part of the Orient. It was a series of 360 paintings done there which gained him international fame. The paintings were exhibited in the Smithsonian Institute and were the subject of a full-length article in the April 1951 issue of The National Geographic Magazine.

At the suggestion of one of his American pupils in Paris, the artist visited Shreveport, returned to France and left just before that nation fell to the Germans. He returned to this country, became a naturalized citizen and made his home in Shreveport.

Today his works hang in public and private collections and in homes in all parts of the world. There are murals in the galleries in Paris, the Luxembourg Museum and in many cities in this country. Since 1941 the artist has done mostly portrait work. His work is represented in the Masur Museum show with portraits of Ann and King, daughters of the owner Mr. Jim Trousdale.

ART NEWS HERE AND THERE

Here: Color slides for the first regional (La.-Ark.-Miss.) competitive show of oil, acrillac and watercolor painting are due by Feb. 10. Prizes totaling $1,000 will be awarded. For details, write Masur Museum, 1400 South Grand, Monroe, La.

There: National and International celebraties do much to encourage the people who follow their examples world over. Winston Churchill posed for many photographs, seated at his easel, brush and palette in hand, engaged in one of his favorite hobbies, painting. On rare occasions, he would even visit friends, arriving with his painting equipment. "Just to paint is great fun. The colors are lovely to look at and delicious to squeeze out. Matching them, however crudely, with what you see is fascinating and absolutely absorbing. Try it, if you have not done so, before you die." . . . . Winston Churchill.

U.S., Russians Will Speed Up Culture Plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union have agreed to step up their cultural exchanges in 1965 including performances by outstanding musicians of the two countries, the State Department announced Saturday.

The Cleveland Symphony Orchestra will play in half a dozen Soviet cities in a six-week tour beginning in April and the Juillard Quartet will go to the Soviet Union in May, the department said.

While American stars including pianist Van Cliburn and violinist Issac Stern are going to the Soviet Union, the Russians are sending to America the Moscow Symphony Orchestra, the Moiseyev Dancers and four prominent musicians.

The agreement to press ahead at an increased tempo with exchanges, which also include scholars, athletes and technical specialists, was reached in negotiations during the week between Frank G. Siscoe, director of the State Department's Soviet and Eastern European exchanges staff, and Boris Krylov, head of the American section of the Soviet State Committee for Cultural Relations with Foreign Countries.

U.S. officials described the atmosphere of the negotiations as "businesslike" and declined to attach any particular significance to them as a weathervane in the general state of relations between Washington and the new Soviet regime. The aim of the negotiations was to settle details within the current U.S.-Soviet cultural exchange pact covering the years 1964-65.

"The talks here this week were carried out in a friendly and frank atmosphere and the negotiators agreed that the greater efforts will be needed to complete the exchanges planned for 1965," a State Department announcement said.

Besides Cliburn and Stern, American musicians slated to perform in the Soviet Union included concert pianist Eugene Istomin, violinist Joseph Fuchs and singers Jerome Hines and Mary Costa.

Soviet stars coming to the United States will be painists Svyatoslav Richter and Yakov Zak, violinists Igor Oistrakh and soprano Tomara Milashkina.

Curia Members Told To Accept Reform Docilely

ROME (AP) — The Vatican Curia was reported Saturday to have been told by Pope Paul's secretary of state to accept coming reforms with "a spirit of docility."

The report said the secretary of state, Amleto Cardinal Cigognani, also told Curia members not to criticize the Vatican Ecumenical Council, to be as punctual as possible, do the best job they could and never accept offers of money.

While the Vatican had no comment on the letter, sources there said the caution against accepting money applied to occasional offers of gifts, especially at holiday times, by commercial concerns doing business with the Vatican.

These sources said such gifts are sometimes offered in the form of money for ahigh prelate to distribute to his favorite orphanage, hospital or other charitable institution.

The caution was said to have been voiced to avoid any suspicion of favoritism or special dealing on the part of curial offices.

The report was distributed by the Italian news agency Ansa, which said it had learned that Cardinal Cicognani, who is a kind of combined premier and foreign minister in the church government under the Pope, sent his advice to the Curia in a circular letter earlier this month.

Cardinal Cicognani's letter, Ansa said, referred to criticism of the Curia made in sessions of the Vatican Ecumenical Council and to Pope Paul's statements that the Curia must be internationalized. The Curia, regarded as a stronghold of conservatism, is largely Italian. The Ansa report paraphrased the letter as saying:

"There is no doubt that, especially because of the nature and inevitable aging of the structure and organism of the Curia, there exists considerable deficiency, as the Pope himself has already publicly affirmed."

The secretary of state, Ansa continued, asked all those assigned to the Curia "to show a spirit of docility toward the reforms that in the future will be decreed, as well as to abstain from any arguments against the council fathers and from any against the council itself . . ."

Jackson Native First To Direct Radiation Study

Lt. Gov. C. C. Aycock, chairman of the Louisiana Board on Nuclear Energy (LBONE), announced Saturday the appointment by Gov. John McKeithen, effective Monday.

Parker, who has lived in Baton Rouge since 1957 and has been a radiation control specialist at Louisiana State University, will receive a salary of $13,000 a year.

Parker's duties will be to head the agency which conducts inspections and investigations of all facilities using radioactive materials in Louisiana. He also will head the state's first radiation emergency reaction team.

Parker holds a doctoral degree in nuclear physics from LSU, a master of science degree in nuclear physics from Vanderbilt, and a bachelor of science degree from Millsaps College majoring in chemistry and mathematics.

He also was a U.S. Atomic Energy Commission radiological physics fellow from 1955-57 and was a health physicist at Oak Ridge National Laboratory during that period.

For the past two years, Parker has been employed as health physicist in charge of radiation control programs at all LSU facilities and as administrative assistant for the Department of Physics and Astronomy.

Longshoremen Reach Accord At Baton Rouge

BATON ROUGE (AP)—Union leaders and shippers reached accord Saturday on a new Baton Rouge longshoremen's contract. A rank and file vote will be held Monday.

A. W. Durnin, president of Local 1833, said he was "pretty sure the members will accept this package."

Some 500 members of International Longshoremen's Assn. Locals 1830 and 1833 meet at 10 a.m. Monday at the union office in Port Allen to ratify or refuse agreement.

"We've got a pretty good agreement here," Durnin said. "It's just about the same as the New Orleans contract."

He said some variations in previous local contracts would be eliminated by the new agreement.

"The guarantees are more than we've gotten in the past," he said.

If local members vote to accept the pact, port activities still will not resume until agreements are reached in all the ports closed in the strike from Maine to Texas.

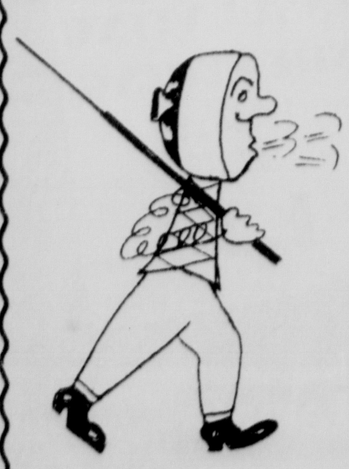
Good Morning Everybody

This Is K. Able Signal Again

Today I would like to explain a few steps required to construct a Cablevision System. Many people are asking the question "When will we have Cablevision or when will we have better Cablevision"? Likewise, many highly skilled people are working diligently to refine the existing system and to complete the construction of the new Cablevision System which will cover nearly all residential areas within the cities of Monroe and West Monroe.

Construction of a Cablevision System means a great deal more than physically stringing cables and electronic equipment on the utility poles. If you have ever built a house you know that it takes plans, architectural drawings, permits and hundreds of other details that must be handled before you are ready for the carpenter to start building. The same is true of Cablevision, except it is many times more complex.

It bears a similarity to the construction of cables and assorted equipment that furnish electricity to your home, or telephone service to this city. Taking space on utility poles where there are at least two other services makes it even more difficult than building either a telephone or power co. for the very first time. The Cablevision System is super-imposed over the Telephone Co. plant and the Power Plant on the same poles. It causes delay because we must rent these poles and in order to do this, established procedures must be followed:



If you enjoy walking you would certainly enjoy the construction of a Cablevision System. In order to build the Twin City's System it is necessary to walk out the 180 miles of pole lines where the Cablevision System will be, on several separate occasions. The details seem endless. There are thousands of separate actions which must be dove-tailed together into an over all pattern so that we may achieve the best in Cablevision construction.

At the outset it is a world of maps, maps, and still more maps; Walking, checking and still more walking and checking. Legal, Engineers, Contracts, testing and electronic equipment lay out. These are but a few of the many phases of Cablevision Construction before we ever place one foot of cable on the poles:

Next week we will give you our projected schedule for construction for 1965 which will

I'M VERY HAPPY FOR YOU, POTEET!

NOW SHAKY BLOPP SAYS THAT IF I GO — SO DOES HE! IT'S SO-WELL-EMBARRASSING!

DOES HE KNOW WHAT THIS WINNING BASKETBALL TEAM HAS MEANT TO THE SCHOOL?

YES, SIR, BUT HE HASN'T BEEN HERE LONG ENOUGH TO REALLY CARE!

THEN HE WOULD ACTUALLY WALK OUT ON THE TEAM — TO FOLLOW YOU?

IT SOUNDS CONCEITED, SIR, BUT THAT IS JUST WHAT HE WOULD DO!

I SHOULDN'T EVEN MENTION THIS, BUT I ONCE PLAYED BASKETBALL HERE AT MAUMEE

WE LOST 20 OUT OF 24 GAMES! — IT WAS HUMILIATING

HELP FOR HOMEMAKERS

hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:
To pamper the whims of a junior Florence Nightingale, remove the cuffs from a man's discarded shirt, and by merely changing the one button to the inside, you have a perfect nurse's hat.

Marlene Gierman

KEEP IT GLEAMING!

DEAR HELOISE:
To preserve the metal finish on such things as earrings, bracelets, handbag clasps, belt buckles, etc., before using them, apply one or two coats of clear nail polish.

If this is repeated every six months, I find that they look like new for ages.

Mrs. Robert Hoskinson

KITCHEN GREENERY

DEAR HELOISE:
For those who love green things.

Cut about one inch off the big end of a carrot and place it in a shallow container in some water, and it will make a lovely fern. Just watch it grow!

I cut off the top of a fresh pineapple and set it in a pot of water and it, too, makes a lovely house plant!

Mrs. J. Brown

* * *

I tried the carrots, and the results were fantastic! I set the slices (off the tops) in a saucer of water and left them on my kitchen window sill. Within three days they had beautiful foliage on top.

Heloise

HUMPTY DUMPTY RESCUE

DEAR HELOISE:
When I find broken eggs in a fresh dozen, I seal them with cellophane tape and they keep until I get ready to use them. The inside always seems to stay fresh.
Saves lots of eggs.
Mrs. M. Ruppel

QUICK CLOTHES RACK

DEAR HELOISE:
When you are ironing and run out of space to hang your garments (shirts, blouses and other short items), lay a broom across the backs of two chairs for a temporary clothes rack.

Mrs. Deyo

TIP ON A SHOESTRING

DEAR HELOISE:
Here is a hint from my seven-year-old daughter:
When washing white shoestrings, just sprinkle a little scouring powder on them, then scrub with a brush. This washes and whitens them at the same time with very little scrubbing required. Rinse as usual.
Mrs. Donald Bohning

VACUUM THOSE MOPS!

DEAR HELOISE:
I use the suction hose of my vacuum cleaner to clean dust mops, dust cloths and my carpet sweeper.

It's wonderful and easy to do and keeps all these things clean with no dust or lint flying around.

Gals, this idea is especially good for those of us who live in apartments. Managements do frown on shaking a dust mop out an apartment window!

HOT DOG DRYER

DEAR HELOISE:
We have an adorable little dog. He loves to take a bath and then have his coat dried with my electric hair dryer.
After bathing him, we put him inside a plastic pillowcase cover and zip up the zipper so that just his head is sticking out.
Turn the hair dryer on medium-warm and insert the hose into the plastic case. It will blow up like a balloon.
You can gently massage his fur through the heavy plastic while the warm air is going into the bag, and the doggie loves it.
Be sure not to zip the zipper too tight. The air MUST escape somewhere.

TIP ON FINGER TIPS

DEAR HELOISE:
If you have ever spent time pulling the fingertips out on your rubber gloves after you remove them . . . you needn't do it any longer.

DRAIN AND SAVE

DEAR HELOISE:
Save this juice for other purposes. Then open the can with your can opener. This way one does not have to use a sieve.

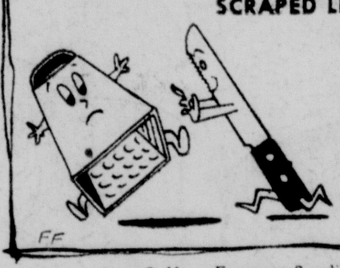
HANDY APRONS

DEAR HELOISE:
I am 88 years old, but I guess it is never too late to offer a helpful hint.
Rather than wear an apron (which I must iron) I drape a bath towel over a ribbon or belt and tie it around my waist.
Some towels are so attractive and cheerful that they look as decorative as aprons and I never hesitate to dry my hands on them!
Mrs. Rose Barofsky

SCRAPED LEMONS



DEAR HELOISE:
When you need a small amount of grated lemon rind . . . use a steak knife (with a serrated blade) to scrape the rind. You won't have a messy grater to wash.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY!

DEAR HELOISE:
Miniature marshmallows make very pretty holders for little candles on a child's birthday cake.
And do you know that they protect the frosting from the melting candle wax?
Mrs. M. R.

IRON AT LEISURE

DEAR HELOISE:
When I am ironing, I always save a well-dampened, rolled-up lunch cloth to iron last.

If I have to answer the phone or the doorbell when I am ironing a good blouse or daddy's white shirt, I shake out the dampened cloth and lay it over the garment so it will not dry out before I get back to the chore!
